Introduction

OXFORD REPETYTORIUM MATURZYSTY is a comprehensive exam preparation course for students working towards the Matura exam, developed to give them the tools they need for exam success. The course helps students revise the vocabulary and grammar that they have learned in Secondary school, as well as learn tips and strategies to help them tackle all types of Matura exam tasks.

OXFORD REPETYTORIUM MATURZYSTY offers you and your students:

- Systematic revision of the grammar and vocabulary areas specified in the core curriculum
- Strong vocabulary focus with vocabulary aligned to the core curriculum
- Thorough preparation for the Matura exam at both Basic and Extended levels with exposure to all exam task types
- Interesting and thought-provoking topics to facilitate learning and revise the key grammar and vocabulary
- Listening and Reading skills development with exam tips, activation exercises and Matura exam tasks at both Basic and Extended levels
- Robust practice of all Matura Use of English task types at both Basic and Extended levels
- Comprehensive oral Matura exam preparation with exam tips, activation exercises and sets of useful phrases, as well as sample tasks and recorded model answers
- Full oral Matura exam sets in every second unit
- Cumulative Revision sections allowing for more Matura Use of English task types practice
- Matura Writing skills development at both Basic and Extended level with strategies, activation exercises and sets of useful phrases, as well as sample tasks and model texts
- Accessible, interesting topics to engage teenage learners and help them develop as global citizens
- Focus on drawing comparisons between Polish and English culture
- A mixed ability focus throughout with differentiated exercises in the lessons and extra support and ideas for you in the Teacher's Guide
- Mediation activities designed to help students develop a range of key language skills to clearly convey information to others
- Recorded wordlists with target vocabulary aligned to the Oxford 3000 and Oxford 5000 core lists

Student Book

OXFORD REPETYTORIUM MATURZYSTY consists of fourteen units encompassing all the topics specified in the core curriculum for levels III.1.P and III.1.R. The units form the main part of the book, where students will review and consolidate key vocabulary and develop the skills needed for Matura exam success. They include clearly signposted Matura exam tasks at the Basic and Extended levels:

- Basic level tasks are marked with a green exclamation mark icon
- Extended level tasks are marked with a blue exclamation mark icon

Exam tips for both types of tasks are labelled with a light bulb icon. The main units also include target vocabulary wordlists and cumulative revisions.

PowerUp

OXFORD REPETYTORIUM MATURZYSTY was developed to meet the needs of learners at various levels of English. Most of the vocabulary and Matura exam tasks are at the Basic Matura level. The PowerUp sections include vocabulary and tasks at the Extended Matura level.

Wordpower

The Wordpower section is included in most of the Listening and Reading lessons. It is focused on introducing new vocabulary items and revising vocabulary areas that often prove difficult for learners of English, such as compound words, collocations, phrasal verbs, idioms and words that have more than one meaning. Mastering these will allow students to successfully tackle the Use of English part of the Matura exam.

Vocabulary

This section includes comperehensive target vocabulary revision and practice, clearly divided into subtopics aligned to the core curriculum. It also includes speaking tasks and discussion topics, to put the vocabulary into practice, as well as recordings with model answers. All the vocabulary items are also listed in the recorded wordlists at the end of each unit.

Listening

This section includes exam tips with activation exercises as well as Matura exam tasks at both exam levels. The recordings touch on topics of interest for teenagers and young adults, and will allow students to familiarize themselves with various English accents.

Reading

This section includes a variety of engaging and thought-provoking reading texts, accompanied by exam tips and activation strategies as well as Matura exam tasks at both exam levels. The texts are followed by reflection tasks and the Wordpower section, offering additional vocabulary work. In each unit the material helps students learn new language items and skills by capturing their interest and focusing their attention with engaging topics and issues that they can identify with.

Speaking

Being able to communicate clearly in a foreign language is an important everyday skill. The Speaking sections in each unit include exam tips and exam tasks accompanied with recorded sample students' answers and sets of useful phrases. The Speaking sections are complemented by full oral Matura sets in every other unit. Extra sets of useful phrases are available in the Speaking Bank at the back of the book.

Use of English

Each Use of English section begins with the Grammar in Use feature, which reviews the key grammar areas, and is followed by typical Matura exam tasks at both Basic and Extended levels. If students need additional grammar practice, they should be referred to the Grammar Reference and Practice section at the back of the book, which offers extra grammar activities and explanations in Polish.

Writing

The Writing section gives students an opportunity to develop their Matura Writing skills with exam tips, activation exercises and lists of useful phrases. It offers step-by-step advice on how to write Matura-appropriate texts with sample Matura exam tasks and model texts. Extra sets of useful phrases are available in the Writing Bank at the back of the book.

Cumulative Revision

The Cumulative Revision section is available in every second unit, and offers more Matura task type practice to revise the grammar and vocabulary covered so far.

Wordlists

The recorded wordlists placed at the end of each unit contain lists of target vocabulary from each sub topic specified in the core curriculum, and aligned to the Oxford 3000 and Oxford 5000 wordlists (clearly signposted with the Oxford 3000 and Oxford 5000 icons).

Oxford 3000 and Oxford 5000 are vocabulary lists carefully curated by Oxford lexicographers to include the most important vocabulary items. The Oxford 3000 list includes three thousand most common and useful English words at CEFR A1 to B2 level. The Oxford 5000 list includes an additional two thousand items at CEFR B2 to C1 level. Additionally, the items from the PowerUp sections in the units are marked in red.

Brainpower

Make the most of students' brain potential! The number of words and phrases that one needs to memorize while learning a foreign language can be daunting. The Brainpower section aims to help solve this problem by offering tips on how to learn and retain vocabulary. It's followed by short cumulative tasks, where students can put the Brainpower tips into practice.

Pronunciation

This short section placed at the very end of each unit focuses on the most important aspects of English pronunciation, including model recordings and offering ideas for further practice with students.

Grammar Reference and Practice

This section, placed at the back of the book, offers additional grammar practice with explanations of the key grammar areas in Polish. It is followed by Speaking and Writing Banks, including sets of useful phrases and additional questions for the Speaking tasks in the units.

Mediation

Mediation normally means negotiating in order to resolve an argument or conflict. In the English language classroom, mediation has a different meaning. In a basic sense, it is someone telling someone else about something. In a fuller sense, mediation is an aspect of communication that involves clarifying or enhancing understanding between people; for example, when reporting or interpreting ideas in different ways, or when presenting information or concepts.

Developing mediation skills has acquired more importance in recent years; the CEFR now defines these skills in detail for different levels of language ability and provides can-do statements that can be adapted as learning aims for communicative activities in the classroom.

A mediation task normally involves two texts, which may be either spoken or written. Students read or listen to the first text (often called the source text) and then have to change it in some way in order to explain or tell it to another person or group of people who have not had access to this information. The changed version that students speak or write is the second text (often called the mediated text).

Mediation can happen in various ways, such as changing the medium (e.g. from written to oral/aural), the register (e.g. from formal to informal) or the purpose of the text (e.g. from information to advice).

The examples below show how these different kinds of mediation work as classroom tasks:

- Students read a text and change the information in it to a visual format (e.g. a diagram or an illustrated poster).
- Students read a text written in a formal style and write about it to a friend in an informal style.
- Students listen to a presentation and write a summary of the key points for their classmates.

There are mediation tasks interspersed throughout the Student Book.

Course Assessment

The course offers a seamless assessment experience, with various types of tests available in two slightly different versions (A and B). All are fully editable so that you can adapt them to match your students' needs. Tests can be accessed via Oxford English Hub.

Diagnostic tests

The diagnostic tests are level specific and offer insights into your students' strengths and weaknesses. They can be used to create individual or class learning plans at the beginning of a course of study, and to inform decisions about which language areas to focus on.

Short tests

There is one Short test per unit focusing on grammar and vocabulary. The tests offer a snapshot of students' progress and guide the teacher to offer remedial work while still working within a given unit.

Unit tests

The Unit tests enable you to identify where learning has been successful in a specific unit and where remedial work is needed. The content in the test reflects the language objectives within that particular unit, including Matura task types in the Listening, Reading and Use of English sections.

End-of-term and End-of-year tests

These are used to summarize what students have learned during a term or a year, and the content in the test can come from any material covered during the year, including Matura task types in the Listening, Reading and Use of English sections.

Matura exam practice

There are three written mock Matura exam papers available for your students, as well as three mock oral Matura sets.

1 Do you enjoy tidying up your bedroom? Why? / Why not?
2 Do you find a messy environment creative? Why? / Why not?
3 Can looking at someone's room tell you something about their personality?

2 Przeczytaj tekst. Z podanych odpowiedzi wybierz właściwą, zgodną z treścią tekstu: A, B, C albo D.

Zanim wytypujesz poprawną odpowiedź, postaraj się wyeliminować te, które na pewno są niepoprawne. Przeanalizuj je wszystkie i odrzuć te, które mają inne znaczenie niż informacje podane w tekście. Pamiętaj, że oprócz znajdowania szczegółowych informacji, to zadanie może sprawdzać także umiejętność określenia głównej myśli tekstu lub intencji osób przedstawionych w tekście.

1 People who live in messy rooms
A suffer from mental health problems.
B have less time for other housework.
C make bad lifestyle decisions.
D find things more easily.

2 What kind of person might possibly benefit from messy environments?
A creative people
B successful business people
C those who are always stressed
D people with well-organized minds

3 If visitors see a tidy room they might
A think we don't want to share things.
B conclude you are a friendly person.
C find it harder to make conversation.
D feel surprised because they don't expect it.

4 What is the author's opinion about messy teens' parents?
A They are becoming less tolerant.
B They deserve more respect.
C They shouldn't feel ashamed of their children.
D They are wrong to get angry about mess.

5 What is the main idea of the article?
A Messy rooms don't need to be a problem.
B People disagree about the meaning of 'messy'.
C We shouldn't leave our rooms in a mess.
D Tidy rooms make life and relationships simpler.

Is it best to leave a mess?

When the furniture company BedSOS recently announced a 'messiest bedroom' photo competition, they received 300 submissions. They showed carpets of dirty clothes, wet towels, empty take-away containers and empty chests of drawers with the contents in huge piles on top. Should the owners of these bedrooms start tidying up?

Most people agree that messy spaces are not good for us. They make us distracted and anxious. They also make it very difficult to vacuum and wipe down dusty surfaces. Meanwhile, dirty bowls and cups may attract harmful mould and bacteria. Researchers have also discovered that people who live in messy spaces go out for exercise less and sleep worse than people who are tidier.

However, not everyone prefers an orderly environment. Some of the most successful people in history didn't mind a mess. Sigmund Freud apparently said: 'Don't clean up the mess. I know exactly where everything is.' Generally, it seems that people with relaxed personalities feel quite at home in less orderly spaces. Evidence also shows that spending time in messy spaces makes us feel the need to create new things and try new ideas, which is perfect for artists.

Of course, we should also consider visitors. They usually expect some level of tidiness and may judge a messy person to be less friendly. A tidy room may increase our appeal on social media, too. But should we care about appearances? A fashion magazine recently asked if messy bedrooms are becoming a trend and argued that Instagram pictures of messy rooms show that a person feels confident and cool. They also provide information about the person to help us learn about them and start conversations.

A more serious problem is that relationships with parents can break down as a result of the mess in children's rooms. Parents tend to think that messy bedrooms are out of order, and argue that in their house they should be the ones to make the rules. A British radio presenter recently posted an image of his 19-year-old daughter's bedroom online to make her feel ashamed, and commented that it was 'completely unacceptable'. Many parents share this attitude and they order their children to tidy up because they think a mess demonstrates a lack of respect for them.

However, some psychologists suggest a messy bedroom is a way for teens to reflect their independence while they are growing up, and it is surely better than rebelling with bad behaviour. Also, tidying is a tall order for busy students. Arguably, if a parent could calm down and discuss the problem, as well as tolerate a degree of mess, they would enjoy a better relationship with their children.

All in all, it might be a good idea to hang up those wet towels in order to make life simpler. However, we should tolerate some mess and prevent it becoming a source of shame.

Dobieranie pytań do części tekstu

9 Przeczytaj tekst, który został podzielony na cztery części (A–D), oraz pytania go dotyczące (1–5). Do każdego pytania dopasuj właściwą część tekstu. W jednej części tekstu znajdują się odpowiedzi na dwa pytania.

In which paragraph does the author
1 describe a type of building you might do a tour of?
2 suggest that the popularity of the place is well-deserved?
3 refer to the house being used as a method of protection against other people?
4 mention subtle variations in living conditions that are caused by seasonal change?
5 point to the interplay between the design and nature?

House hunting, high and low

Most of us would say it's sensible to live firmly on the ground. However, not all architects share this view. Here are a selection of housing designs that offer a less conventional perspective.

A The cave house

Cave houses are some of the oldest dwellings in the world and used to provide low-cost accommodation for agricultural workers. However, many have now been renovated into luxury residences and are certainly not cheap. That said, if you lived in a cave complex, you would probably save on the costs of air conditioning and heating. Their incredibly thick walls make them cosy in the winter while they remain protected from the summer heat. The temperature inside typically varies only four or five degrees during the year. And although they aren't ideal if you prefer a detached premises, you needn't worry about noise from neighbours!

B The upside-down house

Upside-down houses look entirely normal but with one crucial difference: the roof points downwards and the foundations are in the air. That makes them unsuitable for residential purposes, but they are popular landmarks that have become major tourist attractions. Their appeal has little to do with comfort. From the moment you go inside you start to feel dizzy. You then have to walk on the ceiling, which is the floor for you, under all the furniture above. Only the staircase is the right way up, which you use to get to the ground floor (which actually is the top floor). These houses are just perfect if you want a picture of yourself dancing on the ceiling to post on social media.

C The stilt house

Homes on poles called stilts are nothing new in some parts of the world. They have long been essential in low-lying coastal areas where flooding is common because they can be reconstructed quite quickly if damaged. The Korowai tribe of Indonesia are famous for building stilt houses 35 metres high to prevent attacks from neighbouring tribes. A stilt house may not be the height of luxury, but the architectural style is becoming popular the world over. It is particularly attractive to those who reside in warmer climates, since the buildings' height exposes residents to cool summer breezes, but they also appeal to those who care about the environment. Their narrow legs allow the tree roots to grow freely and they permit water to drain into the soil.

D The tree cabin

If you have a head for heights you may fancy staying in a tree cabin. These simple abodes are now among the most sought-after types of holiday apartments, and rightly so. They offer a romantic escape into the heart of nature, providing fine views across the forest canopy, and are frequently equipped with an outdoor hot tub where you can bathe under the stars, shielded from view by the tree branches. In the morning you can wake up to the sound of the birds singing or push open the front door to watch the sunrise from the comfort of your bed. Indoor cooking facilities are usually minimal in tree cabins, but there are barbecue facilities on the premises at ground level.

Przewodnik ucznia po egzaminie maturalnym

Ogólna charakterystyka egzaminu

Egzamin z języka obcego nowożytnego jest częścią egzaminu maturalnego przeprowadzanego na zakończenie nauki w szkole ponadpodstawowej. Stanowi on poświadczenie, że jako absolwent/absolwentka osiągnąłeś/osiągnęłaś wymagany poziom umiejętności w zakresie wybranego języka, czyli w tym przypadku języka angielskiego.

Egzamin maturalny zastępuje egzamin wstępny na te wyższe uczelnie, które wykorzystują wyniki egzaminu jako kryteria w procesie rekrutacji.

Przystąpienie do egzaminu maturalnego nie jest obowiązkowe.

Język obcy (czyli w twoim przypadku języka angielski) jest przedmiotem obowiązkowym na egzaminie. Egzamin ten składa się z części pisemnej (zdawanej na poziomie podstawowym) oraz ustnej (bez określania poziomu). Możesz również zdawać egzamin z języka obcego jako przedmiotu dodatkowego na poziomie rozszerzonym lub dwujęzycznym.

Jeśli jako przedmiot dodatkowy wybierzesz taki sam język, jak język, który będziesz zdawać jako przedmiot obowiązkowy, to w takim wypadku przystępujesz do egzaminu albo wyłącznie w części pisemnej na poziomie rozszerzonym lub dwujęzycznym, albo w części ustnej i pisemnej – wyłącznie na poziomie dwujęzycznym.

Jeśli wybierzesz inny język niż język, który będziesz zdawać jako przedmiot obowiązkowy, to wtedy zdajesz go albo wyłącznie w części ustnej na poziomie rozszerzonym lub dwujęzycznym, albo zarówno w części ustnej, jak i pisemnej. W tej drugiej sytuacji masz dwie możliwości:

- część ustną zdajesz bez określania poziomu, a część pisemną – na poziomie rozszerzonym,
- część ustną i pisemną zdajesz na poziomie dwujęzycznym.

Zakres i poziom egzaminu

Egzamin maturalny ma na celu sprawdzenie, czy i w jakim stopniu opanowałeś/opanowałaś umiejętności z zakresu danego języka obcego. Są one określone w podstawie programowej kształcenia ogólnego z 2018 roku dla III etapu edukacyjnego, czyli dla liceów ogólnokształcących i techników. Istnieją trzy warianty tej podstawy: podstawowy (III.1.P), rozszerzony (III.1.R) i dwujęzyczny (III.1.DJ). Podstawa programowa opisuje wymagania ogólne oraz szczegółowe, jakie powinien spełniać każdy uczeń kończący szkołę ponadpodstawową.

Wymagania ogólne, które określają główne cele kształcenia językowego, są następujące: znajomość środków językowych, rozumienie wypowiedzi, tworzenie wypowiedzi, reagowanie na wypowiedzi i przetwarzanie wypowiedzi. Wymagania szczegółowe zaś zawierają zakres tych umiejętności i treści nauczania.

Poziom egzaminu maturalnego określony jest wg skali Europejskiego Systemu Kształcenia Języków Obcych (ESKJO). Przedstawia się on następująco:

- na poziomie podstawowym: B1+ w zakresie tworzenia wypowiedzi i B2 w zakresie rozumienia wypowiedzi,
- na poziomie rozszerzonym: B2+ w zakresie tworzenia wypowiedzi i C1 w zakresie rozumienia wypowiedzi.

Zasady przeprowadzania egzaminu

Do 30 września jesteś zobowiązany/zobowiązana złożyć wstępną deklarację przystąpienia do egzaminu maturalnego, gdzie określasz również przedmioty, które będziesz zdawać. Deklarację ostateczną musisz złożyć do 7 lutego. Egzamin maturalny przeprowadzany jest w maju. Zdajesz go w tej szkole, którą ukończysz.

Jeśli jesteś laureatem lub finalistą olimpiady przedmiotowej z języka angielskiego, zostaniesz zwolniony/zwolniona z egzaminu maturalnego.

Pamiętaj!

- Do sali egzaminacyjnej nie wolno wnosić do żadnych urządzeń telekomunikacyjnych, np. telefonów komórkowych ani inteligentnych zegarków. Skorzystanie z któregoś z nich skutkuje unieważnieniem egzaminu w części ustnej lub pisemnej.
- Egzamin może być także unieważniony w przypadku, gdy będziesz rozwiązywać zadania niesamodzielnie lub zakłócać przebieg egzaminu.
- Salę egzaminacyjną możesz opuszczać tylko w uzasadnionych sytuacjach.
- Członkowie zespołu przedmiotowego i nadzorującego nie mogą udzielać ci wyjaśnień dotyczących egzaminu.

Wyniki egzaminu

Szczegółowe wyniki egzaminu otrzymasz na świadectwie dojrzałości. Wynik uzyskany w części ustnej wyrażony będzie w procentach, zaś w części pisemnej – w procentach i na skali centylowej. Świadectwo dojrzałości zawiera tez informację o poziomie egzaminu (w przypadku części pisemnej).

Jeżeli będziesz laureatem lub finalistą olimpiady z języka angielskiego, otrzymasz maksymalny wynik (100 %) z egzaminu maturalnego.

Wynik egzaminu z przedmiotu dodatkowego (który nie jest obowiązkowy) nie ma wpływu na zdanie egzaminu.

Jeśli nie zdasz egzaminu maturalnego, możesz przystąpić do egzaminu poprawkowego, o ile język angielski będzie jedynym przedmiotem obowiązkowym, którego nie zdasz.

Egzamin ustny

Na egzaminie ustnym język angielski będziesz zdawać jako przedmiot obowiązkowy. Możesz go jednak także zdawać jako przedmiot dodatkowy.

Egzamin ustny trwa 15 minut i ma formę rozmowy z egzaminatorem. Oprócz egzaminatora na sali obecna jest też druga osoba z zespołu przedmiotowego, która nie bierze aktywnego udziału w rozmowie.

W zestawie egzaminacyjnym, który otrzymasz, znajdują się trzy zadania, polecenia do zadań 1. i 3. oraz materiał ikonograficzny (zazwyczaj są to ilustracje) do zadań 2. i 3.

Przebieg egzaminu i charakterystyka zadań

Rozmowa wstępna (ok. 1 minuty)	Odpowiadasz na kilka pytań zadanych przez egzaminatora. Dotyczą one twoich zainteresowań.
Zadanie 1. Rozmowa z odgrywaniem roli (ok. 2 minut)	Rozmowa, w której razem z egzaminatorem odgrywacie role wyznaczone w poleceniu. Musisz odnieść się do czterech elementów wskazanych w poleceniu i rozwinąć wypowiedź.
Zadanie 2. Opis ilustracji i odpowiedzi na trzy pytania (maks. 3 minuty)	Opisujesz ilustrację. Musisz opisać przedstawione na niej miejsce, osoby i czynności. Następnie odpowiadasz na trzy pytania związane z tematyką ilustracji.
Zadanie 3. Wypowiedź na podstawie materiału stymulującego i odpowiedzi na dwa pytania (maks. 5 minut)	Wbierasz ilustrację, która najlepiej spełnia warunki wskazane w poleceniu, a następnie uzasadniasz swój wybór oraz wyjaśniasz powód odrzucenia pozostałych ilustracji. Odpowiadasz również na dwa pytania egzaminującego związane z tematyką materiału stymulującego.

Pamiętaj!

- Podczas egzaminu ważne jest, abyś nie odpowiadał/nie odpowiadała jednym zdaniem, lecz budował/budowała dłuższe i bardziej złożone wypowiedzi.
- Powinieneś/powinnaś także we właściwy sposób reagować na wypowiedzi egzaminatora. Są to elementy, które również podlegają ocenie.

Egzamin pisemny

Na egzaminie pisemnym język angielski jest zdawany jako przedmiot obowiązkowy na poziomie podstawowym oraz może być zdawany jako przedmiot dodatkowy na poziomie rozszerzonym.

Egzamin na poziomie podstawowym trwa 120 minut, a na poziomie rozszerzonym – 150 minut.

Część pisemna egzaminu składa się z czterech części:

- rozumienie ze słuchu,
- rozumienie tekstów pisanych,
- znajomość środków językowych,
- wypowiedź pisemna.

Zadania w arkuszu egzaminacyjnym

Arkusz egzaminacyjny składa się z zadań zamkniętych i otwartych.

Zadania zamknięte

Zadania zamknięte są takie same dla poziomu podstawowego i rozszerzonego. W przypadku zadań na rozumienie ze słuchu i rozumienie tekstów pisanych odpowiedzi należy udzielić w oparciu o wysłuchany lub przeczytany tekst.

Istnieją dwa główne typy zadań zamkniętych:

- Zadania na dobieranie

Twoim zadaniem będzie dopasowanie do siebie różnych elementów, np. osób do wypowiedzi, nagłówków do akapitów, zadań do luk w tekście, wyrazów do luk w tekście, odpowiedzi do pytań oraz wypowiedzi do zdań. W zadaniach tego typu musisz pamiętać o tym, że jeden element lub kilka elementów, które należy dopasować (np. zdanie lub tekst) są podane dodatkowo i nie będą w ogóle wykorzystane w zadaniu. Ponadto jeden z elementów może pasować do dwóch z tych, do których dopasowujesz (np. jeden tekst może pasować do dwóch pytań).

Do każdej wypowiedzi dopasuj odpowiadające jej zdanie. Jedno zdanie zostało podane dodatkowo i nie pasuje do żadnej wypowiedzi.

- Zadania wyboru wielokrotnego

Twoim zadaniem będzie wybranie jednej spośród podanych opcji odpowiedzi. Mogą to być na przykład wyrazy lub zwroty uzupełniające lukę, zakończenia zdań, odpowiedzi na pytania, a także tłumaczenia zaznaczonych fragmentów zdań.

Usłyszysz dwukrotnie trzy teksty. Z podanych odpowiedzi wybierz właściwą, zgodną z treścią nagrania.

Zadania otwarte

W tego rodzaju zadaniach będziesz musiał/musiała samodzielnie sformułować odpowiedź, pamiętając o tym, że wpisywany tekst musi być poprawny pod względem gramatycznym i ortograficznym. Typy zadań otwartych są takie same dla poziomu podstawowego i rozszerzonego, z wyjątkiem wypowiedzi pisemnej.

Poszczególne typy zadań zależą od części egzaminu i są następujące:

- zadania z luką – polegają one na wpisaniu wyrazów w luki, tak aby poprawnie uzupełnić tekst; niekiedy podany jest limit wyrazów do wpisania; w przypadku zadań na rozumienie ze słuchu i rozumienie tekstu pisanego, uzupełniasz luki w oparciu o przeczytany lub wysłuchany tekst;

Przeczytaj tekst. Uzupełnij każdą lukę jednym wyrazem, tak aby powstał spójny i logiczny tekst. Wymagana jest pełna poprawność gramatyczna i ortograficzna wpisywanych wyrazów.

- odpowiedzi na pytania – polegają na udzieleniu jednozdaniowej odpowiedzi na pytania do tekstu lub uzupełnieniu odpowiedzi częściowo już podanej;

Usłyszysz dwukrotnie trzy teksty. Na podstawie informacji zawartych w nagraniu odpowiedz na pytania, tak aby jak najbardziej precyzyjnie oddać sens wysłuchanego tekstu. Na pytania należy odpowiedzieć w języku angielskim.

- tłumaczenie – twoim zadaniem jest przetłumaczenie fragmentu zdania przy zachowaniu określonego limitu wyrazów;

Przetłumacz na język angielski fragmenty podane w nawiasach, tak aby otrzymać logiczne i gramatycznie poprawne zdania. Wymagana jest pełna poprawność ortograficzna wpisywanych fragmentów zdań.

- transformacja (parafraza) – twoim zadaniem jest sparafrazowanie wskazanego fragmentu zdania, tak aby oddać sens zdania wyjściowego; trzeba także pamiętać o zachowaniu określonego limitu wyrazów;

Wykorzystując wyrazy podane drukowanymi literami, uzupełnij każde zdanie z luką, tak aby zachować sens zdania wyjściowego. W każdą lukę można wpisać maksymalnie pięć wyrazów, wliczając wyraz już podany. Wymagana jest pełna poprawność ortograficzna i gramatyczna wpisywanych fragmentów zdań. Nie zmieniaj formy podanych wyrazów.

- słowotwórstwo – zadanie to polega na przekształceniu podanego wyrazu tak, aby pasował do reszty zdania (a tekst musi być spójny i logiczny);

Przeczytaj tekst. Uzupełnij każdą lukę, przekształcając jeden z wyrazów z ramki w taki sposób, aby powstał spójny i logiczny tekst. Wymagana jest pełna poprawność gramatyczna i ortograficzna wpisywanych wyrazów.

- gramatykalizacja – twoim zadaniem będzie uzupełnienie zdania z wykorzystaniem wyrazów w nawiasach w odpowiedniej formie; nie można zmieniać kolejności tych wyrazów, ale można dodawać inne słowa; trzeba pamiętać o zachowaniu podanego limit wyrazów;

Uzupełnij zdania. Wykorzystaj w odpowiedniej formie podane w nawiasach wyrazy. Nie należy zmieniać kolejności podanych wyrazów, trzeba natomiast – jeżeli jest to konieczne – dodać inne wyrazy, tak aby otrzymać logiczne i gramatycznie poprawne zdania. Wymagana jest pełna poprawność ortograficzna wpisywanych fragmentów.

- set leksykalny – zadanie polegające na wpisaniu jednego takiego samego słowa, które jest poprawnym uzupełnieniem trzech podanych zdań.

Wpisz obok numeru zadania wyraz, który poprawnie uzupełnia wszystkie trzy zdania. Wymagana jest pełna poprawność ortograficzna wpisywanych wyrazów.

Odrębnym zadaniem otwartym w arkuszu egzaminacyjnym jest wypowiedź pisemna. Będziesz miał/miała za zadanie stworzyć własną wypowiedź w określonej w poleceniu formie i przy zachowaniu podanego limitu słów. Formy pracy pisemnej, charakterystyka zadania i długość wypowiedzi różnią się w zależności od tego, czy zdajesz egzamin na poziomie podstawowym czy rozszerzonym. W poleceniu do tego zadania opisana jest sytuacja, w której masz się znaleźć jako osoba posługująca się językiem angielskim.

Zadania w arkuszu egzaminacyjnym oparte są na różnorodnych tekstach oryginalnych lub adaptowanych (w przypadku egzaminu na poziomie rozszerzonym są to teksty minimalnie adaptowane). Dotyczy to zarówno zadań sprawdzających rozumienie ze słuchu, jak i rozumienie tekstów pisanych. Zadania nawiązują do sytuacji, z którymi mógłbyś/mogłabyś się zetknąć podczas pobytu za granicą, np. w kontaktach z rówieśnikami z innych krajów.

Zasady oceniania zadań egzaminacyjnych

Część pisemna

Część pisemna egzaminu oceniana jest przez egzaminatorów okręgowej komisji egzaminacyjnej.

Za każde poprawne rozwiązanie zadania z arkusza egzaminacyjnego sprawdzającego rozumienie ze słuchu, rozumienie tekstów pisanych i znajomość środków językowych otrzymasz maksymalnie 1 punkt.

W zadaniach sprawdzających rozumienie ze słuchu i tekstów pisanych twoim zadaniem jest udzielenie odpowiedzi, która jest komunikatywna i zgodna z poleceniem. Nie będą akceptowane błędy, które zmieniają znaczenie wyrazu, a także odpowiedzi niejasne, nieprecyzyjne lub niejednoznaczne. Dopuszcza się błędy w wyrazach o niskiej frekwencji, o ile nie zakłócają one komunikacji.

W przypadku zadań otwartych, sprawdzających znajomość środków językowych, twoja odpowiedź musi być w pełni poprawna pod względem gramatycznym i ortograficznym. Zakres środków językowych, które powinieneś/powinnaś opanować, został przedstawiony w Informatorze maturalnym o egzaminie z języka angielskiego.

Wypowiedź pisemna oceniana jest według określonych kryteriów. W przypadku poziomu rozszerzonego pierwsze kryterium jest inne niż dla poziomu podstawowego.

Kryteria oceny wypowiedzi pisemnej są następujące:

- Treść (0–5 punktów) – tylko dla poziomu podstawowego. Punktacja jest zależna od tego, do ilu z czterech podpunktów odniesiesz się w swojej wypowiedzi i ile z nich rozwiniesz. Za podpunkt, do którego się odniesiesz, uznana będzie komunikatywna wypowiedź, która w minimalnym stopniu odnosi się do jednego z podpunktów polecenia. Z kolei podpunkt, który rozwiniesz, to taki, do którego odniesiesz się w sposób bardziej szczegółowy. Przykładowo, za odniesienie się do trzech podpunktów i rozwinięcie dwóch z nich, otrzymasz 3 punkty. Pamiętaj, aby nie tworzyć wypowiedzi poprzez odpowiadanie na pytania zawarte w podpunktach, gdyż w takim przypadku punktacja zostanie obniżona.
- Zgodność z poleceniem (0–5 punktów) – tylko dla poziomu rozszerzonego. Ocenie podlegają elementy treści i formy w twojej wypowiedzi pisemnej oraz jakość ich realizacji. W przypadku treści punkty otrzymasz za pięć elementów: wstęp (właściwe i adekwatne rozpoczęcie wypowiedzi), pierwszy element tematu, drugi element tematu, podsumowanie (właściwe i adekwatne zakończenie wypowiedzi) oraz fragmenty odbiegające od tematu. Oceniane elementy formy to z kolei elementy charakterystyczne dla danej formy wypowiedzi, kompozycja, segmentacja i długość pracy. Ostateczną liczbę punktów za zgodność z poleceniem ustala się na podstawie specjalnej tabeli. Na przykład za wypowiedź, w której przyznano by 5 punktów za elementy treści i 2 punkty za elementy formy, otrzymałbyś/otrzymałabyś 1 punkt.
- Spójność i logika wypowiedzi (0–2 punktów). Punktacja jest zależna od klarowności wypowiedzi. Egzaminator ocenia, czy twoja wypowiedź funkcjonuje dzięki jasnym powiązaniom leksykalnym i gramatycznym wewnątrz zdań, między nimi, a także między akapitami. Przykładowe zaburzenia spójności i logiki to np. brak połączenia wypowiedzi z początkiem tekstu, brak połącznia między poszczególnymi częściami tekstu, błędy powodujące niekomunikatywność, a także powoływanie się na argumenty sprzeczne z zasadami rozumowania.
- Zakres środków językowych (0–3 punktów). Liczba zdobytych punktów zależy od tego, jak bardzo zróżnicowany jest twój zakres środków leksykalnych i językowych. Wpływ na ocenę ma także liczba precyzyjnych sformułowań i środków językowych o wysokim stopniu pospolitości. Akceptuje się drobne błędy ortograficzne.
- Poprawność środków językowych (0–2 punktów dla poziomu podstawowego oraz 0–3 punktów dla poziomu rozszerzonego). Oceniane są błędy gramatyczne, leksykalne i ortograficzne, które wpływają na komunikatywność wypowiedzi.

Ponadto nie otrzymasz żadnych punktów za żadne z wymienionych kryteriów, jeśli twoja wypowiedź będzie nieczytelna, całkowicie niezgodna z poleceniem, niekomunikatywna lub odtworzona z innego źródła, np. z podręcznika. Jeśli otrzymasz 0 punktów za elementy treści, to za wszystkie pozostałe kryteria również nie dostaniesz żadnych punktów. Jeśli zaś uzyskasz tylko 1 punkt za treść, możesz dostać również maksymalnie 1 punkt za wszystkie pozostałe kryteria. Wypowiedź, która zawiera tylko 80 słów lub mniej, w przypadku poziomu podstawowego, a 160 słów w przypadku poziomu rozszerzonego, jest oceniana tylko w kryterium treści. Za pozostałe kryteria nie otrzymasz żadnych punktów.

Część ustna

Część ustna oceniana jest przez członków zespołu przedmiotowego, zgodnie z następującymi kryteriami:

- Sprawność komunikacyjna (0–6 punktów za każde zadanie). Oceniany jest stopień, w jakim odniosłeś/odniosłaś się do czterech wskazanych punktów w każdym zadaniu, a także to, jak je rozwinąłeś/rozwinęłaś. Ocenie podlega również to, czy twoja wypowiedź jest adekwatna do tematu, kontekstu i wypowiedzi egzaminatora, a także ewentualny zakres pomocy z jego strony.
- Zakres środków leksykalno-gramatycznych (0–4 punkty). Oceniane jest zróżnicowanie struktur językowych, których używasz, oraz swoboda wypowiedzi na tematy proste i złożone. Na ocenę wpływa także to, czy stosujesz struktury o wysokim stopniu pospolitości.
- Poprawność środków leksykalno-gramatycznych (0–4 punktów). Ocenie podlega liczba ewentualnych błędów leksykalnych i gramatycznych oraz ich wpływ na komunikatywność.
- Wymowa (0–2 punktów). Oceniana jest poprawność twojej wymowy poszczególnych głosek, a także akcentu i intonacji.
- Płynność wypowiedzi (0–2 punktów). Pod uwagę brane są pauzy w twojej wypowiedzi, ich częstotliwość i naturalność oraz to, w jakim stopniu wpływają na komunikację.

Jak efektywnie przygotować się do egzaminu

Arkusze egzaminacyjne

W przygotowaniu do egzaminu pomocne będą arkusze egzaminacyjne – zarówno te będące częścią niniejszego kursu, jak i te dostępne na stronie internetowej Centralnej Komisji Egzaminacyjnej (CKE). Rozwiązywanie zadań z arkusza pomoże ci zapoznać się z formułą egzaminu. Nabierzesz też wprawy w rozwiązywaniu poszczególnych typów zadań.

Arkusze egzaminacyjne na stronie CKE zawierają stronę tytułową, z którą powinieneś/powinnaś zapoznać się przed egzaminem. Znajdziesz tam informację m.in. o tym, że musisz przenieść rozwiązania zadań na kartę odpowiedzi. Wskazane jest również, abyś przynajmniej raz rozwiązał/rozwiązała przykładowy arkusz w całości i przeniósł/przeniosła swoje odpowiedzi na kartę.

Efektywne wykorzystanie czasu na egzaminie

Podczas egzaminu pisemnego powinieneś/powinnaś samodzielnie zaplanować, jak rozłożysz czas przeznaczony na rozwiązanie poszczególnych zadań (wyjątkiem są zadania sprawdzające rozumienie ze słuchu).

- Od samego początku przygotowania do egzaminu staraj się efektywnie wykorzystać czas przeznaczony na rozwiązanie arkusza. Pamiętaj, że np. zadania otwarte wymagają z reguły więcej czasu niż zadania zamknięte.
- Ważne jest także efektywne wykorzystanie czasu na zapoznanie się z treścią zadania. Pamiętaj, aby zawsze przeczytać wszystkie zadania, czyli nie tylko pytania, ale również np. odpowiedzi wielokrotnego wyboru. W ten sposób dowiesz się, o czym będzie mowa w nagraniu lub tekście, a także zorientujesz się, na czym powinieneś/powinnaś się skupić.

Rozwiązywanie zadań zamkniętych

Podczas ćwiczenia rozwiązywania zadań zamkniętych pamiętaj o tym, że:

- W zadaniach wielokrotnego wyboru powinieneś/powinnaś kierować się strategią, według której podczas pierwszego słuchania lub czytania zaznaczasz wyłącznie odpowiedzi, co do których masz stuprocentową pewność, że są prawidłowe. Dopiero w trakcie ponownego słuchania lub czytania należy skupić się na fragmentach dotyczących pozostałych pytań.
- W zadaniach na dobieranie powinieneś/powinnaś pamiętać o tym, że jeden element lub kilka elementów mogą być podane dodatkowo i nie należy ich wykorzystywać w zadaniu.

Rozwiązywanie zadań otwartych

Podczas ćwiczenia rozwiązywania zadań otwartych pamiętaj o tym, że:

- Powinieneś/powinnaś zawsze bardzo uważnie przeczytać polecenie. Przeoczona informacja np. o języku, w jakim należy uzupełnić luki, lub o liczbie wyrazów do wpisania, może skutkować zerową punktacją, nawet jeśli twoja odpowiedź jest gramatycznie poprawna.
- Przy rozwiązywaniu zadań może być konieczne przeformułowanie usłyszanego lub przeczytanego tekstu, tak aby dopasować go do kontekstu zdania.
- Do zadań egzaminacyjnych należą także takie zadania otwarte, w których należy zachować określony limit wpisywanych wyrazów podany w poleceniu (np. tłumaczenie, gramatykalizacja, transformacja). W przypadku przekroczenia tego limitu odpowiedź nie będzie punktowana, nawet jeśli będzie gramatycznie poprawna.

Przygotowanie do tworzenia wypowiedzi pisemnej

- Aby dobrze przygotować się do stworzenia wypowiedzi pisemnej na poziomie podstawowym, powinieneś/powinnaś wykonywać takie zadania, w których – oprócz udzielania informacji – przećwiczysz również inne ważne funkcje językowe, takie jak udzielanie rady, proponowanie, ostrzeganie itp.
- Aby skutecznie przygotować się do tworzenia wypowiedzi na poziomie rozszerzonym, powinieneś/powinnaś dobrze poznać strukturę i cechy charakterystyczne rozprawki, artykułu i listu formalnego, ponieważ za te elementy przyznawane są punkty.
- Niezależnie od tego, na jakim poziomie będziesz zdawać egzamin, warto zawsze pamiętać, aby zwracać uwagę na cząstkowe oceny pracy podane przez nauczyciela. Odzwierciedlają one poszczególne kryteria, które stosowane są na egzaminie. Pomoże to ci zorientować się, nad czym powinieneś/powinnaś się skoncentrować w dalszej nauce.

Ćwiczenie wypowiedzi ustnych

Egzamin ustny dla niektórych uczniów może być szczególnie stresujący, dlatego warto oswajać się z sytuacją egzaminacyjną, gdy jest to możliwe.

- Na samym początku roku szkolnego warto obejrzeć nagrania wideo przedstawiające przykładowy egzamin ustny. To dobra okazja, by zobaczyć, jak może wyglądać taki egzamin w rzeczywistości. Możesz obejrzeć np. film do tego kursu dostępny na stronie internetowej ucznia. Po obejrzeniu samego egzaminu dobrze jest również wysłuchać nagrania z komentarzem eksperta, a także zastanowić się, jak ty odpowiedziałbyś/odpowiedziałabyś na pytania egzaminatora.
- Zadania egzaminacyjne można również ćwiczyć w parach w klasie. Ty możesz odegrać rolę zdającego, a twój kolega lub twoja koleżanka – rolę egzaminatora. Następnie zamieniacie się rolami. W ten sposób masz okazję nie tylko przećwiczyć samą rozmowę, ale także lepiej przygotować się do sytuacji egzaminacyjnej, co może pomóc ci zapanować nad emocjami i zmniejszyć poziom stresu.
- Na początku roku szkolnego warto zapoznać się z zasadami oceniania wypowiedzi ustnej. Dowiesz się z nich, co jest najważniejszym aspektem w danej części egzaminu i na czym należy się skoncentrować. Pamiętaj np. o tym, że nadrzędnym celem w zadaniu polegającym na opisie ilustracji nie jest sam opis, ale uzasadnienie swojego wyboru, a w rozmowie z odrywaniem roli szczególnie ważne jest właściwe reagowanie na wypowiedzi egzaminatora.

W trakcie nauki pamiętaj o tym, że:

- oprócz poprawności językowej bardzo ważny na egzaminie jest zasób opanowanego słownictwa, a więc powinieneś/powinnaś regularnie wzbogacać zakres swojego słownictwa – przydatne będzie skorzystanie z tematyki określonej w podstawie programowej,
- warto w szczególności ćwiczyć te funkcje językowe, które będą zawsze przydatne podczas egzaminu (wyrażanie opinii, uzasadnianie jej, zgadzanie lub niezgadzanie się),
- jeśli zapomnisz na egzaminie jakiegoś wyrazu, nie powinieneś / nie powinnaś przerywać mówienia (może skutkować to obniżeniem punktacji za płynność wypowiedzi), ale starać się zawsze opisać go własnymi słowami.

Życzymy powodzenia!

Warm up
- Ask students in what situations do they fill out forms and what type of information the forms include.

Exercise 1

Optional activity
Students can copy the form and role-play being an interviewee and interviewer. Before they do so, go through the form and as a class consider how they can ask for personal information politely, e.g. Can you tell me your name, please? Could you tell me where you are from? Do you mind giving me your telephone number?

Exercise 3

Mixed ability
Bring a set of pictures to class and help less confident students with the vocabulary by having them identify the features. Show students a picture and say, e.g. She's middle-aged, has freckles and long, curly hair.
More confident students can use the new vocabulary to describe family members or famous people.

Exercise 7
• Have students work in small groups to complete the exercise and then add more words to the table.

Exercise 9

Optional activity
In pairs, students discuss when they last felt the adjectives in exercise 8. Then they share their ideas with the class.

Exercise 10
• As a class, have students give different sentences about themselves using the expressions from the exercise.

Exercise 12

Differentiation
Have students try to complete the text without looking at the word box first. Then they can check to see if they have used the words in the box.

Exercise 13

Optional activity
After students have completed the exercise, discuss each stage of life and how people feel at each stage using the new vocabulary. For example, in adulthood people can be ambitious but insecure about their future. Middle-aged people are usually more realistic about life, while teenagers tend to be unrealistic because they don't have a lot of experience.

1 Rozumienie tekstów pisanych

Dobieranie nagłówków do części tekstu

1 Odpowiedzcie w parach na poniższe pytania.

1 What do you enjoy about learning English and other languages? What do you dislike?
2 Do you think Polish is an easy language for foreigners to learn? Why? / Why not?
3 Read the quotes below. Do you agree with them?

> You can never understand one language until you understand at least two. (Geoffrey Willans)

> Learning another language is not only learning different words for the same things, but learning another way to think about things. (Flora Lewis)

> One should not aim at being possible to understand but at being impossible to misunderstand. (Marcus Fabius Quintilian)

2 Przeczytaj wskazówkę. Następnie przeczytaj nagłówki A–F z ćwiczenia 3 i znajdź w nich słowa kluczowe. Czego mogą dotyczyć akapity pasujące do poszczególnych nagłówków?

Funkcją nagłówków jest zazwyczaj podsumowanie informacji podanych w danej części tekstu. Znajdź w nagłówkach słowa kluczowe i zastanów się, jak w inny sposób informacje w nich zawarte mogły zostać wyrażone w tekście.

3 Przeczytaj tekst. Dobierz właściwy nagłówek (A–F) do każdej części tekstu (1–4). Dwa nagłówki zostały podane dodatkowo i nie pasują do żadnej części tekstu.

A Your language may affect your lifestyle
B Your emotions stay the same
C Languages shape the way you feel
D Confident now to say what I think
E A new language helps you make new friends
F Languages change how you see the world around you

4 Przedyskutujcie w parach poniższe zagadnienia.

1 Do you think or feel different when you speak English? How would you describe the difference?
2 You've been learning English for several years now. How has it changed the way you see the world?

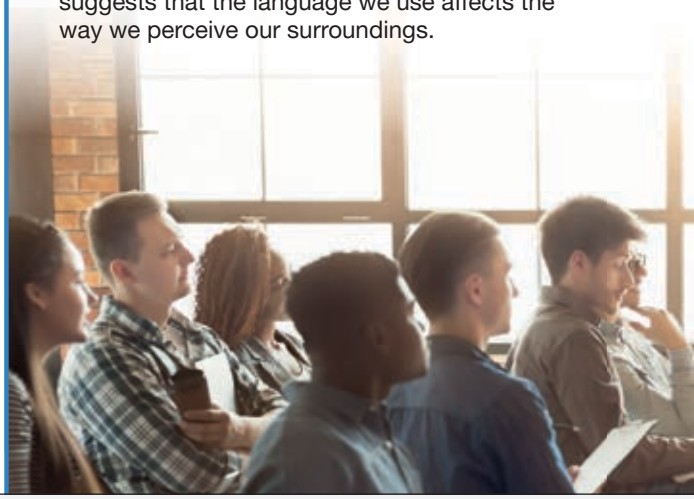

Do we think differently in different languages?

1 D

For the last two years, I have been living in Bydgoszcz and learning Polish. To my surprise, I am a quite different person when I am speaking my new second language. Usually, I am rather nervous in English when asking people to do things for me. I always worry about being impolite and accidentally offending them! However, Polish is more direct and that makes it much more simple for me to express myself without falling out with other people. In fact, I can happily stand up in a room full of strangers and state exactly what I need. I love it! I'd definitely be much more reserved in English. This raises the question: do we think differently when we speak different languages?

2 F

It turns out that this has been a big academic argument for some time. After a lot of research, the experts have eventually found evidence that our language may actually define how we think. For example, many European languages use gender: in Spanish, a bridge is masculine (un puente), but in German, it is feminine (eine Brücke). When experts asked a number of ordinary people to talk about bridges, the German speakers tended to use more feminine adjectives, such as 'elegant'. However, the Spanish speakers preferred masculine ones like 'strong'. It clearly suggests that the language we use affects the way we perceive our surroundings.

Warm up
• Ask students what language means to them. Is it simply something they use to communicate, or does it involve learning different things as well, like culture, traditions, and so forth?

Exercise 1

Optional activity
Students can research more quotes on language or make up their own quotes.

Exercise 3

Mixed ability
With less confident students, go through each item and discuss what the main idea is, e.g. lifestyle can be affected negatively if you do not understand the language, or positively as it can help you learn new things.
More confident groups can give personal examples for each item.

Exercise 4

Optional activity
Students can share positive, negative or funny personal experiences they have had with the English language.

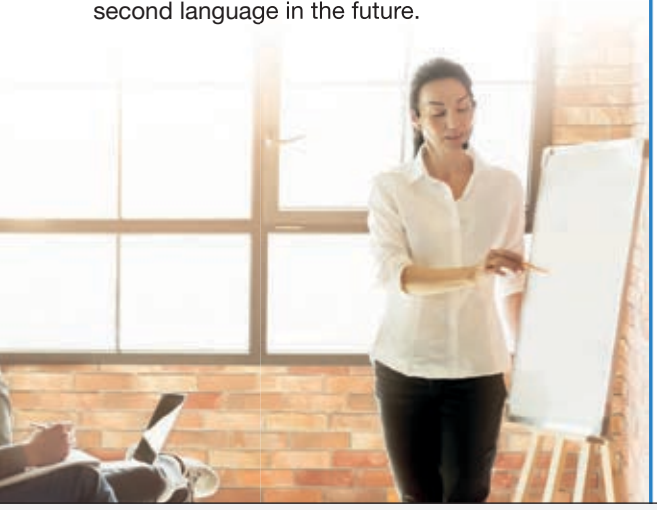

3 A

English has very clear present and future forms, but not all languages have the same grammar. American economist Keith Chen compared speakers of 36 languages. He discovered that if your language makes little difference between the present and future, you tend to live better. You are more likely to save money and to do regular exercise. Why? One explanation is that people consider the future as already happening now, which encourages them to watch out for health hazards or money problems. For them, these issues need to be taken care of now, and not at some distant point in the future.

4 B

Language research has taken off in recent decades and we will clearly learn more in the future. It follows from my personal experience, though, that while language does change the way you think about the world, time and people in a particular way, it doesn't seem to change the way you feel. If a friend tells you about their troubles, you'll be sympathetic whatever language you use. Look at my example above, however. In English, it's not necessary to say if a 'friend' is male or female, but it would be in Spanish or German. As I carry on with my Polish lessons, I'm now keen to see how, if at all, my personality will change when speaking my second language in the future.

Dobieranie zdań do luk w tekście

11 Przeczytaj wskazówkę, a następnie tekst. W zdaniach następujących po lukach w tekście znajdź słowa, które odnoszą się do uprzednio podanych informacji.

Aby poprawnie dopasować zdania do luk w tekście, należy najpierw odnaleźć w nim słowa, które odnoszą się do informacji podanych w usuniętych zdaniach. Mogą to być:

- zaimki wskazujące, np. this, that, these lub those
- zaimki osobowe i dzierżawcze, np. he, him lub his
- określenia miejsc, np. here lub there
- określenia czasu, np. then lub when.

Postaraj się odnaleźć w podanych zdaniach informacje, do których odnoszą się te słowa.

12 Przeczytaj tekst, z którego usunięto pięć zdań (A–F). Dopasuj je do właściwych luk (1–5), tak aby otrzymać spójny i logiczny tekst. Jedno zdanie zostało podane dodatkowo.

A For instance, she wore a ring to the inauguration that contained the image of a bird in a cage.

B Clearly this had required enormous courage on her part.

C It was once a struggle for Gorman to pronounce the letter r, putting pressure on her whenever she wanted to speak in public.

D She was well aware that she would soon be reading it at the same spot where these events were taking place.

E Indeed, Gorman's talent had been already recognized by people in the know some time before.

F That afternoon, the whole country was watching, and suddenly her name was on everybody's lips.

Who is Amanda Gorman?

On Wednesday 20 January, 2021, twenty-two-year-old poet Amanda Gorman achieved instant fame. The new president of the USA, Joe Biden, had invited her to speak at his inauguration in Washington, D.C. The poem that Gorman read there, 'The Hill We Climb', astonished the audience. [1] F Instantly, she stopped being just a writer, and started being a literary sensation.

'The Hill We Climb' could not be more contemporary. Earlier that month, an aggressive crowd of protestors had attacked the Capitol in Washington, D.C., and Gorman was watching the scenes on TV at home while working on her poem. [2] D Although shocked by what was happening there, she refused to make the final version too critical and negative. Instead, its message became one of hope and equality, one that calls on Americans to stand up for their rights and defend their freedom of speech.

The inauguration was a huge moment for a girl who had been raised in a poor area by a hard-working single mother, but not a completely unexpected one. [3] E Among these were the organizers of the Super Bowl, and they had asked her if she wanted to speak during the game. Unfortunately, she was not able to go to Florida in person owing to the ongoing coronavirus situation. Nevertheless, she did record a video message that was shown at the Super Bowl, featuring an all-new poem titled 'Chorus of the Captains'. This showed her admiration for the country's ordinary healthcare workers who at that time were still determinedly struggling to contain the pandemic.

While Gorman's work is extremely modern, she does not write in a vacuum. [4] A This represented a line from one of the most famous poems by Maya Angelou. It was Gorman's way of showing respect to the first African American poet to speak at a presidential inauguration, a writer and a poet that Gorman looks up to. Other contemporary works of art, like the musical Hamilton, also inspire Amanda, sometimes in unexpected ways. [5] C So she practiced this sound by repeatedly singing the song 'Aaron Burr, Sir' from the hit show. Early in his career, Joe Biden himself had been insecure about a speech problem, a stutter, so this was also something that connected her to the new president.

Super Bowl is the most important game and annual championship of American football.

Maya Angelou (1928–2014) was an American poet and writer who fought to improve the rights of women and people of colour.

Hamilton is a 2015 musical about the historical American politician Alexander Hamilton.

A stutter is a speech problem where you keep saying the same sound, especially the first consonant of words.

Exercise 12
• After reading the text, ask students what things make them feel insecure when speaking in public or speaking a foreign language, and what they can do to overcome them.

Differentiation
Before completing the exercise, have students read through each paragraph and say what it is about and what they think the missing sentence will contain. Students then work in pairs to complete the exercise.

Culture note
Amanda Gorman is a graduate of Harvard University and an advocate for feminism and race as well as for Africans all over the world. In 2015 she published her first book of poetry, The One for Whom Food Is Not Enough, and in 2017 she was named National Youth Poet Laureate.

Przeczytaj uważnie zadanie, aby zorientować się, jaką rolę masz odegrać i jakie konkretnie informacje masz przekazać. Postaraj się omówić każdą z kwestii przynajmniej w dwóch zdaniach.

Będąc na kursie językowym w Londynie poznałeś/poznałaś interesującą osobę. Opowiadasz o niej swojemu przyjacielowi / swojej przyjaciółce. W rozmowie omów następujące kwestie:
- okoliczności waszego spotkania
- zachowanie nowo poznanej osoby
- wspólne zainteresowania
- plany na spotkanie w przyszłości.

Rozmowę rozpoczynasz ty.

A: So, how did you meet your new friend?
B: I met her in class. The teacher divided us into groups, so that we could get to know each other a bit more. [1] C
A: What was she like?
B: Well, at first she seemed a bit shy, but then she opened up. [2] B She focused on what they said and offered great advice.
A: And what is she into?
B: Actually, we have so many things in common. Hana is mad about music and books. [3] E
A: It's a pity the course was over in a few days.
B: Yes, it is, but I've already invited Hana to visit me in Poland. [4] F We could all go to a gig together.

A I always feel embarrassed to talk about myself.
B I liked the way she talked about her family and listened to other students.
C Hana was in the same group as me.
D I love hanging out with my friends.
E We even like the same bands.
F I can't wait to introduce her to my friends.

How to learn vocabulary

- Ask students to choose ten words or phrases from the wordlist that they find interesting or have difficulty learning. They write definitions of these in English as best they can.
- They work in pairs and swap their definitions with their partner, who has to read them and find the correct words.
- Students check their answers in pairs. Ask several pairs to read some of their definitions in class for the other students to find the words.

Brainpower

- Give students a few strips of paper and ask them to make eight flashcards with words they have the most difficulty learning or remembering from this unit. They can then test each other with these words. One student shows the word for the other student to make a sentence.

Sprawdź się!

Optional activity
Students can make a vocab quiz to play with their partner or in small groups. Each student writes a sentence with one key vocabulary word missing for their group members to guess.

BRAINPOWER

Dobrym sposobem uczenia się nowego słownictwa jest korzystanie z fiszek. Napisz nowe słowo na jednej stronie karty, a zdanie przykładowe z wykorzystaniem tego słowa – na drugiej stronie. Fiszki możesz także wykorzystać do przypomnienia sobie, w jaki sposób dane wyrażenie jest używane w kontekście.

Sprawdź się!

1 W każdym zdaniu wskaż właściwy wyraz.

1 Maggie's keen in / (on) / about sailing; she spends all her holidays on a boat.
2 A true friend is always (loyal) / secure / reliable to you.
3 Do you (mind) / stand / annoy getting up early?
4 I hate talking to people I don't know well. I'm too astonished / envious / (shy).
5 Little Jimmy is mad of / (about) / with football. He wants to become another Beckham.
6 My mother says I'm too (immature) / impatient / unrealistic to get married and start a family.
7 Helen felt terribly jealous / (embarrassed) / selfish when she had to explain her mistake.
8 Please forgive me (for) / on / with being so rude.

Warm up
- Ask students what their ideal home would be like and what type of furniture it would have, how many rooms, and so forth.

Exercise 2

Optional activity
Students can add more items to each category that are not listed in the word box. Then they share their ideas with the class.

Exercise 4
- In pairs, students describe their home and neighbourhood as best they can, using the vocabulary in the table.

Exercise 5
- When they have finished the activity, students can make their own gapped sentences for their partner to guess the words.

Differentiation
Practice new vocabulary by placing students in small groups. Using vocabulary from exercises 2 and 4, students say a word for their group members to say what category it falls into, e.g. attic – parts of a house.

- B They deserve more respect.
- C They shouldn't feel ashamed of their children.
- (D) They are wrong to get angry about mess.

5 What is the main idea of the article?
- (A) Messy rooms don't need to be a problem.
- B People disagree about the meaning of 'messy'.
- C We shouldn't leave our rooms in a mess.
- D Tidy rooms make life and relationships simpler.

Is it best to leave a mess?

When the furniture company BedSOS recently announced a 'messiest bedroom' photo competition, they received 300 submissions. They showed carpets of dirty clothes, wet towels, empty take-away containers and empty chests of drawers with the contents in huge piles on top. Should the owners of these bedrooms start tidying up?

Most people agree that messy spaces are not good for us. They make us distracted and anxious. They also make it very difficult to vacuum and wipe down dusty surfaces. Meanwhile, dirty bowls and cups may attract harmful mould and bacteria. Researchers have also discovered that people who live in messy spaces go out for exercise less and sleep worse than people who are tidier.

However, not everyone prefers an orderly environment. Some of the most successful people in history didn't mind a mess. Sigmund Freud apparently said: 'Don't clean up the mess. I know exactly where everything is.' Generally, it seems that people with relaxed personalities feel quite at home in less orderly spaces. Evidence also shows that spending time in messy spaces makes us feel the need to create new things and try new ideas, which is perfect for artists.

Of course, we should also consider visitors. They usually expect some level of tidiness and may judge a messy person to be less friendly. A tidy room may increase our appeal on social media, too. But should we care about appearances? A fashion magazine recently asked if messy bedrooms are becoming a trend and argued that Instagram pictures of messy rooms show that a person feels confident and cool. They also provide information about the person to help us learn about them and start conversations.

A more serious problem is that relationships with parents can break down as a result of the mess in children's rooms. Parents tend to think that messy bedrooms are out of order, and argue that

Warm up
- Do a class survey on who is messy, tidy or somewhere in the middle.

Exercise 2
- Remind students that they should analyse all the item options before choosing the answers.

Mixed ability
Before completing the exercise, ask less confident students to read through each paragraph and discuss the ideas in the text.
More confident groups can explain why the other options are incorrect.

Exam tip
Tell students that if they get stuck on one question, it is best to move on to the next question and then go back to answer the question they had difficulty with.

in their house they should be the ones to make the rules. A British radio presenter recently posted an image of his 19-year-old daughter's bedroom online to make her feel ashamed, and commented that it was 'completely unacceptable'. Many parents share this attitude and they order their children to tidy up because they think a mess demonstrates a lack of respect for them.

However, some psychologists suggest a messy bedroom is a way for teens to reflect their independence while they are growing up, and it is surely better than rebelling with bad behaviour. Also, tidying is a tall order for busy students. Arguably, if a parent could calm down and discuss the problem, as well as tolerate a degree of mess, they would enjoy a better relationship with their children.

All in all, it might be a good idea to hang up those wet towels in order to make life simpler. However, we should tolerate some mess and prevent it becoming a source of shame.

2 suggest that the popularity of the place is well-deserved? D
3 refer to the house being used as a method of protection against other people? C
4 mention subtle variations in living conditions that are caused by seasonal change? A
5 point to the interplay between the design and nature? C

House hunting, high and low

Most of us would say it's sensible to live firmly on the ground. However, not all architects share this view. Here are a selection of housing designs that offer a less conventional perspective.

A The cave house

Cave houses are some of the oldest dwellings in the world and used to provide low-cost accommodation for agricultural workers. However, many have now been renovated into luxury residences and are certainly not cheap. That said, if you lived in a cave complex, you would probably save on the costs of air conditioning and heating. Their incredibly thick walls make them cosy in the winter while they remain protected from the summer heat. The temperature inside typically varies only four or five degrees during the year. And although they aren't ideal if you prefer a detached premises, you needn't worry about noise from neighbours!

B The upside-down house

Upside-down houses look entirely normal but with one crucial difference: the roof points downwards and the foundations are in the air. That makes them unsuitable for residential purposes, but they are popular landmarks that have become major tourist attractions. Their appeal has little to do with comfort. From the moment you go inside you start to feel dizzy. You then have to walk on the ceiling, which is the floor for you, under all the furniture above. Only the staircase is the right way up, which you use to get to the ground floor (which actually is the top floor). These houses are just perfect if you want a picture of yourself dancing on the ceiling to post on social media.

C The stilt house

Homes on poles called stilts are nothing new in some parts of the world. They have long been essential in low-lying coastal areas where flooding is common because they can be reconstructed quite quickly if damaged. The Korowai tribe of Indonesia are famous for building stilt houses 35 metres high to prevent attacks from neighbouring tribes. A stilt house may not be the height of luxury, but the architectural style is becoming popular the world over. It is particularly attractive to those who reside in warmer climates, since the buildings' height exposes residents to cool summer breezes, but they also appeal to those who care about the environment. Their narrow legs allow the tree roots to grow freely and they permit water to drain into the soil.

D The tree cabin

If you have a head for heights you may fancy staying in a tree cabin. These simple abodes are now among the most sought-after types of holiday apartments, and rightly so. They offer a romantic escape into the heart of nature, providing fine views across the forest canopy, and are frequently equipped with an outdoor hot tub where you can bathe under the stars, shielded from view by the tree branches. In the morning you can wake up to the sound of the birds singing or push open the front door to watch the sunrise from the comfort of your bed. Indoor cooking facilities are usually minimal in tree cabins, but there are barbecue facilities on the premises at ground level.

Exercise 9
• Once students have completed the exercise, ask what they found interesting about the text and which type of house appeals to them most. Encourage them to explain their answers.

Optional activity
Go through each paragraph in the text and have students identify adjectives used to describe each house. Are they positive, negative or neutral?

Culture note
Stilt houses can also be found in Amsterdam, and you can see how they have leaned to the side as the stilts either rot or sink into the sand bank.

Cave houses can be found in central Australia, which is a desert land, and they can be quite expensive to buy.

Tree cabins are popular in various parts of Greece and they are rented out to tourists during the summer season.

Cities don't make us happier!

It might come as a shock but living in a city won't make you happy. [1]_____ to new evidence, if you live in the countryside you will be happier. The report concluded that people who have lived in a city [2]_____ more than five years are more unhappy than their counterparts in the countryside, even though they make more money.

Cities have more facilities, of course, but they also have a faster pace of life and tend to be overcrowded. Moreover, cities have always [3]_____ expensive to live in and teem with problems like poverty or crime.

However, academics discovered that while people are much happier in rural areas, they are still moving to big cities in search of [4]_____ more prosperous life.

Hopefully, cities of the future will change, though, as a result of a green revolution. They will become less industrial and more suburban with less traffic and more green spaces – [5]_____ for people to live rather than just work.

Wpis na blogu

Aby poprawnie wykonać to zadanie, należy odnieść się do wszystkich podpunktów oraz rozwinąć je w zadowalającym stopniu. Twoja wypowiedź zostanie oceniona jako rozwinięta, jeśli będzie zawierać minimum trzy komunikatywne odniesienia do każdego podpunktu polecenia.

1 Przeczytaj przykładowy podpunkt z polecenia i znajdź odniesienia do niego w podanych fragmentach wypowiedzi (A–C). Który fragment zawiera pełne rozwinięcie podanego podpunktu?

- Uzasadnij, dlaczego niektórzy młodzi ludzie chcą studiować poza miejscem zamieszkania.

A Some young people want to study away from their home town because they want to be independent.

B There are people who want to study away from their home town because they want to be independent or want to make new friends.

C There are many reasons why people want to study away from their home town. Some want to be independent or want to make new friends. Others just don't want to commute to school.

2 Przeczytaj zadanie i przykładową wypowiedź. Które podpunkty zostały w niej rozwinięte, a do których autor jedynie krótko się odniósł?

Podczas studiów chciałbyś/chciałabyś zamieszkać w akademiku. Na swoim blogu:
- uzasadnij, dlaczego zdecydowałeś/zdecydowałaś się na tę formę zakwaterowania
- opisz reakcję rodziców na ten pomysł
- opisz okolicę, w jakiej chcesz zamieszkać
- poproś czytelników o rady i podzielenie się doświadczeniami związanymi z mieszkaniem w akademiku.

Hi everybody,

Have you already decided what you are going to study, and where? Well, I have.

Studying what I really want means moving to Wrocław. Purchasing a flat there is out of the question, so I want to rent a room in a hall of residence.

My parents support this idea, but they aren't very happy that I want to move out. I think they are afraid they will miss me.

I would like to live in a hall of residence which would be close to the university. It's a quiet neighbourhood with great sports facilities.

Do you have any experiences of staying in a hall of residence? Could you share any advice you have?

Thanks!

3 Uzupełnij poniższymi zdaniami wypowiedź z ćwiczenia 2 tak, aby do każdego podpunktu były trzy odniesienia. Jedno zdanie zostało podane dodatkowo.

a What's more, I hope I will make a lot of new friends there.
b Also, it would be great to have some shops like the baker's or the chemist's within walking distance.
c I want my room to be bright and cosy.
d It is probably the cheapest form of accommodation for a student.

4 Napisz tekst (100–150 wyrazów, nie licząc słów już podanych), w którym rozwiniesz każdy z czterech podpunktów.

Podjąłeś/Podjęłaś studia w odległym mieście i wprowadziłeś/wprowadziłaś się do akademika. Jesteś bardzo zadowolony/zadowolona z tej decyzji. We wpisie na blogu:
- opisz swoje emocje związane z przeprowadzką
- wyraź opinię na temat wyglądu i wyposażenia pokoju
- opisz atmosferę panującą w akademiku
- zachęć czytelników do korzystania z tej formy zakwaterowania i napisz, na co powinni zwrócić uwagę.

Warm up
- Ask students what type of blogs they read or write. Where do they read them and how often? Ask why they think people write blogs.

Exercise 1
- With books closed, ask students to say why they think some young people want to study away from their homes. Ask them to read items A–C and compare their ideas.
- After students complete the exercise, ask them to explain why answer C is the best.

Exercise 2

Mixed ability
With less confident students, go through each paragraph and discuss what it is about.
Ask more confident students to match the paragraphs in the sample text to the elements in the exam task.

Exercise 4
- Ask students to work in pairs to brainstorm ideas and vocabulary they can use to complete the task.
- Remind them to use the phrases from the Writing box in their writing.
- Ask students to check each other's work at draft stage and note any inaccuracies.

Cumulative Revision Units 1–2

How to learn vocabulary
- Ask students to choose ten words or phrases from the wordlist that they find interesting or have difficulty learning. They write definitions of these in English as best they can.
- They work in pairs and swap their definitions with their partner, who has to say what category they belong to.
- Students check their answers in pairs and then make sentences with the words.

Optional activity
Set up a class debate on the topic: Style and comfort are the most important in making sure we are happy in our homes. Divide the class into groups that support the topic and groups that disagree. Give the groups time to make notes, allowing them to refer to the wordlist while they do. Then have groups debate against each other.

Brainpower
- On the board write: rooms, furniture, position, types of homes. Use the mapping technique to elicit key vocabulary for each area. Continue with other key vocabulary presented in the unit.

Boarding schools are institutions where the students both live and study on site. Perhaps the most famous [1] one of all is Eton College, which has educated the children of the British aristocracy for almost 500 years. Boarding schools exist for a variety of reasons. [2] One is to provide a specific type of education, for example [3] one focused on music or dance. Other boarding schools provide education for children with special needs, and such [4] ones perform an essential service for society.

4 Pracujcie w parach. Przedyskutujcie poniższe pytania.

How do you think going to a boarding school like the Arctic school affects your 1 relationship with your parents and friends?
2 personality?
3 study skills?
4 free time?

An ARCTIC Education

Forget the boring old school bus. In Northern Russia, the children of the Nenets people travel to school by helicopter. [1] C Nenets children attend special boarding schools for nine months, and they stay away from home throughout that time.

It's astonishing but it happens out of necessity. The Nenets people still lead a traditional nomadic life. They move with their herd of reindeer in search of new grass to feed them. This means they will never be in the same place from one day to the next. [2] E In addition to preserving their traditional ways, Nenets parents are obviously worried for their children's welfare. That's why they take the decision to send them away for such long periods of time. [3] D Their main concern is that their children will encounter problems if they cannot speak Russian well (the Nenets speak their own language) or if they don't follow a standard school syllabus.

The whole school is designed for the students' particular needs and their lifestyle. It's one where traditional tents, reindeer horns and sledges lie next to whiteboards and desks. Being in a new situation can be frightening for the children and leave them confused, so these things are meant to remind the children of their own rich culture and their home.

Coming from such close family groups, it is to be expected that many children will suffer from homesickness. [4] A However, in general, the students are no different from other kids of their age. They make strong friendships at the school and have fun, although they must be a little tougher than most primary school children. At the Arctic school, the kids always stay out in the playground at breaktime, even when it's minus 30 degrees outside!

Warm up
- Ask students to think about education around the world. Ask if they think everyone around the world has the same access to education as they do, and if they know of different methods of education apart from traditional ones.

Exercise 3

Differentiation
Go through each paragraph and ask what it is about. Then look at items A to E. For each item, ask students to find words that connect the sentences to the paragraphs.

Exercise 4
- Before completing the exercise, quickly go through each question and elicit key adjectives students can use to answer them.
- After students have completed the exercise, have them share the ideas they discussed with the class.

1 We can conclude that Escalante was a determined man because he _____ to make his dreams come true.
2 Escalante's theory that anyone could get good grades in maths was expressed on _____.
3 It is suggested that Escalante's students were accused of cheating because of _____.
4 According to the author, the most impressive consequence of Escalante's fame was _____.

THE WORLD'S Most Inspirational Teacher

Maths isn't usually thought of as the most exciting subject on the high school syllabus, but the career of maths teacher Jaime Escalante was one that caught the imagination of America.

Born in Bolivia in 1930, Escalante arrived as an immigrant to the United States. For years, he did menial jobs such as cooking burgers while he was attending evening classes to pursue his dream of being a teacher. Astonishingly, the man who would become the most famous teacher in America first walked into a classroom at the age of 43.

When Escalante began his career at Garfield High School in one of the tougher neighbourhoods of Los Angeles, he discovered that the textbooks in his class were ridiculously simple. The Bolivian decided to run extra maths lessons with much more demanding work for the brighter students. His aim was for them to take the national Advanced Placement (AP) exams, a formidable challenge but one that helps students go on to study at university. The ambitious teacher had no fear that it was beyond his students' abilities. As a poster in his classroom said, 'Calculus Need Not Be Made Easy – It Is Easy Already.'

To Escalante's delight, his students triumphed. When the results arrived one year, he found that everyone had passed, with seven getting the highest possible grades.

Then, suddenly, disaster struck. The people marking the exam claimed that some of the students had produced very similar answers. They were accused of cheating and disqualified.

Escalante could not believe it. His students, who were mostly from Latin American backgrounds, suspected racial prejudices at play and protested that non-Latin students would not have received the same treatment. Nevertheless, the only option was to retake the exam. Twelve students took the challenge and proved their teacher right! Thankfully, every one of them passed.

Due to the public outcry, the case caught the eye of the national news and Escalante suddenly became famous. Later on, the story was turned into a 1988 film called Stand and Deliver. Most importantly, however, the media coverage meant that his courses became incredibly popular and he could reach more students as a result. At one point, more maths students from Garfield High School were attending the University of Southern California than students from all other Los Angeles schools combined. The ambitious immigrant from Bolivia had not just changed the perception of his community, but also the lives of dozens of people who had come through his classroom door.

Exercise 10
Suggested answers:
1 did menial jobs
2 a poster in his classroom
3 racial prejudices
4 that his courses became (incredibly) popular

Exercise 10
- Ask students what makes a person an inspiration for others, and whether there is a teacher who has inspired them. If so, how?
- After students complete the exercise, ask them what they think of Jaime Escalante and what they found interesting about him.

Mixed ability
Less confident students can work in pairs to complete the exercise and refer to the wordlist or a dictionary for any unknown words.

Have more confident students make notes about the text so they can present an oral summary about it to the class.

Optional activity
Today there are many annual awards for Teacher of the year that are given to different teachers around the world. Ask students to find out about the recent winners and what they were awarded for.

- zaproś czytelników do podzielenia się doświadczeniami ze swojego egzaminu oraz poproś o wskazówki, jak skutecznie przygotować się do niego.

3 Przeczytaj przykładową wypowiedź będącą wykonaniem polecenia z ćwiczenia 2. Które podpunkty zostały rozwinięte, a do których autor jedynie krótko się odniósł?

Hi everybody!

This year I'm taking my Matura exams!

English is one of the obligatory subjects. The written exam has two levels: Basic and Extended. I've decided to take it at the Basic level. The exam will take two hours.

I don't feel stressed yet. In fact, I am quite relaxed because I know English quite well. I'm a bit worried about the oral part, though.

To prepare for this exam I am doing a lot of revision. My classmates are doing a lot of exercises, too.

I wonder if any of you have taken final exams yet?

4 Przeczytaj ponownie przykładową wypowiedź z ćwiczenia 3. Uzupełnij fragmenty będące realizacją trzeciego i czwartego podpunktu tak, aby tekst zawierał pełne rozwinięcie podpunktów.

5 Napisz tekst (100–150 wyrazów, nie licząc słów już podanych), w którym rozwiniesz każdy z czterech podpunktów.

Przed tobą egzaminy maturalne. Część ustna egzaminu z języka angielskiego wzbudza twój niepokój. Na swoim blogu:

- napisz, z czego wynikają twoje obawy
- zrelacjonuj sytuację, w której twoja wypowiedź w języku angielskim była oceniana
- wyraź swoją opinię na temat roli egzaminów w systemie edukacji
- zapytaj czytelników o ich zdanie na temat egzaminów i zachęć ich do podzielenia się swoimi sposobami na pozbycie się strachu przed egzaminami ustnymi.

How to learn vocabulary

- Ask students to choose ten words or phrases from the wordlist that they find interesting or have difficulty learning.
- They work in pairs and swap their words with their partner, who has to define the words in English as best they can.
- Students check their answers in pairs and then make sentences with the words.

Brainpower

- On the board write: biology, college, history, literature. Have students find the odd word out and explain why (college – it's the only one that is not a school subject).
- Have students make their own odd word out items for their partner.

BRAINPOWER

Łatwiej będzie ci odtworzyć w pamięci treść swoich notatek, jeśli wykorzystasz elementy tzw. sketchnotingu. Na pewno zdarzyło ci się słuchać wykładu nauczyciela i jednocześnie „bazgrać" coś w zeszycie. Rysowanie stymuluje naszą wyobraźnię i poprawia koncentrację. Zapisując nowe słowa, staraj się świadomie zaangażować obszar myślenia wizualnego, poprzez stosowanie różnych czcionek, kolorów oraz prostych obrazków i symboli.

Changing Roles

How regularly does an individual switch jobs, and does changing your position in a company or leaving one company for another have a positive or negative effect on the economy at large?

According to recent studies, around nine to ten per cent of workers take their [1]_____ in a new direction every year. There are a range of different reasons why they may want to do so. Workers might want to change their [2]_____ so they live closer to loved ones or family. It could be that someone wants to work less or to try their hand at something completely different to what they've been doing so far. Finally, an individual might simply want to [3]_____ their career and get a higher salary, which, understandably, is probably the most common reason behind a decision to look for a new position. Furthermore, companies themselves also drive change when they require new roles to improve both teamwork and [4]_____.

Economists generally think that high [5]_____ job mobility is positive for an economy because the most capable people get the best positions as well as getting the highest wages. However, job mobility in most of the world's economies is in reality quite low. Bear in mind that those from [6]_____ class backgrounds often just can't afford to move to a different city to change their job.

Exercise 12

Mixed ability
Less confident students can refer to their wordlists to complete the exercise.
Have more confident students define each answer option as best they can.

Exercise 14
• Tell students to listen carefully to their partner and note any grammar or vocabulary errors they may make. Then have them point out the mistakes to their partner and correct them together.

Exercise 15
• Ask students to read through the text first, ignoring the gaps, and raise any unknown words. Explain these before they complete the exercise.

Optional activity
Have a class discussion on people that students might know who have changed careers, moved away from home to find better careers, and people who have been very successful. Ask students if they think changing careers is a good thing or not.

Send

Hi Eva,

Thanks for sending me the job advert. I called Andy to talk about the opportunities. As I'm only seventeen, there aren't many jobs I can do, but they're looking for a lot of people to work on food stalls.

They give training but they prefer it if you've done this kind of work before. I've helped out in my father's bookstore, but I haven't served food and drink. I don't think it's very difficult, though. I'm sure everyone can do it!

Andy said that employees have to work at three or more festivals over the summer. I would really love to work at the Green Man Festival! The pay is 10 euros an hour whatever job you do there. You also get a ticket for the whole festival and as much free food as you want in the staff café.

The closing date is 6th June so I need to hurry up. Let me know what you think!

Ilona

Warm up
• Ask students what they think goes on behind the scenes at music festivals, from the moment the idea for a festival surfaces until the day of the festival itself.

Exercise 1
• Students work in small groups to complete the exercise and then share ideas with the class.

Exercise 3
• Before students do the task, ask them to go through the texts and look for all the places where salary is mentioned, and then decide which ones are facts and which ones are opinions.

Exam tip
Tell students to read the items first so they know what information they are looking for in the texts.

Optional activity
Have students test each other on the texts by asking true or false questions, e.g. Text A: You must have experience. (False, it's an advantage but not necessary). Text D: Ben says you get paid 12 euros an hour. (False. Ben says you get paid 10 euros an hour.)

MUSIC Festival Work

Last summer, I worked for a company that provides staff for music festivals. People think it's a great way to go to a music festival for free, but what's it really like? Well, I worked for six weeks and you can't always work the hours you'd like, but you do have plenty of time to see bands and enjoy yourself. You get ten euros an hour, which is pretty good for this type of work, I think. However, you may get a different job than the one you've applied for so it's good to be flexible. Whatever happens, it's great experience to put on your CV and you'll make lots of new friends!

My job: working in a café

NOTE: Everyone works shifts with the same amount of time off in between, but not everyone starts at the same time.

Tekst D

BEN: Have you seen the advert for music festival work? You get paid 10 euros an hour.

EVA: Right, but I read that you have to start work at 6 a.m.

BEN: Really? I've heard you didn't start until 10 a.m. Anyway, it's probably better to start early so you can get work out of the way and see more bands in the evening.

EVA: I don't mind having an early start, but I haven't got experience so I don't know if I should send them my CV.

BEN: You definitely should! It's more important to be communicative and sociable. They'll train you if they think you can do the job.

EVA: I guess you're right. Hopefully, see you at a music festival!

4 Przeczytaj wiadomość od Ewy do jej koleżanki. Uzupełnij luki 1–4 zgodnie z treścią tekstów (A–D), tak aby jak najbardziej precyzyjnie oddać ich sens. Luki należy uzupełnić w języku angielskim.

Dear Maria,

I've decided to apply for work at music festivals. It sounds really good because you get paid 10 euros an hour. You also get a free [1]_____ as well as free food.

They're looking for people to work as shop assistants, food servers and even models for a fashion show. However, I can only do two of these jobs because I'm not [2]_____ yet.

I'm most interested in being a waitress, but the company chooses what they want you to do. You don't get to choose the hours you work either, but you get a break after working for [3]_____. I don't have any work experience, but if I get the job, they'll give me training. I need to apply by [4]_____ so wish me luck!

DIGITAL NOMAD

The smooth white tablecloth in the foreground against the blue and turquoise of the sea made Ben smile. His table was in the restaurant, but on the very edge of the harbour wall, right next to the water. If he stood on his chair, he could dive into the sea. That wasn't in his schedule, though. Instead he was savouring a perfectly made coffee before he started work. Yes, this was his office for the day. He had his laptop, good Wi-Fi and a steady supply of drinks and food brought to him by Stefanos, his favourite waiter. The life of a digital nomad, thought Ben, certainly beats office life in London.

Ben thought back to the daily commute and pitied his colleagues. They'd probably be struggling through the rain to get to work right now. Later they'd be gathered round the coffee machine, damp and miserable, moaning about the weather.

Ben had started to sever his ties with the office when he'd been given the chance to work from home. As a writer and translator, Ben's boss didn't understand why he needed to come into the office at all. At first, Ben had been reluctant. He'd go into work, suspicious of his boss's motives; there'd been rumours the company wanted to lay people off. Maybe he'd be overlooked for promotion? Ben thought his physical presence at the workplace offered some sort of protection. It also meant he could keep up to date with everything. But these visits dwindled and soon Ben realized that his home office wasn't the only place he could work from. The world was his oyster.

Ben spun the globe a few times before he decided on Greece. He had fond memories of holidays there and predicted it was a place where he'd be guaranteed white sandy beaches and blue skies. He wasn't wrong.

Ben drank the last of his coffee. This was his signal to start work, so he flipped open his laptop. This short routine fitted easily between his early-morning jog along the sand and his catch-up call to the office. It was the same every day; his way of inserting a timetable into paradise.

He lightly pressed the on button. The machine was strangely silent. He pushed the button again. Still nothing happened. And again. It didn't take long for his calm to crumble and be replaced by panic. He ran into the restaurant looking for Stefanos. Together, they tried everything to breathe life into the machine. All Ben's work was on there and now he couldn't get to it. Stefanos had a trustworthy friend who was good with computers somewhere in a nearby village, but he was away on holiday at the moment. Ben suddenly felt the heat around him like a heavy coat. He longed for cool English weather, even a bit of rain. He wasn't the best at backing up work, but of course he had a back-up plan. He could still be creative. He had paper and he could write on his phone. It was all good, he said, though his expression told a different story. It was the deadlines that really tormented him. In his head, he was having a meeting with his boss and was trying to decide whether he should quit already or hope for a shred of understanding about the trials of being a digital nomad.

Exercise 7
• Before completing the exercise, ask students to look at the pictures and discuss who a digital nomad is. Ask students if they know anyone who is a digital nomad and what they think of their job.

Exam tip
To save time, use the process of elimination: rule out all the answers you know are incorrect, then focus on choosing the correct ones from the remaining options.

Mixed ability
Have less confident students complete the exercise with a partner. Have them point to the parts of the text where they got their answers from.
Ask more confident students to go through each option and say why the alternative ones are incorrect.

Optional activity
In groups, students find three reasons why being a digital nomad is a good idea and three reasons why it can be a bad one. Students can then have a class debate on the pros and cons of being a digital nomad.

THE RIGHT JOB

Maria has been looking for a job for the last three months. However, she isn't prepared to accept just [1] any job – she wants to be a programmer and design computer games.

'I [2] have decided that it's what I want to do in life,' says Maria. 'I don't need to make [3] lots of money, I just want to do something I enjoy.'

Maria has already had a few interviews, but she turned [4] down an internship offer with a non-gaming company.

'I'm looking for the right job with the right company. Sure, the pay and the experience might be good for me, but I'm not going to [5] get stuck doing a job I don't want to do,' she says.

duty give pay promote resign work

The top four reasons why people resign

1 According to recent studies, most people say goodbye to their job because of a lack of career advancement. There's no opportunity for [1] _____ and so employees head for the door.

2 Lots of employees don't have a problem with their wages, hours or their [2] _____, but they do have problems with their superiors. As long as the boss, supervisor or manager is fair and reasonable, there's a fair chance they will stay.

3 Some employees say they [3] _____ because of their workmates. Either they were too competitive, rude or not diligent enough to do the work properly.

4 A lack of flexible working hours was the final argument that people cited for [4] _____ up their jobs. Family life, children and the need to have a life away from work are all factors that cause people to change their position.

Exercise 8
1 can increase productivity
2 have been having weekly meetings
3 took on a new role
4 I've been working hard
5 has been working from home

Exercise 9
1 promotion
2 duties
3 (have/had) resigned
4 giving

Exercise 6

Optional activity
Place students in pairs and have them practise role-playing the dialogues. Remind them to take care of their pronunciation. Invite pairs to role-play selected dialogues in front of the class.

Exercise 8
- With books closed, ask students to come up with English translations of the phrases in brackets. Then ask them to do the exercise and see if any of their ideas were correct.

Exercise 9
- Before starting the exercise, ask pairs to go through the words in the box and define them.
- They then come up with the possible derivatives that could be used in the exercise.

Optional activity
Ask students which of the reasons in the text they think is the strongest reason for resigning. Then ask students to add two more reasons why people resign using key vocabulary from the unit.

Gdy podpunkt polecenia składa się z dwóch części, należy odnieść się do obydwu i podać dodatkowe informacje do przynajmniej jednej z nich. Pamiętaj, że nawet bogate rozwinięcie jednej części podpunktu, bez żadnego odniesienia do drugiej, będzie ocenione jako niepełne wykonanie tej części zadania.

1 Przeczytaj przykładowy podpunkt z zadania i znajdź odniesienia do niego w podanych fragmentach wypowiedzi (A–C). Dlaczego żaden z nich nie zostałby oceniony jako rozwinięty?

- Opisz swoje wykształcenie i poziom znajomości języka angielskiego.

A I graduated with Distinction from one of the best primary schools in Poznań. Currently, I attend a secondary school in this city. I am also a student at a music secondary school where I am learning to play the violin.

B I am very good at English. I can understand everything that I read or hear. I speak English fluently, but I have a slight Polish accent. I am able to write about different subjects.

C Currently, I attend a secondary school. My English is fluent.

2 Przeczytaj zadanie i przykładową wypowiedź. Do ilu podpunktów autor się odniósł i ile z nich rozwinął?

W czasie wakacji chciałbyś/chciałabyś podjąć pracę dorywczą. W e-mailu do koleżanki z Anglii:

- wyjaśnij, dlaczego chcesz pracować w czasie wakacji
- poinformuj, jaki rodzaj pracy chciałbyś/chciałabyś wykonywać i dlaczego
- przedstaw opinie kolegów na temat pracy wakacyjnej
- poproś o radę, gdzie szukać ofert pracy i jak zachować się podczas rozmowy kwalifikacyjnej.

Hi Jane,

Holidays are coming so I thought I should get a summer job. I want to work because I hope to get some practical experience and make new friends.

I'd like to have a job connected with riding a bike. I could deliver something, for example food.

Most of my friends think it's a great idea. But there are a few who believe that I should relax during holidays.

I haven't found any job offers yet. Could you also give me some advice on what I should say during the interview? What questions could they ask me and what should I wear?

Best,

Agnieszka

Warm up
• Discuss with students if they usually use a formal or informal register when they write their emails. On the board write: I want to apply for this job … . I would like to apply … . Ask students which of the two is informal. Repeat, giving more examples of formal and informal expressions.

Exercise 1

Optional activity
Ask students to write a similar paragraph about their own English skills.

Exercise 2

Optional activity
Have students say how they would answer the questions in the email.

Exercise 3
• Before completing the exercise, go through the sample text and discuss how each paragraph could be developed further. Students then check if their ideas were similar to those in exercise 3.

Exercise 5
• In groups, ask students to use the mind map technique to plan what they can write in their text. Remind them to note what register the email should be in, e.g. formal or informal, and to give examples of phrases they could use.

How to learn vocabulary

- Ask students to choose ten words or phrases from the wordlist that they find interesting. They write sentences with these words, but with a gap instead of the words.
- They work in pairs and swap sentences with their partner, who has to read the sentence, work out what part of speech the missing word is, e.g. adjective, noun, part of an idiom, verb, etc., and then complete the sentence.
- Students check their answers in pairs. Ask several pairs to read some of their sentences in class for students to say what part of speech the missing word is.

Brainpower

- Using the brainpower strategy, ask students to choose words or phrases from the wordlist that they have difficulty learning and use them to make an acronym.

Sprawdź się!

- Ask students to explain why the other options are incorrect.

1 Popatrz na zdjęcia ilustrujące tekst i przeczytaj poniższy akapit. Odpowiedzcie w parach na pytania.

1 What is cosplay?
2 When did you last dress up in a costume?
3 Does cosplay sound fun to you?
4 Do you enjoy going to fancy dress parties?

The word cosplay is a contraction of 'costume role-play' and it was first used in 1984 by Japanese anime producer Nobuyuki Takahashi. He used it to describe fans at anime and manga events in the US and Japan who were dressed up as their favourite comic characters. Since then, cosplay has grown in popularity and hundreds of thousands of fans attend the largest events. Cosplay, however, is far more than a game. It's an inclusive hobby that allows you to channel your creativity and, for an increasing number of people, it's become a way of life.

2 Pracujcie w parach. Przeczytajcie wskazówkę oraz podane nagłówki (A–C). Zastanówcie się, o czym mogłyby mówić akapity, które by do nich pasowały.

Przeczytaj uważnie wszystkie nagłówki i zastanów się, o czym powinien mówić fragment tekstu, który pasowałby do danego nagłówka.

A A new fashionable hobby
B A pastime making a positive impact
C A bit of harmless fun

3 Przeczytaj tekst z ćwiczenia 1 ponownie i dobierz do niego poprawny nagłówek (A–C).

4 Przeczytaj tekst. Dobierz właściwy nagłówek (A–F) do każdej części tekstu (1–4). Dwa nagłówki zostały podane dodatkowo i nie pasują do żadnej części tekstu.

A Communication made simple
B A wide variety of participants
C Plenty to prepare
D A range of activities
E A cheap hobby
F Important places for fans

1 F

The earliest cosplay events were in the United States. The San Diego Comic-Con started in the 1970s and is still held today. There are now huge conventions all around the world, but Japan – the birthplace of manga (comic books) and anime (animated films) – remains the main destination for enthusiasts. The largest event, Tokyo's Comiket, attracts half a million fans, who can visit anime studios and a range of other attractions nearby.

2 D

A ticket to a convention will typically cost the equivalent of £20. For that you can browse the stalls, watch displays by cosplay professionals (yes, they do exist), attend classes by experts on costume design, enter costume competitions, and so on. Some hope to meet the cosplay celebrities that they follow online. Despite the competition, the atmosphere is usually friendly and accepting, and the most popular activity seems to be taking selfies with people in similar costumes while posing like anime heroes (or villains).

3 C

Not everyone attends these events in costume but comic fans who do often put a lot of effort into their creations. Of course, you can simply order a costume online, but many choose to make their costumes themselves and spend many hours (and a lot of money) cutting out wings or helmets and putting their creations together with a glue gun. Some will even make details, like buttons, in order to look just like their favourite characters. Many will travel to events in character, having to tolerate surprised stares from other passengers on public transport.

Warm up
• Ask students if they enjoy taking part in drama activities and dressing up for fancy dress parties. Ask them to explain their reasons.

Exercise 1
• Ask students to work in pairs and then share answers with the class. Ask them if they would like to go to a cosplay convention and to explain why / why not.

Optional activity
Before students move on to exercise 2, ask them to work in pairs and think of a heading that would best sum up the text.

Exercise 4
• After answers have been checked, ask students to say why the two headings they didn't choose were incorrect.

Differentiation
Ask students to go through each paragraph and explain what it is about. They should try to sum up each paragraph in one sentence.

4 A

When you talk to cosplay enthusiasts it becomes clear that what many of them like the most about the conventions are the social opportunities. These are places where fans feel they can express themselves freely. People who are often shy in real life enjoy having a mask to hide behind and acting like their character. It's also extremely easy to meet people with the same passion as you. As a result, people can be sociable with more confidence and there's less risk of rejection than in normal social situations.

Dobieranie zdań do luk w tekście

11 Przeczytaj wskazówkę, a następnie – tekst, z którego usunięto cztery zdania. W każdą lukę (1–4) wpisz literę, którą oznaczono brakujące zdanie (A–E), tak aby otrzymać spójny i logiczny tekst. Jedno zdanie zostało podane dodatkowo i nie pasuje do żadnej luki.

Zdania podane w zadaniu zazwyczaj zawierają wyrazy, które odnoszą się do informacji podanych we wcześniejszych lub następnych partiach tekstu. Przeczytaj dokładnie fragment tekstu przed luką i po niej. Poszukaj w nim odniesienia do informacji podanych w zdaniu, którym chcesz uzupełnić lukę, lub poszukaj związków przyczynowo-skutkowych między fragmentem tekstu a zdaniem uzupełniającym.

A Furthermore, only thirteen would express sympathy at all when seeing a social media post revealing personal hardship.

B Regular contact breeds familiarity and helps us learn about each other's similarities, which is a condition for trust to emerge.

C Not until that stage is reached can we start to gain real mental health benefits from social contact.

D Therefore, it takes a long time for trust to develop between two people who have just met.

E What's more, people who have difficulty opening up face to face can often develop closer relationships online than they could in person.

REAL

How many ^ friends have you got?

Thanks to social media, meeting people has never been easier. However, when does one of our online social contacts actually become a meaningful friend?

Firstly, there's a difference between a 'mate', whom we might have a laugh with, and a genuine friend. Communication scientist William Rawlins argues that real friendship can only be cultivated once trust begins to appear. [1] C Therefore, a real friend doesn't just offer companionship – they prevent loneliness, too.

Trust, however, isn't easy to build, and we probably wouldn't claim to have a trusting relationship with many of our online friends. A famous study by anthropologist Robin Dunbar found that most people have on average around 150 online 'friends' but that they would only consider four of these dependable. [2] A Consequently, the number of friends we can claim is probably far fewer than our social media accounts would suggest.

One of the reasons why online friends rarely go on to become real friends is proximity, or how physically near we are to people. It isn't a coincidence that most of the people we consider friends we met in class, on our street or in a local sports club. [3] B Researchers do stress that people can become close through membership of the same online communities. However, many would say that you need to meet face to face to be able to see eye to eye – and build sufficient emotional intensity for trust to emerge. For instance, in 2011 artist Tanja Hollander decided she needed to encounter all 600 of her online friends face to face before she could know if they were real. Only during her travels did many of them emerge as real friends.

However, just because we tend to meet real friends in person doesn't mean that we can't establish or maintain lasting friendships online. According to the Pew Research Center, 57% of teenagers say they've made a friend on the Internet, and some researchers also suggest that the Internet is necessary to provide the frequency of communications necessary to cement relationships. [4] E At the end of the day, it's what happens between people that determines whether friendship becomes real.

Exercise 11
- Before students do the task, read through the options and ask which ones extend an idea (A, E) and which ones talk about a result of an action or event (D).
- Refer students to C, and ask them which key words will likely help them find the paragraph it belongs in (that stage – students have to find the part of text it refers to in order to match it correctly).
- Ask students what could be B's function in the text (to give further information about the idea of proximity that is mentioned in the text).

Optional activity
Ask students if they have online friends that they have never met and if their friendship has lasted long. Then ask students what dangers they could face when making friends online, and what they can do to make sure they are safe online when meeting new people.

Warm up
• Have students write six sentences, three of which contain mistakes in the usage of the past tense for their partner to correct.

Exercise 1

Differentiation
For items 1–4, have students read the first sentence in each item so they know the context and ask them to follow up with their own ideas.

Exercise 3
• Ask students to come up with time and place expressions that are used with the prepositions in, at and on before they complete the exercise.

Exercise 4
• With books closed, ask students for possible translations of the phrases in brackets. Then for items 1–3, go through each option and have students name the tenses. For items 4 and 5, students explain the meaning of the expressions. Then they work individually to choose the correct answers.

Exam tip
Tell students that even if they are not sure of the answer, they should always choose one instead of leaving a blank space. Encourage them to rule out incorrect answers first and then make an educated guess.

4 I've arranged to meet Abby in town, so I _____ (leave/six).
5 I'm not sure how to spend my pocket money this month. Maybe _____ (I/buy) some new shoes?

Zadanie z lukami

7 Przeczytaj tekst. Uzupełnij każdą lukę (1–6) jednym wyrazem, tak aby powstał spójny i logiczny tekst. Wymagana jest pełna poprawność gramatyczna i ortograficzna uzupełnionych zdań.

In July, I'm going to spend a fortnight with my cousins Dylan and Jess in Wales. They live [1] in the middle of nowhere, and it always takes me a couple of days to adapt to their way of life. Once I've got used to life in the country, I [2] have a really good time! We're going to go kayaking and swimming, and I'll also do some gardening for my uncle and aunt as they grow a lot of their own vegetables. I love [3] spending so much time outdoors and in beautiful surroundings.

Unfortunately this year Dylan can't be at home during the day because he's got a job but Jess [4] will be around. She plays a lot of music and, as I've been learning the flute this year, I'm [5] going to take my flute with me and see if we can play together.

Wpis na blogu

Staraj się wyrażać komunikatywnie i w sposób zrozumiały dla osoby, której ojczystym językiem jest język angielski. Pamiętaj o istnieniu tzw. false friends (np. pupil to nie zwierzątko domowe, chef to nie szef, a pilot to nie przewodnik wycieczki). Nie tłumacz wyrazów dosłownie, jeśli nie znasz ich angielskiego odpowiednika – może to spowodować zakłócenie komunikacji i obniżenie oceny ze względu na kryterium treści. Jeśli nie masz pewności, że używasz wyrazu we właściwym kontekście, nie ryzykuj popełnienia błędu i przekaż jego znaczenie w sposób opisowy.

- zachęć czytelników do spróbowania tej aktywności i udziel wskazówek, w jaki sposób mogą zacząć.

Hi everybody,

Some of you have asked me what my hobby is. I love doing jigsaw puzzles. These are pictures that have been cut up into small pieces of different shapes that you have to fit together again.

It all started when I got my first 1,500-piece jigsaw. It was hard but I managed to finish it. I still remember the picture I had to put together. It was an old photo of a car fabric.

Doing jigsaw puzzles is extra! I learned that if I put in some effort, sooner or later I will finish even the most difficult one. This is what jigsaws have taught me: patience and determination.

Yesterday I listened to a radio audition about puzzles and they said that even Bill Gates and Hugh Jackman like jigsaws. So maybe you should also give it a go? You can find all sorts of puzzles in every bookshop or buy them online.

How to learn vocabulary

- Ask students to choose ten words or phrases from the wordlist that they find interesting or have difficulty learning. They write definitions of these in English as best they can.
- They work in pairs and swap definitions with their partner, who has to read them and find the correct words.
- Students check their answers in pairs. Ask several pairs to read some of their definitions in class for the other students to find the words.

Brainpower

Students work in pairs. They choose five words they can make silly rhymes with to share with the class.

Sprawdź się!

Optional activity

Ask students to say their own sentences with the words revised in the exercise to share with the class.

BRAINPOWER

Twórz rymy i szukaj skojarzeń, np. bride – ride (wyobraź sobie pannę młodą jadącą do ślubu na rowerze), groom – broom (wyobraź sobie pana młodego lecącego na miotle) itp. Im bardziej plastyczne, dziwne czy wręcz absurdalne są twoje skojarzenia, tym dłużej dane słowo pozostanie w twojej pamięci.

Sprawdź się!

1 Uzupełnij zdania właściwymi wyrazami. Pierwsza litera każdego słowa została podana.

1 Restaurant meals are expensive, so I don't often e*at* o*ut* with my family.
2 Alison has a lot of a*cquaintances*, but only a few really close friends.
3 Jason is terribly j*ealous*. His girlfriend can't even look at anybody else.

Eating Disorders Helpline

Call us to speak to trained support workers experienced in listening to people in a similar situation to you.

We are aware of how difficult it can be to share your feelings. Our service is aimed at [1] _____ as well as their family and friends. Support workers are trained to:

- offer a supportive space for you to explore your feelings around eating disorders. You may have low self-esteem and/or suffer from [2] _____ – we're here to help.
- provide information about eating disorders such as [3] _____ and bulimia.
- talk about issues caused by overeating or eating [4] _____.
- explore options to help you make decisions about what might be best for you.

'Over a number of years, I developed a habit of [5] _____ eating, which made me feel miserable as well as physically [6] _____. When I rang the helpline, I got a chance to talk to someone who did not judge me and helped me access the services I desperately needed.' – Judy

5 binge
6 malnourished

Exercise 12
• Explain the term exotic and give students an example of an unusual dish, e.g. When I was in Australia, I ate kangaroo meat. It wasn't very tasty.

Exercise 13

Mixed ability
Ask more confident students to explain why the other options in the exercise were not correct.

Exercise 14
• Have students walk around the room and discuss the questions with different classmates. Explain that they have to change partners for each question. Then have a class discussion on the most common answers.

Exercise 15
• With books closed, ask students what an eating disorder is and if they know how such a disorder can develop. After they complete the exercise, discuss if their idea of eating disorders has changed.

2 What can we conclude from the text?
A Many people died immediately after entering the workhouse.
B Most people spent a very short time in the workhouse.
C Parents often put their children in the workhouse.
(D) People came to the workhouse when they had no other options.

3 Przeczytaj poniższy tekst i odpowiedz na pytania z ćwiczenia 2.

The Victorian Workhouse

If you lived in nineteenth century Britain, there were no paid holidays, no free healthcare, no pensions and no state welfare. If someone became desperately poor or sick, they had to enter the workhouse.

The workhouses were very much like prisons. On entry, men and women were separated. Their clothes were boiled and their heads shaved. People had to work all day for tiny portions of food. Worst of all, many young orphans were forced to spend their entire childhoods in these institutions, as famously shown in the novel Oliver Twist by Charles Dickens.

4 W parach wykonajcie poniższe zadanie.

You are about to read an excerpt from Oliver Twist, which takes place in a Victorian workhouse. Answer the questions.

1 What kind of characters might appear in the text?
2 What kind of emotions are the readers likely to feel when they read the story?

Oliver Twist

by Charles Dickens

Back at the workhouse, Oliver was taken to see the board. He stood in front of ten fat men who were sitting around a table.
'What's your name, boy?' asked a particularly fat man with a very round, red face.
Oliver was frightened at the sight of so many people, and started to cry.
'Why are you crying?'
The beadle hit him on the back, and so naturally Oliver cried even more.
'The boy is a fool,' one member of the board announced.
'You know you have no father or mother,' said the first man, 'and that you have been brought up with other orphans?'
'Yes, sir,' replied Oliver, crying bitterly.
'Why is the boy crying?' repeated the other man, puzzled.
'You have come here to be educated,' continued the fat man, 'so you will start working here tomorrow at six o'clock.'
Oliver was led away to a large room, where, on a rough hard bed, he cried himself to sleep.
The room in the workhouse where the boys were fed was a large stone hall, and at one end the master and two women served the food. This consisted of a bowl of thin soup three times a day, with a piece of bread on Sundays. The boys ate everything and were always hungry. The bowls never needed washing. The boys polished them with their spoons until they shone. After three months of this slow starvation, one of the boys told the others he was so hungry that one night he might eat the boy who slept next to him. He had a wild hungry eye, and the other boys believed him. After a long discussion, they decided that one of them should ask for more food after supper that evening, and they decided it would be Oliver.
The evening arrived; the soup was served, and the bowls were empty again in a few seconds. Oliver went up to the master, with his bowl in his hand. He felt very frightened, but also desperate with hunger.
'Please sir, I want some more.'
The man was a fat, healthy man, but he turned very pale. He looked at the little boy in front of him with amazement. Nobody else spoke.
'What?' he asked at last, in a faint voice.

Warm up
• Ask students if they read fiction in English and, if so, what they enjoy about it. Ask them what they think about reading classical novels, either in their original format or in translation.

Exercise 3
• Ask students to point to information in the text needed to answer question 1, and to explain their choices in question 2.

Differentiation
Have students read the text quietly and ask about unknown words, as the text can be a little difficult.

Exercise 5

Optional activity
Ask students to say what emotions they felt as they read the passage from the story. Were they positive or negative? Have them read aloud passages that raised strong feelings. Did they enjoy reading this excerpt?

'Please, sir,' replied Oliver, 'I want some more.'
The master hit him with the serving spoon, then seized Oliver's arms and shouted for the beadle.
The beadle came quickly, heard the dreadful news, and immediately ran to tell the board.
'He asked for more?' Mr Limbkins, the fattest board member, asked in horror. 'Bumble – is this really true?'
'That boy will be hanged!' said the man who had earlier called Oliver a fool. 'You see if I'm not right.'
Oliver was led away to be locked up, and a reward was offered to anyone who would take him away and use him for work.

board a group of people who have power to make decisions and control a company or other organization beadle a kind of former police officer who dealt with the poor people of a town or country district

1 When Oliver met the board,
- A he was rude to them.
- B one man sympathized with him.
- (C) someone hurt him.
- D they asked him what had happened to his parents.

2 It was Oliver who spoke to the master because
- A he was frightened of the other boys.
- (B) he had been chosen by the other boys.
- C he had originally suggested the idea.
- D he was the most hungry.

3 What happened first when Oliver asked for more food?
- A The master called for help.
- (B) The master's face changed colour.
- C The master hit Oliver with a spoon.
- D The master asked Oliver a question.

4 From the last paragraph, we can conclude that the board
- A were concerned with Oliver's future.
- B intended to take better care of Oliver.
- (C) would like to get rid of Oliver.
- D wanted Oliver to pay for his freedom.

5 Oliver Twist appears in this text as
- (A) an innocent victim.
- B a daring rebel.
- C a foolish child.
- D a smart leader.

Frank the Foodie

Dining in the dark

It was so dark that I couldn't see my hand in front of my face. I was hyper-aware of the sounds around me: the tinkling cutlery, the fizzing pans, but most of all, nervous laughter. I was eating in the dark, in a new restaurant experience.

On arrival, there is a little anteroom where your host explains how it all works. That made us a bit calmer until we were told to hand over our smartphones, which would be kept in lockers throughout the meal. Otherwise, as we were told, sooner or later someone would use the light or start taking food selfies, which would inevitably spoil the whole experience for others.

Then the waiters took us to our tables, with our hand on their shoulder to show the way. I had expected to be given a blindfold so we would have to focus solely on the taste, instead of relying on our sight. I reckoned they must need some light inside, otherwise the restaurant staff wouldn't know how to bring you your food. However, the waiters were all blind so even that wasn't necessary – they were used to relying on other senses to know their way around. Inside, it was pitch black.

Once we were escorted to our table, we found that each dish had been specially designed to maximize the experience. The chefs were clearly interested in experimenting with different textures. Although they told us that we were eating snails, for instance, they came as a smooth mousse that melted in your mouth rather than chewy lumps that you had to dig out of a shell.

In fact, we had very little control over what we ate. The restaurant had a set menu and unless you instructed them about an allergy, you were completely in the chef's hands.

In some ways, it made me more adventurous than usual. For example, it was the first time I had tried oysters. For me their appearance is utterly disgusting but in the dark, it didn't feel so hard to pop one in my mouth. They were still slimy, though, so an ice-cold glass of sparkling water was very welcome after that.

The definite highlight was the dessert: a yummy rhubarb-and-apple crumble. Perhaps because our sense of taste was heightened with no sight to aid us, it seemed in no way similar to the classic version that my grandma used to make. This one beautifully combined the sour rhubarb with sweet apple, and had a crispy crumble that was to die for. Afterwards I had to ask the chefs to show us the real thing because I couldn't go home without having set eyes on that masterpiece for myself.

On arrival, the guests were welcomed. Then their phones [1]_____ before the waiters escorted them to their tables.

The author expected to wear a blindfold to prevent seeing the dishes, but it wasn't necessary because it was completely dark. The staff had no problems moving around despite [2]_____.

In terms of the food, the chefs had been experimenting with different tastes and textures.

The guests couldn't [3]_____ – everything was decided by the chefs. The only exception would be made for guests with allergies or other special needs.

The writer's senses [4]_____ because of the darkness and he felt more adventurous, trying oysters for the first time. However, what he liked best was the rhubarb-and-apple crumble, which was [5]_____ the one he was used to eating.

Exercise 10
Suggested answers:
1 were taken away
2 being blind
3 choose their food/the dishes/what they ate
4 were/became enhanced/improved/heightened
5 quite unlike / very/completely different from

Exercise 10
- With books closed, ask students to work in pairs to summarize the passage from Oliver Twist as best they can. Ask students what information a summary should have and what it should avoid.
- Ask students to read the exercise 10 text and work in pairs to summarize it briefly in their own words.
- Then have students read the gapped summary and try to predict what information is missing from each sentence. When they have completed all the gaps, ask them to point to the passages in the text where they found the necessary information.

Exam tip
Remind students that the task usually asks them to rephrase the information from the text so it fits the gaps in the summary.

Exercise 4

Exam tip
Tell students to first read the text for general understanding. Then, they go through each item and analyse the differences between the options. Finally, they should look at the gapped sentences in more detail to decide which of the options is the correct answer for each gap.

Zadanie z lukami

6 Przeczytaj tekst. Uzupełnij każdą lukę (1–5) jednym wyrazem, tak aby powstał spójny i logiczny tekst. Wymagana jest pełna poprawność gramatyczna i ortograficzna uzupełnionych zdań.

What do you eat if you are a sumo wrestler?

Sumo wrestlers are some of the biggest athletes in the world. They are so big [1] that one may think they live on a diet of carbohydrates and junk food, but sumo wrestlers need to be extremely disciplined and they usually only eat two meals a day.

In traditional sumo training, the day begins with [2] a five-hour training session without breakfast. Then there's a lunch of vegetable stew with mushrooms and greens and, of course, rice. For dinner, athletes will [3] have/eat fried fish and noodles and maybe some fruit like bananas and pears.

So as [4] to be able to fight all year round, sumo training and following this diet is continuous. In an average day, a sumo wrestler [5] can get through around 4,000 calories – about double the amount for a normal person.

Minidialogi

7 Uzupełnij poniższe minidialogi (1–4). Wybierz spośród podanych opcji brakującą wypowiedź.

1 X: That was a delicious meal.
Y: _____
X: I don't think the service was that good.
A Should we pay the bill now?
B Do you want to book a table?
C Shall we leave the waiter a tip?

2 X: _____
Y: Are you always feeling hungry?
X: Yes, but I do feel healthier already.
A I'm finding it really hard to stick to the diet.
B I think I might go on a diet.
C I'd really like to lose some weight.

3 X: Should I turn the heat up or down on the oven?
Y: _____
X: Yes, but it doesn't say what to do now.
A Do you need to serve the dish when it's cool?
B How about simmering the sauce in the pan?
C I'm not sure, have you read the recipe?

4 X: Would you like another slice of cake?
Y: _____
X: I'll have it, then.
A Well, I'm not on a diet.
B No, thanks, I'm full.
C It's too salty for me.

Eating disorders

Eating disorders are mental disorders that manifest as modified eating habits. They are sometimes a result of [1] _____ problems and can often impact negatively on a person's physical as well as mental health.

Anorexia is when someone desperately tries to lose weight by refusing to eat enough food. Over a long period of time, this can have catastrophic effects on a person's health in terms of both [2] _____ and malnutrition.

Bulimia is a condition whereby someone [3] _____ eats too much. Those who suffer from it feel [4] _____ to get rid of the food they have consumed. Like anorexia, this can lead to malnutrition and other physical problems.

People with binge eating disorder tend to [5] _____ on a regular basis – they keep eating even though they are full. They often feel shame or guilt about their actions, which leads to feelings of low self-esteem.

Should you suffer from any of these disorders, do not hesitate to contact a doctor.

Tłumaczenie (zadanie otwarte)

E-mail

Pamiętaj, że stosowanie wyrażeń synonimicznych (np. it was big and great) oraz zestawienia słów odnoszących się do tego samego aspektu (np. I had to clean knives, forks and spoons) nie jest traktowane jako kolejne odniesienia do danego podpunktu polecenia. Aby podpunkt został uznany za rozwinięty, należy podać odmienne treści, które są z nim związane.

1 Przeczytaj zadanie i przykładową wypowiedź. Znajdź w niej niepotrzebne zdania, które powtarzają wcześniej wspomniane informacje lub zawierają zestawienia słów, odnoszących się do tego samego aspektu.

Nauczyciel języka angielskiego zaprosił twoją grupę na składkowe przyjęcie w swoim ogrodzie. W e-mailu do kolegi z Anglii:

- wyraź emocje, jakie wywołało w tobie to zaproszenie
- opisz reakcję kolegów i koleżanek na widok potrawy, którą przyniosłeś/przyniosłaś
- opisz, jaką niespodziankę przygotował nauczyciel
- wyraź opinię na temat przyjęć tego typu i zapytaj kolegę o jego zdanie.

Hi George,

Guess what! Our teacher invited us to a garden party. He asked us to bring one dish which we should prepare ourselves. When I heard about it, I was terrified. I am so bad at cooking!

I prepared a fruit salad with various kinds of berries. I used raspberries, strawberries, blueberries and cherries. Strangely enough, everybody said it was delicious!

The teacher surprised us and invited a famous chef. He is very well-known!

I had a really great time. I love garden parties because they are so informal and fun. Do you often go to such parties?

Best,

Janek

2 Przeczytaj wypowiedź z ćwiczenia 1 ponownie. Ile zawartych jest w tekście odniesień do każdego z podpunktów?

3 Uzupełnij poniższymi zdaniami wypowiedź z ćwiczenia 1 tak, aby do każdego podpunktu były minimum trzy odniesienia. Jedno zdanie zostało podane dodatkowo.

a We talked about a healthy and balanced diet and he gave us a few easy recipes.
b During the whole garden party the weather was wonderful.
c My classmates ate it all very quickly and asked me for the recipe.
d What do you think about them?
e I was afraid that nobody would like my dish and I would feel embarrassed.

4 Napisz tekst (100–150 wyrazów, nie licząc słów już podanych), w którym rozwiniesz każdy z czterech podpunktów.

Zaprosiłeś/Zaprosiłaś przyjaciół na uroczysty obiad. W e-mailu do kolegi z Anglii:

Warm up
• Revise with students what an informal email format involves.

Exercise 3
• Have students explain why the extra sentence is irrelevant.

Optional activity
Students write one relevant and one irrelevant sentence to add to the email for their partner to choose which one is relevant.

Exercise 4
• Ask students to work in pairs to brainstorm ideas and vocabulary they can use to complete the task.
• Remind them to use the phrases from the Writing box in their writing.
• Set the writing task as homework.

Exam tip
Remind students to learn by heart various set phrases commonly used in each type of task, so that it's easier for them to plan and write their text in the exam.

Optional activity
Work through the phrases in the Writing box and ask students if they can add any other phrases to the list.

How to learn vocabulary
- With books closed, explain to students that you will say a category for them to write as many words as they can from memory.
- Give them a few minutes to write the words they can remember. Students compare their lists in pairs, then open their books to check which words they have missed.
- Students work in pairs, testing each other on the vocabulary from the other categories in the same way.

Brainpower
- In pairs, students think of three words they can associate with Polish words and share their ideas with the class.

Sprawdź się!

Clothes SWAP

Date: 17th June
Venue: Millbank School Hall

Have you got clothes in your wardrobe that you don't wear anymore?

Are you bored of wearing the same things all the time?

Instead of going to the shops and buying brand new clothes, come to our clothes swap party! You could find treasure amongst the clothes that other people are getting rid of.

The idea is simple: bring some clothing that you don't want and exchange your items for something that someone else has brought to the party.

There's a changing room to try things on so you can see if they suit and fit you.

It's a great social occasion, so bring your friends and enjoy a selection of drinks and snacks (for a small charge that will be donated to charity).

Hi Gina,

Have you seen the advert for the clothes swap party? I think it's a great idea. I have a lot of clothes that I don't wear. Most of them don't suit me anymore. I'd really like to get something I could wear to my aunt's wedding in August and a few other things, because most of my clothes just don't excite me anymore. How about you? I hope you're free that day, and I think we should try to get Mike and Tasha to come, too.

Sherry x

Warm up
• Ask students what their favourite clothes are. Do they wear them repeatedly or like to buy new ones frequently?

Exercise 1

Optional activity
Have a class discussion on the problems that fast fashion is causing the environment, and whether events like clothes swapping might help ease these problems.

Exercise 3
• After reading the texts, ask students if they would like to attend a clothes swap party and, if so, what clothes they would take there. Encourage students to give reasons.

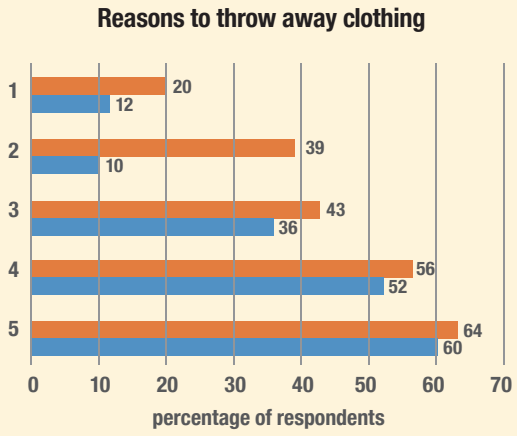

Differentiation
Ask students to work in pairs and discuss what each text talks about before completing the exercise.

Optional activity
Refer to Text C and have students say which category they think they fall into.

Tekst C

SIMON: Yes, I'm definitely going. I was shocked by the chart we looked at in class about the reasons why people get rid of clothes they no longer require.

GEORGIA: @Simon Me, too. Many things are thrown away because they're damaged or broken, so wouldn't it be good if we could repair these at the party?

GINA: @Georgia Great idea! I've got a sewing machine so I can do that. I could also alter things if the size isn't right.

GEORGIA: @Gina That's amazing. I think you should charge a little for that service, though. I'd definitely pay!

Hi Tasha,

I'd really like you to come to the clothes swap party on 17th June. It's a party where you bring along clothes that you don't want anymore and swap them for other clothes.

It's a great way to save money and to help the environment. I read a report that said the main reason people throw things away is because the clothes [1]_____ them. Interestingly, it's people aged [2]_____ who are more likely to throw clothing away.

Anyway, exchanging clothes is great because one person's unwanted clothes may be someone else's [3]_____. You never know!

As I'm good at sewing, I'm going to offer to fix clothes that are faulty at the party and [4]_____ items that are too big.

I hope you can come.

A Offering more than pure escapism, it has also been praised for its educational value.

B The impetus for this change came from the players, who demanded a new type of game.

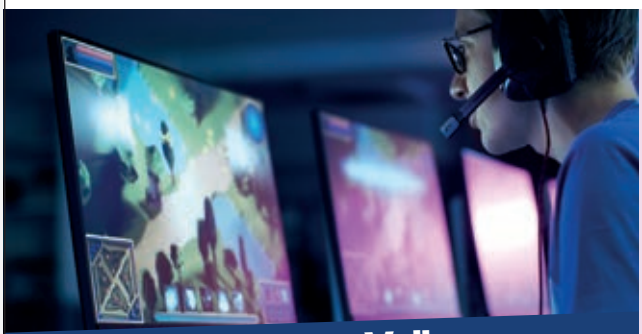

C It created a rather unique situation – Polish developers had a market ready for their games and no competitors.

D However, in the midst of all this fallout caused by market readjustment, one form of entertainment media is booming.

E With around 440 studios developing some 500 games a year, there is great scope for innovation.

F Instead, they often look much closer to home for inspiration.

Goodbye Silicon Valley, Hello … Poland!

Music sales are plummeting due to the popularity of free streaming services. Similarly, film studios are also suffering, because old forms of distribution, such as DVDs, no longer appeal to the younger generation. [1] ___D___ The computer games industry is going from strength to strength. Indeed, computer games sales in 2020 grew to $56.9 billion in the US alone, which is more than films and music combined. It seems that the possibilities are endless for those who are in touch with the needs and desires of the new generation of gamers, which is very promising news for one of the current centres of game design worldwide. We're not talking about the legendary software hub of California's Silicon Valley, though. In fact, a huge number of top coders and game designers today are based in Poland.

While being fairly new, the Polish video games industry has long reached the level where it has become a serious business. However, there's still room for fresh ideas, and budding developers have plenty of opportunity to find a producer if they have a brainwave and want to develop their idea into a marketable video game. [2] ___E___ Furthermore, there are programmes which can provide support to coders trying to kick off their careers. Some universities work with established studios to seek out new talent. High school graduates can submit their ideas, and the best ones are given places at the university as well as technical support to help them put the finishing touches to their work.

Anyone analysing Poland's success will be struck by the fact that the developers haven't tried to copy American or Japanese ideas when seeking engaging subject matter. [3] ___F___ One of the hottest games in recent history has turned out to be The Witcher. It is based on novels by Polish author Andrzej Sapkowski, which were given a new lease of life as a computer game series. In the same way, the game Warsaw takes place during the events of the 1944 Warsaw Uprising during the Second World War. [4] ___A___ The game's designers have touched on something important here: the universal need of gamers worldwide to learn about the real events of the past through their favourite entertainment medium.

The past is also where we need to look to understand how the Polish games industry got the Midas touch. After the fall of communism, there were very few modern personal computers available, as Poles mostly had 8-bit machines which were already outdated. Foreign companies weren't interested in making products for these older computers. [5] ___C___ The enormous demand gave them a chance to learn their trade and grow. When up-to-date computers finally became available in Poland at the beginning of the 1990s, Polish coders were able to adapt quickly and started working their magic writing games for this new wave of PCs. Within a year, Polish programmers had released Electro Man, one of the first Polish games to be exported to the US. From that small start, the Polish computer games industry has grown into the behemoth that it is today.

Exercise 7
- Ask students to look at the title and images and ask what they think the text will be about. Then refer students to options A–F and discuss what further information they can gather about the text.

Exam tip
After reading the text as a whole, students can look at the sentences before and after the gaps and find the reference words to decide how they are linked to sentences A–F.

Optional activity
Ask students what books or comics they have read which they think would make great video games. Encourage students to discuss the plot and what the video game version might offer.

Opis ilustracji i odpowiedzi na trzy pytania

Po opisaniu zdjęcia i udzieleniu odpowiedzi na pytanie bezpośrednio go dotyczące, zostaniesz poproszony/poproszona o odpowiedź na dwa kolejne pytania. Pierwsze z nich jest luźno związane z tematyką ilustracji i dotyczy twoich opinii, nawyków i preferencji. Opisując swoje przyzwyczajenia i upodobania, używaj odpowiednich czasów gramatycznych i typowych dla nich zwrotów.

1 061 Wysłuchaj nagrania i dopasuj poniższe pytania do odpowiedzi uczniów.

A What are your favourite shops? Why? 4
B Which do you prefer: buying online or in traditional shops? Why? 1
C Do you get excited about sales and discounts? Why? / Why not? 2
D Which do you think is the best way to pay: in cash or by card? 3

2 061 Wysłuchaj nagrania ponownie. Które zwroty wyróżnione w ramce poniżej zostały wykorzystane w nagraniu?

Opisywanie swoich preferencji i upodobań

I like/love buying books.
I can't stand/hate running from shop to shop.
I'm really keen on electronic gadgets.
I prefer to buy groceries in a traditional shop rather than online.
I prefer buying things online to traditional shopping.
I wouldn't like to work in advertising.
I would never buy a real leather jacket.

Exercise 5
'To buy or not to buy?' is the question we should always have in mind when making shopping decisions.
I wouldn't choose option number two, because the idea of the 'Buy Nothing Day' doesn't solve the problem.

Warm up
• Ask students to give three advantages and three disadvantages of shopping online. Ask them if they think the advantages outweigh the disadvantages.

Wpis na blogu

W swojej wypowiedzi możesz odnosić się do podpunktów polecenia w dowolnej kolejności. Pamiętaj jednak, że ten sam fragment tekstu nie może być traktowany jako zaliczenie dwóch różnych podpunktów. Budując swoją wypowiedź zgodnie z porządkiem narzuconym przez polecenie, będziesz miał/miała pewność, że odniosłeś/odniosłaś się do każdego podpunktu i odpowiednio go rozwinąłeś/rozwinęłaś.

1 Przeczytaj zadanie i przykładową wypowiedź. Uporządkuj akapity (A–C) zgodnie z kolejnością podpunktów w poleceniu.

Umówiłeś się / Umówiłaś się ze znajomymi na spotkanie w centrum handlowym. Na swoim blogu:
- wyjaśnij, dlaczego spotkaliście się w centrum handlowym
- zrelacjonuj niefortunną sytuację, która miała miejsce podczas spotkania
- zaprezentuj zalety centrów handlowych
- przedstaw ich wady.

Hi everybody,

Yesterday I went with a bunch of friends to the biggest shopping centre in town.

A I understand those who don't like shopping centres. They are usually crowded and noisy. White artificial light and Muzak make you tired. As a result, you spend too much money on things you don't need.

B We met in the shopping centre because, besides shops, it offers all kinds of entertainment. We wanted to go to the cinema, and then to a bowling alley. Those places are close to each other so it was convenient.

C We were having fun bowling when Karolina realized she didn't have her mobile phone. We came back to the cinema and the phone was waiting for her at the ticket office. Someone found it and gave it back to the checkout assistants.

2 Przeczytaj ponownie wypowiedź z ćwiczenia 1. Do którego podpunktu polecenia autor się nie odniósł?

3 Z poniższych fragmentów wybierz ten, który najlepiej uzupełni wypowiedź z ćwiczenia 1.

1 I like shopping centres. I live in a big city so there are a few of them. Most often I go there with my parents, but sometimes I go on my own, just to do window shopping. It's also my favourite place to spend free time with friends.

2 I like shopping centres. You can buy everything under one roof. And when you have finished shopping, you can go to a restaurant or café. You can spend time in sports clubs, enjoy cinemas or museums, so it's a place where everybody can have fun.

4 Napisz tekst (100–150 wyrazów, nie licząc słów już podanych), w którym rozwiniesz każdy z czterech podpunktów.

W twojej okolicy niedawno otwarto wielkie centrum handlowe. We wpisie na swoim blogu:
- wyjaśnij, dlaczego jesteś zadowolony/zadowolona ze zbudowania tego centrum
- opisz, jakie atrakcje ono oferuje
- zrelacjonuj, jak wyglądało jego uroczyste otwarcie
- zapytaj czytelników, czy lubią spędzać czas w centrach handlowych i zachęć do odwiedzenia tego w twojej okolicy.

Warm up
- Ask students what they think about shopping centres and if what they offer can be seen as an advantage or a disadvantage.

Exercise 1

Optional activity
In pairs, students write a paragraph about a visit to a shopping mall but not in chronological order. They swap with another pair who has to put the sentences in order.

Exercise 3
- In pairs, ask students to come up with another alternative to complete the text in exercise 1.

Exercise 4
- Ask students to work in pairs. They complete the sentences in the Writing box with their own ideas so they can be used in their text.
- Set the writing task as homework.

Exam tip
Students should first make brief notes on what each paragraph of their blog post will contain before they start writing.

Optional activity
Students can assess each other's ideas and plans before they start writing and give constructive feedback.

How to learn vocabulary

- Ask students to choose ten words or phrases from the wordlist that they find interesting or have difficulty learning.
- They work in pairs and swap words with their partner, who has to define the words in English as best they can.
- Students check their answers in pairs and then make sentences with the words.

Brainpower

- Students work in pairs. They choose three words from the wordlist and make sentences using words that begin with the letters used to spell the words they chose from the wordlist.

Sprawdź się!

Optional activity
Ask students to make similar sentences containing an extra word for their partner to identify.

TEN tips to keep you safe in a foreign country

First of all, travel insurance should not be considered optional when you travel abroad. The possible dangers are plenty: you might lose your travel [1]_____ or even get a tropical disease!

- Look up medical advice on any [2]_____ you may need to have before leaving. If you're going somewhere hot then take insect [3]_____ for the mosquitos. They transmit malaria and other diseases.
- Take some emergency [4]_____ and hide it well. Also make sure you have your emergency [5]_____ written down on a piece of paper as well as saved on your phone.
- Allow yourself some time to acclimatize to the weather. Stay out of the sun to prevent yourself getting [6]_____.
- If you can't blend in with the locals, be wary. Criminals like to prey on unsuspecting tourists, so keep an eye on your [7]_____. Also look out for [8]_____ where people try to trick you out of your money.

3 repellent
4 cash
5 information
6 sunstroke
7 belongings
8 scams

Exercise 11
- Ask students to explain the meaning of the words in the box before completing the exercise.
- Have students say which of these features are in their area and which ones they often experience, e.g. Traffic jams are always a problem in my city during rush hour. I always cross at the zebra crossings because it's safer.

Exercise 12
- Have students give the Polish equivalent of each word in bold before they start doing the exercise.

Exercise 13
- Have students change partners for each question as they answer. Then, once the exercise is completed, have the class share the different answers they received.

Exercise 14
- With books closed, ask students to work in pairs and come up with as many travel tips as they can. Hold a short feedback session.
- After students have completed the exercise, ask them to check if the tips in the text are similar to their ideas.

3 Przeczytaj tekst, z którego usunięto cztery zdania. W każdą lukę (1–4) wpisz literę, którą oznaczono brakujące zdanie (A–E), tak aby otrzymać spójny i logiczny tekst. Jedno zdanie zostało podane dodatkowo i nie pasuje do żadnej luki.

A The Tuareg men later took him to the police.
B Prosperi was unable to explain what had happened to him.
C It provided shelter from the hot desert sun and winds, but no-one came.
D Eight hours later the clouds of sand had passed.
E He called to her for help but by now he looked like a skeleton.

Mauro Prosperi had travelled to Morocco in the Sahara Desert to compete in the Marathon des Sables. Four days into the week-long event he found himself in the middle of a sandstorm. Prosperi lost sight of the other competitors but he believed he could see the trail and continued through the storm. ¹ D . Prosperi climbed to higher ground to search the horizon for the others. But there was no-one in sight and the storm had removed all trace of the trail markings. He was lost and alone in the Sahara Desert.

Before long he saw a rescue helicopter overhead. He was convinced that it had come for him and tried to attract its attention, but it passed by. Hours later he found an abandoned building and hoped someone, a fellow traveller perhaps, would come by eventually. ² C . Several days passed. He had some supplies with him, a little food and a small stove, but finding water was impossible. He managed to stay alive by licking water from the cool rocks each morning, squeezing liquid from the packet of wet tissues he was carrying and eating raw bats and beetles. But in the desert heat it wasn't enough.

Warm up
• Ask students what dangers or problems people can face when travelling to unknown and remote places.

Exercise 2
• Before students complete the exercise, work through items 1–4, asking for key words and ideas they expect to read about for each of the items.

Differentiation
Have students look at the title and images in the text and predict what the text might be about in relation to travel difficulties. Ask if anyone has travelled to the desert and what it was like as an experience.

Exercise 3
• Have students read the text and then close their books. Check understanding of the text by asking them different questions about it.
• Students then complete the exercise. Ask students if, having read the text, they would want to travel through a desert and why / why not.

Prosperi became certain he would not survive at the shelter. He eventually left and continued his desperate search for a human settlement. On day eight he found a puddle of water – a small oasis. His throat was too dry and swollen to drink at first, but he managed to sip a little. Nearby he noticed a trail left by goats and then some human footprints. He followed them and soon saw a girl from a Tuareg tribe. [3] ___E___. The girl, however, was so frightened by his appearance that she ran away.

However, after a while the girl returned with her grandma. They took Prosperi to their camp where he was given a little mint tea. [4] ___A___. The authorities first believed he was a spy and interrogated him, but after a while they accepted his story. He was able to call his family back in Italy and received seven days of medical treatment. During his journey he had walked 180 km, lost 15 kilos and wandered across the border into Algeria. But he had survived, and was welcomed home a hero.

Exercise 4
- Students might feel more comfortable with the new vocabulary if they translate each item into Polish at this stage.
- Ask students to use the words in sample sentences to check understanding.

Exercise 6
- Before the exercise, have students explain the meaning of each word in the boxes.
- After the exercise, ask students to work in pairs and come up with three more examples of compound nouns.
- Hold a short feedback session and put the best ideas on the board.

Exercise 8
- Ask students to think about the task and say how they would use the different meanings of lost in their description.
- Place students in pairs for them to complete the exercise. Monitor for the correct usage of the adjective lost.
- Students swap their descriptions with other pairs. Ask selected pairs to read their descriptions to the class.

- B He wishes he'd made different choices.
- C He feels glad to have come.
- D He worries about its impact on the local area.

Dive trip: day 1

I was worried that the waters between these densely forested conical islands would be packed with dive tourists. I'd read that each year a million people qualify to join a formal diving expedition and many head straight here, to the 'coral triangle' of the Philippines, Malaysia and Indonesia. And once I'd made my way from the airport on a tortuous tuk-tuk ride to the coast, I could see why tourists flock here. The sea is blue, the waters are warm and the conditions are perfect for diving. However, I needn't have worried about crowds – since setting sail we've barely seen another tour group.

That's partly because I decided to stay on a 'liveaboard' boat with four others so we could really get off the beaten track. But, as the tour leader was telling us, there are simple reasons why tourism isn't particularly developed here. Sprawling waterfront resorts would only destroy the ribbons of corals and mangrove trees that hug the coastlines, and the propellers of cruise ships would destroy or scare off marine life. So, to maintain the healthy marine ecosystem that diving so clearly relies on, the nature-based tourism that dominates here takes place from various eco-lodges and small sailing vessels, like ours. Apparently there are plenty of small resorts dotted around, but they're spread out amongst Indonesia's 17,000 islands and are well-hidden.

Anyway, I had my first dive this morning and, I can tell you, four weeks' scuba training in swimming pools does nothing to prepare you for the magic of underwater diving here. It completely overwhelms the senses. An array of brightly coloured fish dart in and out of the pristine corals while reef sharks, turtles and manta rays survey the reef from overhead. After the dive, once you regain the power of speech, you'll be chatting about little else.

It wasn't all great, though. Near the beach I saw some shark carcasses that had been de-finned, which was a bit of a shock. The marine life here is officially protected, and protected in practice, too, as far as possible. In fact, some of the money from our dives goes towards paying locals to patrol the beaches and bringing poachers to justice. Lots of volunteers come from abroad, too – especially from Australia – to help out. These efforts have managed to stop a lot of the destructive fishing practices, which have even involved dropping dynamite into water, but there is still a bit of poaching going on.

Anyway, as I sit in this beachfront café enjoying my hot and sour Indonesian prawns, it's kind of good to know that my holiday fee is helping to protect this place, and there's plenty still to look forward to. Tonight, once the prawns have gone down, I'm going to do a night dive, during which a night-shift of sea creatures, like starry octopuses and Spanish dancers (colourful sea slugs), can be seen. I'm beyond excited. Expect lots of photos!

Exercise 9
- Ask students to quietly read the text, then say what it is about and what information they found interesting.

Exam tip
After they have read the text, tell students to read the questions and try to answer them without referring to the multiple choice items. They then read the text again and look at the options given in the task – are any of these similar to their ideas?

Culture note
The Coral Triangle is an area in the western Pacific Ocean between Indonesia, Malaysia, Papua New Guinea, the Philippines, the Solomon Islands and Timor-Leste. The area contains almost 600 species of corals. Over 120 million people live in the Coral Triangle. They rely on the coral reefs for food, income and natural protection from storms.

Twoja wypowiedź musi być spójna i logiczna. Zadbaj o to, aby jej początek był naturalną kontynuacją podanego w zadaniu początku wypowiedzi. Zwróć uwagę na zaimki i spójniki, gdyż ich niepoprawne użycie może spowodować, że odbiorca pogubi się, czytając tekst. Informacje kluczowe dla zrozumienia treści powinny być przekazane klarownie. Nie powinny zawierać fragmentów sprzecznych z ogólnie przyjętymi zasadami rozumowania.

1 Poniżej znajdują się przykłady zdań zawierających usterki co do spójności i logiki. Wskaż te usterki i zapisz poprawione zdania w zeszycie.

1 She hates sunny weather – that's why she went on holidays to Egypt.
2 Although I lost my boarding pass, I couldn't get on the plane.
3 The guide was a handsome young man. She knew a lot about the places we visited.
4 We decided to go by fairy, but the crossing was rough. It was stormy weather and the fairy was crowded.

Hi Chris,
Guess what! I just came back from a wonderful holiday in the most exotic place I had ever been to!
(1) I'm sorry for not writing to you for so long, but I was on holidays. Imagine a tropical island in the Caribbean Sea – high mountains, green valleys and magnificent waterfalls. Palm trees grow everywhere, but the most beautiful parts are the wide, sandy beaches and blue ocean waters.
(2) Those beaches are fabulous, however I spent most of the time there, sunbathing and snorkelling. I also took a trip to the national park. It is a bay with rocky islands, mangroves and caves which I explored by boat.
I had a great time there and it is thanks to our travel agency. I didn't need to worry about anything. (3) She even found an apartment with a breathtaking view over the bay at my request. They did an amazing job.
After such a holiday I can't stop thinking about the next one already. (4) This time I want to go to Japonia. First I'll spend a few days in the capital, then I'll sightsee the rest of the country. What are your plans for the next holiday?
Best,
Maciej

3 Zdania z tekstu z ćwiczenia 2 zawierające usterki zastąp zdaniami zamieszczonymi poniżej, tak aby otrzymać spójną i logiczną wypowiedź.

a Those beaches are so fabulous, that I spent most of the time there, sunbathing and snorkelling.
b This time I want to go to Japan.
c My hotel was conveniently situated next to the beach.
d They even found an apartment with a breathtaking view over the bay at my request.

4 Napisz tekst (100–150 wyrazów, nie licząc słów już podanych), w którym rozwiniesz każdy z czterech podpunktów.

Planujesz wakacje i piszesz do kolegi, który odwiedził wiele egzotycznych miejsc. W e-mailu do kolegi:
- napisz, dokąd się wybierasz, i wyjaśnij, dlaczego wybrałeś/wybrałaś to miejsce
- opisz, jak przygotowujesz się do wyjazdu
- opisz emocje związane z wyjazdem
- poproś o wskazówki i obiecaj, że prześlesz mu ciekawe zdjęcia.

Hi Ben,
I decided to follow your example and this year I chose an exotic destination for my holiday.

How to learn vocabulary

- Give students a few minutes to remind themselves of the categories in the wordlist.
- With books closed, students write two words that they can remember from each category for their partner to use to write sentences with.
- In pairs, students check that they have used the words correctly in their sentences.

Brainpower

- Ask students to choose three words or phrases that they will try to learn at home using the memory palace technique. During the next class, ask them if they have found this technique useful.

Sprawdź się!

Optional activity
Ask students to make their own sentences with Polish phrases for their partner to translate.

BRAINPOWER

Nasze mózgi lepiej zapamiętują słowa w połączeniu z obrazem i ruchem. Wykorzystaj swoją wyobraźnię przestrzenną i zastosuj metodę memory palace. Spróbuj zwizualizować sobie nowe pojęcia w znanej ci przestrzeni, np. swoim mieszkaniu lub domu. Dopasuj słowa do miejsc (np. kuchni, sypialni, łazienki). W trakcie swojej mentalnej przechadzki po „pałacu pamięci" możesz zaprojektować przejścia i korytarze, co ułatwi ci zapamiętanie informacji w konkretnej kolejności.

Dobieranie zdań do części tekstu / Tekst z lukami

1 Przeczytaj wskazówkę, a następnie – cztery teksty na temat festiwalu the Fringe i dopasuj je do zdań A–C. Jeden tekst nie pasuje do żadnego zdania.

W pierwszym zadaniu należy dopasować trzy zdania do czterech tekstów. Jeden z tekstów nie pasuje do żadnego ze zdań. Postaraj się znaleźć w zdaniach słowa kluczowe i poszukaj fragmentów tekstu, które do nich pasują.

A This text encourages people to perform at the Fringe. 2
B This text tells you where to look for financial advice. 1
C This text tells you where to find information about the theatres at the Fringe. 4

Looking to appear at the Edinburgh Fringe but are short of cash? Come to our meeting to learn how to find companies to sponsor your appearance at the festival. The meeting is on Wednesday 9th June in room 112 at the Drama Department.

Unlike other drama festivals, the Edinburgh Fringe is an open access arts festival. You won't need to convince a selection board to be able to put on your show. Only here can you enjoy complete artistic freedom! Take advantage of this and come to Edinburgh to impress the festival audience with your performance!

Even if money is no object and you have all your costumes and sets ready, your problems are not over. There is intense competition for places at the limited number of theatres in the city, not just the most well-known ones, so you must start making inquiries early.

Our website will allow you to review and rate the festival venues. It is an essential aid to those who cannot visit Edinburgh in person before the Fringe, for example international visitors.

2 Przeczytaj cztery teksty związane z konkursem talentów. Dopasuj do każdego zdania (1–3) właściwy tekst (A–D). Jeden tekst nie pasuje do żadnego zdania.

1 In this text we can find out about the way in which the organizers support the contestants. B
2 This text outlines the limitations that should be considered by the candidates. A
3 In this text the author offers advice about preparing for the competition. D

Tekst A

We are hosting a Citywide Talent Competition. If you are aged 13–18 and attend any school within the city limits, you can get involved. We accept entries from any of the performing arts, such as:
• drama • music • dance.

However, you don't have to do any of the above, as long as your act can be performed on stage.

To be shortlisted, apply through your school and include a three-minute video showing your act. All applications must be received by 30th April. The best entries will be invited to a final show at the Central Theatre on Saturday 15th May.

The winners, as well as the runners-up, will get an opportunity to perform on TV3's live arts show, Front Row. Further details are available on our website.

Tekst B

Send

Hi guys,

Thanks for joining us for the Citywide Talent Competition. It seems like we are the only finalists doing a comedy show. Most others are rock bands, which is good, because it will be easier for us to stand out from the crowd!

The event has their own make-up artists who will be providing assistance for the performers. We ought to take some selfies beforehand to show how we want our faces to look. That way they'll know exactly what we have in mind.

Looking forward to the big day!

Charlie

Warm up
• Ask students to say if they have ever taken part in talent shows or competitions and, if so, what type. Ask them which talent shows are popular in Poland and why they think people take part in them.

Exercise 1
• Ask students if they would take part in the Edinburgh Fringe festival and what challenges they think they might come across.

Differentiation
Before reading options A–C, ask students to read each text 1–4. Then, as a class, go through each text and have students say what it is about.

Exercise 2
• Ask students to read all the texts first to get a general idea of what each text is about.

Differentiation
Ask students to work in pairs to complete the exercise, then check answers with another pair before a class feedback session.

Exam tip
Remind students that each item in the task matches a different text, and that one of the texts doesn't match any of the sentences.

Tekst C

Noah Are you guys all prepared for the talent competition?

Hazel Yeah, we have our dance routine pretty much ready.

Cora There are a couple of moves that we're still working on because the music is a bit fast.

Noah My friend has just pointed out something I'm not sure you know – you mustn't use recordings in the competition. Everything has to be played live.

Cora What? Nobody told us!

Hazel We don't have time to fix it because there's only a fortnight left before we go on stage. We can't put a band together.

Noah We are looking for dancers. Why don't you guys work with us? The music is ready, so we have time to sort it all out before the show.

Cora I'm not sure.

Hazel Come on, Cora, we have to give it a go. We've gone too far to back out now.

Cora I suppose we do dance to rock music from time to time.

Noah That's settled then! Come to our band practice today in the music room after school.

Tekst D

Citywide Talent Competition

The Citywide Talent Competition is now entering its fourth year. The event continues to go from strength to strength and remains a major launchpad for careers. Last year's winner, the Great Luisa, has already taken her magic show on tour throughout the country.

Other previous champions have gone on to stage school and are actively hoping to make it as professional actors.

For aspiring entrants, we have the following words of wisdom: When preparing the audition video, focus on showing your skills as well as possible, and not on making a fancy film. Don't spend ages trying out filters or using computer tricks to create an expert video. The judges are interested in your act, not your skill as a film director.

3 Przeczytaj e-mail od Noah do jego kolegi. Uzupełnij luki 1–4 zgodnie z treścią tekstów (A–D), tak aby jak najbardziej precyzyjnie oddać ich sens. Luki należy uzupełnić w języku angielskim. W każdą lukę można wpisać maksymalnie dwa wyrazy.

Hi Brad,
The Citywide Talent Competition was so cool! Our band took part but, unfortunately, most of the bands played [1] _____ like us, so it was difficult to attract the attention of the jury. As a result, the winner was a comedy show. However, we were invited to appear on TV because we were [2] _____.
Best of all, we have changed our act after a girls' dance group joined us. Because [3] _____ wasn't allowed in the competition, they couldn't do their original dance act, so we asked them to work with us. We only had [4] _____ of rehearsal time, but it all came together in the end. Our final show was much better as a result!

Ask students to first read through the email and try to predict what information is missing from each gap. Then they work in pairs to find the information they need for each gap in the texts, and rephrase it if necessary so it fits the gaps in the email.

Exercise 4
- Students can use the phrasal verbs in sentences of their own to help further their understanding before moving on to the next exercise.

Exercise 5
- Ask students for the Polish equivalents of the phrasal verbs. Then ask pairs to come up with one more phrasal verb with up and use it in a sample sentence.
- Hold a short class feedback session and put the new verbs on the board.

In which paragraph does the author

1 suggest a reason why graphic novels are innovative? D
2 mention a graphic novel that triumphed over traditional writing? D
3 refer to a graphic novel whose content is both traditional and original? B
4 state that a certain term cannot be used literally anymore? C
5 describe an early attempt to raise the artistic profile of comics? A

A No bookshop today would be complete without a section dedicated to graphic novels, yet the history of this art form is surprisingly short. Most experts agree that comics for adults first appeared in the United States in the 1970s. Of course, comics as an art form had been recognized beforehand. Pop artists like Roy Lichtenstein had hung huge comic-book style images in galleries back in the 1960s. Yet despite that early interest in the visual element, it was only the emergence of graphic novels that put the focus on the ideas behind the images.

B What exactly is a graphic novel? One rule of thumb is that it is a story with adult-orientated content, a sophisticated narrative and some kind of meaning beyond simple entertainment. It does not have to be published in a single volume. Perhaps the greatest graphic novel, Watchmen, originally came out in twelve monthly comic books. It centred around the adventures of superheroes, which doesn't sound very groundbreaking. Nevertheless, it had a smart plot that jumped around in time, coupled with an attempt to question what would happen if these characters existed in real life. The audacity of it all made the critics' collective jaws drop.

C Graphic novels were revolutionary in countries like the US, where critics would once have turned their nose up at the idea of reviewing such childish material. Comics had traditionally been seen there as reading material for kids. The very term 'comics' refers to the fact that the early ones had predominantly funny stories for young readers, and the name stuck regardless of whether the content was humorous or not. Elsewhere, comics for a mature audience had been available for a long time. In France, highbrow writers had long heralded artists such as Moebius as masters of 'the ninth art': graphic novels are placed there, while the other 'arts' include painting, literature, and so on. Likewise, adults had been reading comics in Japan for decades. Stories such as the samurai adventures of Lone Wolf and Cub contained adult levels of violence that made them utterly inappropriate for the traditional pre-teen readership that existed in the US.

D Today, the graphic novel has become a diverse and vibrant art form, possibly because its relatively short existence gives a lot of freedom to its creators. They have used the medium to explore social change, such as in Persepolis, Marjane Satrapi's 2000 account of growing up during the Iranian revolution. Others concentrate on illness, both physical and mental, like Dotter of her Father's Eyes by Mary and Bryan Talbot. The story made a breakthrough for all comics when it won the Costa Biography Award, a prize usually given to traditional textual accounts. Bit by bit, graphic novel pioneers like these are demanding that their medium be noticed and get the recognition it deserves.

Exercise 6

- Refer students to the heading and ask them to say what a graphic novel is and why they think such novels are popular. Have them say if they enjoy reading graphic novels, and why / why not.
- Before they read the text, ask students to read items 1–5 and make sure they know what specific information they are looking for in each question.

Exam tip

Remind students that one of the paragraphs includes the answers to two questions so, until they find it, they should always consider all the paragraphs while looking for answers.

How to learn vocabulary

- Ask students to choose ten words or phrases from the wordlist and to write them on a slip of paper.
- They swap papers with a partner, who has to translate the words into Polish.
- Students then check against the wordlist to make sure they have the correct translation, and then make sentences with the words to present to the class.

Brainpower

- Students work in pairs. At home, they choose a short scene from a TV series they like, and try to role-play it following the pronunciation, speed and intonation from the series. Then they role-play the scene in class.

Sprawdź się!

Optional activity
Ask students to pick five items from the wordlist and write sentences with them. Then ask them to rewrite these including Polish translations of the phrases. Students work in pairs and exchange their sentences with their partner, who has to read them and complete them with the English translations of the phrases in brackets.

BRAINPOWER

Gdy oglądasz swój ulubiony serial w oryginalnej wersji językowej, możesz wykorzystać elementy techniki zwanej shadowing. Najpierw obejrzyj cały odcinek, a następnie skoncentruj się na jego wybranych fragmentach. Powtarzaj na głos wypowiedzi bohaterów i postaraj się wiernie odtworzyć wymowę, tempo mówienia oraz intonację.

Sprawdź się!

1 Fragmenty zdań w języku polskim przetłumacz na język angielski.

1 Cheryl loves Mamma Mia!, so she (chciałaby zobaczyć) _____ this musical on stage.
2 Do you know (dlaczego on nie pojawił się) _____ at the concert tonight?
3 (Czy musimy być) _____ there early if we want to get good seats?
4 Many people associate traditional Polish food with (kotletami wieprzowymi i kapustą) _____.
5 (Chciałabym złożyć skargę) _____ about the service I've received.
6 A: Which coach should I take?
B: You can take (jeden albo drugi) _____; (oba jadą) _____ direct to Berlin.

Warm up
• Have a class discussion on the benefits of sport and what students do to keep fit. Ask how often they do sports, what sports they do, and how they feel afterwards.

Exercise 1

Differentiation
Students take turns to say a key word for the other to say the sport, e.g. Student 1: snow, Student 2: skiing.

Exercise 2
• Tell students that some of the sports in the word box can be used more than once.

Exercise 4
• If necessary, draw a shuttlecock on the board for students to understand what it is.

Exercise 5
• Ask students to cover the word box and try to complete the exercise with their own ideas. They then look at the word box to see if they have chosen the same verbs.

Exercise 6 087

KEEPING FIT
while you work or study from home!

Try some of our simple and effective exercises that you can do between online lessons or meetings. Circuit [1] training / exercising is primarily a resistance-training workout where you lift weights or use your muscles. In contrast, interval training is a cardio [2] training / workout where you try to get your heart beating really fast.

Get your heart pumping. Intensive exercise doesn't mean you have to go on a five-kilometre run. You can jog on the spot, do star jumps or [3] burpees / stretches.

Work on your core strength. Home training with several different exercises can be extremely effective to tone your body and keep fit. For your legs, try [4] lunges / crunches and squats. For your stomach, lie down flat and do [5] sit ups / push ups but don't forget to bend your knees. Also work on doing a plank – get yourself into the [6] stand up / push up position but with your elbows on the floor and hold it for thirty seconds to a minute.

The making of Robert Lewandowski

Robert Lewandowski is Poland's super striker, one of the world's greatest football players. He is fast, smart and incredibly strong. ¹ D In 2006, when he was eighteen, his club Legia Warsaw released him because he was too thin. Missing out on an opportunity to play for a big club would have broken many other players, but after this early shock he became only more determined to succeed.

After this difficult start, Robert started playing for other clubs in Poland and his career soon picked up. From third division Znicz Pruszków, he went on to sign a contract with German giants Borussia Dortmund in 2010. He was already starting to show the marks of a great player. In 2013 he married his wife Anna, who is also a sportswoman and a nutritionist. ² C In the past he had a sweet tooth, but now he resolved to completely change his diet to maximize his fitness. To do so, he cut out food that was high in sugar and fat, and only drank smoothies, vegetable juices or water.

6 to do an action after completing another one

Warm up
• Ask students if they would ever want to be professional athletes. Ask if they think an athlete's life is difficult and have them give reasons. To encourage them, say: I wouldn't want to be an athlete because I'd find it difficult sticking to a strict routine.

Exercise 2
• Ask students to identify reference words that link the text and sentences A–E.

Exercise 3

Exam tip
When answering questions in the exam, tell students to make sure they stay on topic.

Exercise 4
• Before looking at the definitions, ask students to look at the highlighted words in the text and try to explain their meaning from the context. Then they match them to the definitions.

But that was only one part of the story. Lewandowski also hit the gym, where he took up a new exercise programme. His new workout routine was broken down into segments focusing on particular skills such as, for example, increasing acceleration. However, he also worked out with ropes and weights to build power, strength and endurance. [3] E This new training routine proved to be a major success and the results amazed his teammates at his next club Bayern Munich. They called him 'the body' because he was all muscle!

The skinny teenager was now super fit. Because he stuck to his training routine, he was hardly ever injured and he was always ready for a game. [4] A He even had a sleep coach to improve his sleep at night! As there are other aspects to sport than just the physical, he also does other exercises that help him to concentrate during a game. Strikers need to be ready for action in an instant. As we can see, all that training clearly works because when Lewandowski shoots, more often than not, he scores!

1 The reason Ella starts her speech with a quote is to make _____.
2 Ella isn't satisfied with what she wrote in her notebook because _____.
3 Ella is slow to start speaking because she _____.
4 Using the words old friend to refer to a metaphor, Ella implies that she _____.

HALF-TIME

'It's a game of two halves,' said Ella, slipping her favourite football quote in at the start of her half-time talk, thinking that she couldn't go wrong with humour. The team stared back at her in stony silence. They were right to be crestfallen. Although they'd put up a good fight, the opposition were on fire today and the half-time score was three nil. Ella needed more than a few jokes to turn things around.

She looked down at her notebook nervously. While training to be a coach, she'd sat in on talks during the 2005 FA Cup Final. Back then, she thought that wise words would inspire the players and motivate them to reach new heights. She took copious notes. The pinnacle of her career had been her rousing speech just before the semi-final of the European Cup.

But things had gone downhill since then and Ella's notes had got fewer and fewer as she'd run out of original ideas. Today all she had written down were the words SCORE GOALS in capital letters. It wouldn't take a genius to work that one out!

Some football managers got overdramatic at times like these. They'd slam doors and break cups. They'd shout and scream at players. Ella was more in favour of a well-chosen metaphor. It was just that she'd already used just about every metaphor she could think of and she was afraid to speak in case she repeated herself. Difficult to inspire confidence in others when it was lacking in yourself.

Still, forty-six eyes were looking at her. She knew she'd have to say something, and soon. 'Your skill and your confidence are your armour,' she began, hesitantly, looking for signs of recognition in their faces, certain that the battle metaphor was an old friend. 'I know your armour might be a little dented right now, but you're brave and you're strong. You can win this one!' She paused, waiting for the first signs of a reaction. A twinkle in the eyes. 'Put the first half behind you. You can't change that. Don't worry about the end result. The only thing you can control is the present, so get back out there and live in the moment. Put all those skills you have to good use. I know you can do it.'

There were no cries and no cheers, but Ella sensed that the players' mood had lifted a little. 'Can you do that, Danni?' she asked the goalie, attempting a bit of audience participation. As she heard the words, 'Yes, boss,' she thought that maybe all was not lost.

Exercise 7
1 the players/the team laugh/smile
2 it was too obvious / it wasn't good/original enough
3 has lost (her) confidence (in herself) / lacks/doesn't have enough confidence / doesn't know what to say
4 has used it before/already / has already used it

Exercise 7
- Write the following on the board before students start the exercise: stony silence, turn things around, things go downhill, run out of, twinkle in the eye, mood has lifted. Ask students what they think each of these idioms mean. Give example sentences if necessary.
- Have students look at the text, the title and the images. Ask how they think the idioms could be used in the text and what they could possibly refer to.
- Remind students that they may need to rephrase the information in the text to fit the sentences.

Mixed ability
Have less confident students complete the exercise with a partner, and point to the parts of the text where they found the answers.

Optional activity
As a class, discuss Ella's method of handling her team and if students would have done the same if they were in Ella's position.

SPORTS: The best and the worst

Which sport would you say is the most dangerous? Which is the best for you to do to keep healthy? Which one will cost you the [1] most to do? Here are some facts:

Rugby is probably the most dangerous sport of all – it has the [2] least protective clothing of all contact sports. The aggressive tackling produces far [3] more broken bones and head injuries than martial arts! Interestingly, golf isn't [4] much safer, as many golfers suffer muscle injuries and they can get hit by the ball!

The healthiest sport could be squash. Experienced players can burn more [5] than 1,000 calories per hour while they play. Playing squash uses most muscle groups in your body, although it can put a [6] lot of pressure on your leg joints.

The most popular sport is football, as [7] many as 250 million people play it!

Doping is usually defined as the use of banned drugs in professional sport. Using drugs to [1]_____ (MAXIMUM) performance is seen as unfair towards the other competitors. That's why it has been made [2]_____ (LEGAL) in the majority of sports.

Many sports have suffered damaging scandals linked to doping, offering the audiences many examples of bad [3]_____ (SPORTSMAN). The drugs are banned not just because they give some athletes an unfair advantage, but they also pose a major health risk to those who take them. With the increased [4]_____ (PROFESSION) prevalent in sport, companies manufacturing sports equipment don't want to be linked to illegal activities either. As a result, the athletes who are caught red-handed loose lucrative advertising contracts and [5]_____ (SPONSOR) deals. All these factors combined may mean the end of their career for many sportsmen and sportswomen.

Aby wzbogacić zakres struktur gramatycznych, posługuj się zdaniami złożonymi, unikaj powtórzeń oraz używaj różnych czasów gramatycznych. Pamiętaj jednak, żeby stosować tylko takie struktury, które znasz i których potrafisz poprawnie użyć.

1 Połącz pary zdań pojedynczych w zdania złożone za pomocą wyrazów z ramki.

although as because but despite however so therefore which 1 It quickly got crowded and stuffy. It wasn't the best idea to organize the meeting there.

2 She is only in her twenties. She has already become one of the best tennis players in the world.
3 Then the audience asked a lot of questions. Iga answered the questions patiently.
4 I took my sister with me. She also loves tennis.

2 Przeczytaj zadanie i przykładową wypowiedź, z której usunięto cztery zdania. Korzystając z rozwiązania ćwiczenia 1, uzupełnij luki zdaniami złożonymi.

Uczestniczyłeś/Uczestniczyłaś w spotkaniu z wybitnym sportowcem. W e-mailu do koleżanki z Anglii:
- napisz, w jaki sposób zdobyłeś/zdobyłaś zaproszenie i z kim tam poszedłeś/poszłaś
- wyraź opinię na temat miejsca, w którym to spotkanie się odbyło
- przedstaw osiągnięcia sportowe gościa
- opisz przebieg spotkania.

Hi Rachel,

I want to tell you about something incredible that has just happened. You know how I love sports? Today I had the opportunity to meet my sports idol in person!

It was pure luck. I heard on the radio that Iga was to visit my town so I called the station immediately and they invited me to a meeting with her! [1] 4

The meeting took place in a school gym. [2] 1 I wish meetings with sports champions were organized at stadiums!

To my surprise, Iga looked fresh and pretty. [3] 2 It's worth mentioning that Iga is the first player from Poland to win a Grand Slam singles title. She wins matches even with the most experienced opponents.

The meeting started with Iga telling us about her training routine. [4] 3 After that, she gave us autographs and we all took pictures with her. It was such a great day!

Exercise 1
Suggested answers:
1 It wasn't the best idea to organize the meeting there because it quickly got crowded and stuffy.
2 Although she is only in her twenties, she has already become one of the best tennis players in the world.
3 Then the audience asked a lot of questions, which Iga answered patiently.
4 I took my sister with me because she also loves tennis.

Exercise 3
Various tenses and verb patterns: I want to tell you about something incredible that has just happened., The meeting started with Iga telling us about her training routine., They invited me to a meeting with her.
Superlative adjectives: the most experienced
Adjective + such: such a great day
Adverbs: immediately, patiently
Sentences with It as the subject: It's worth mentioning …
Passive: … meetings with sports champions were organized …
Wish or preference: I wish meetings with sports champions were organized at stadiums!

Warm up
• Discuss with students the different ways an informal email can start and finish.

Exercise 1
• Before completing the exercise, go through each word in the box and have students say which ones are used to express contrast (although, but, despite, however), and which to give a reason (as, because, so, therefore, which).

Exercise 3

Optional activity
Students work in pairs. Have them make their own sentences for each of the grammar points. They then share their sentences with the class.

Exercise 5

Exam tip
Remind students that when they write a 'for and against' essay, they should keep it balanced by presenting both positive and negative aspects of the topic. They do not need to give their opinion in the main body of the essay, but they can state it briefly in the conclusion.

How to learn vocabulary

- Ask students to choose ten words or phrases from the wordlist that they have difficulty learning.
- They write sentences with the words and underline parts of the sentences.
- Students swap their sentences with their partner, who has to decide what part of speech the underlined word is, e.g. adjective, noun, idiom, verb, etc.
- Students check their answers in pairs.

Brainpower

- Using the Brainpower strategy, give students about ten minutes to write a short blog post on the theme of sport. Explain that they must use at least ten words or expressions from the wordlist.
- Students work in pairs to complete the exercise.
- Ask selected pairs to read their work to the class. Explain to students that writing a short text within a time limit is one of the activities they can use to learn English every day.

CASE STUDY: MARY

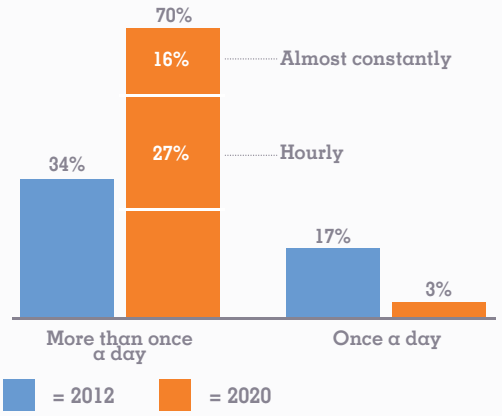

Mary (not her real name) didn't enjoy university at first. Without much money, she looked for a cheap way to feel better and move the focus away from stressful thoughts, and she began to focus on food. Typically, in a single session, she would eat an entire box of biscuits, or a whole cake – or both. She would steal from others' cupboards as well. Being aware of the destructive nature of such behaviour, and experiencing feelings of guilt and shame, she made several efforts to stop it, all of which failed. She eventually started therapy on her doctor's advice. Over time, she realized that her obsessive habit was linked to psychological problems. Gradually, she began to meditate before eating, which helped her overcome her impulses. Treating her body well then led to more positive beliefs about herself.

ZeroTech

Welcome to ZeroTech camps, where kids take part in a range of healthy activities from abseiling to Zumba! We can provide anything except screen time. Our camps are exclusively designed for ten- to eighteen-year-olds who have become overdependent on their electronic devices. Typically, young people are sent here by parents or teachers who've developed concerns that their Internet usage is becoming excessive. The campers leave all digital devices at the camp gates when they start their two-week stay and are encouraged to deal with boredom by exploring a wide range of healthier activity options. Young people are also taught to develop their social confidence and to deal with feelings of anxiety or frustration. Contact us now to find out how we can change your life – you'll find the results overwhelming!

Warm up
• Say, I walk for two hours every day, even if it is cold. I do get tired and I know it is too much but I still do it anyway. Ask students if they think it is good for you to walk so much and encourage them to give reasons. You can also ask them: How much is too much exercise?
• Ask students what habits they have that they consider to be good or bad.

Exercise 1
• Complete the exercise as a class. For question 2, have a class discussion on the negative consequences that students suggest.
• Ask students if they have ever experienced any of the negative consequences mentioned and what they did to overcome them.

Exercise 2
• Have students point to the parts of the texts where they found the answers.

Mixed ability
To check further understanding of the texts, students can work in pairs to summarize what each text is about.

Tekst D

Q My friends say I eat too much but, luckily, I'm not overweight as I exercise loads. Is this a problem?

A Thanks for your question. Firstly, it's great that you aren't suffering from obesity. However, that doesn't mean your eating habits are safe. If you're eating lots of wholefoods like nuts, fruit and vegetables, you're probably OK. However, if your diet mainly consists of 'palatable' foods, namely sugar, fat and salt, you may experience physical side effects such as poor skin, bad breath or even liver disease. It may be worth seeking psychological help, too, to prevent overeating from becoming a disorder.

Cześć Aniu!

Wyobraź sobie, że moi rodzice postanowili wysłać mnie na obóz wakacyjny dla nastolatków [1]_____! Wyjeżdżam więc na dwa tygodnie i nie będę miał dostępu do smartfona. Rodzice przeczytali, że [2]_____ nastolatków używa mediów społecznościowych więcej niż raz dziennie i połączyli to z moimi słabszymi wynikami w nauce.

Wygląda na to, że na obozie będę miał okazję spróbować wielu zdrowych aktywności i w ten sposób nauczyć się radzić sobie z [3]_____. Mama czytała wcześniej o klinice, w której leczy się zaburzenia odżywiania, ucząc pacjentów [4]_____ przed posiłkiem i sugerowała, że ja też tak powinienem robić, zanim zajrzę do internetu. Cóż, może mój udział w tym obozie trochę ją uspokoi.

Do usłyszenia za dwa tygodnie!

- C reporters
- D local politicians

4 Which event certainly occurred that day?
- A A gas pipe leaked.
- B A new carpet was laid.
- (C) False information was spread.
- D Students pretended to be ill.

5 According to the text, what can we conclude about mass hysteria?
- A The symptoms can be quite dangerous.
- B It is often caused by smell.
- C It is common amongst children.
- (D) It may be difficult to diagnose.

A Mystery in Miami Beach

It was 9.30 in the morning at a school in Miami Beach on a warm summer's day. A group of students were standing in the cafeteria rehearsing for a school show. Everything seemed pretty normal that morning, except perhaps for a strange smell that seemed to linger in the corridors around the canteen.

Suddenly, one student in the music group, a girl called Sandy, began feeling ill. She was taken to the sick room where she promptly fainted on the couch. Unable to revive her with smelling salts, the school nurse called the emergency services. They rushed in and carried Sandy out of the building on a stretcher to receive medical attention at the local hospital.

It was then that a second child started to feel ill, and then another, each reporting a range of symptoms: nausea, headaches, aches, chills. Talk started spreading of something in the air: poison perhaps, or maybe a gas leak. The numbers feeling ill continued to grow. Before long, students – mostly female – had been rushed to hospital; a further 25 were sent home to their worried parents. The remaining students in the school were evacuated to the safety of the playground. Within minutes, the media, who always monitored the radio traffic on emergency frequencies, arrived in the school grounds, and before long the place was crawling with doctors and firefighters. Soon desperate parents joined them, and even local dignitaries, all wanting to know one thing: what on earth was causing the ailments?

Only one person didn't seem concerned – a member of the canteen staff who'd witnessed the events and now just wanted the place cleared of doctors and inspectors so that she could finally set out the tables for lunch. Her lack of concern at first seemed reckless. But then reports came from the hospital that all the children there were physically fine, and other staff members began to doubt whether anything was seriously wrong.

In the following hours a picture of what had really happened started to emerge. The girl, Sandy, was a popular student whom many of the students looked up to. The rehearsal had ended at 10.30, and the children had poured out of the cafeteria into the corridor, just in time to witness their friend being taken away unconscious. Someone had then started a rumour that the unusual smell that pervaded the corridor that day was in fact a deadly toxin. Panic had gripped the group, and some had started experiencing real physical distress.

Later, it emerged that it was only the excitable individuals who had experienced symptoms, and that each had felt ill only after seeing a fellow student experiencing symptoms, causing a kind of chain reaction. The smell, it turned out, was nothing more than a type of adhesive used to lay a new carpet. Despite the many wild theories to explain what happened, the one that was eventually widely accepted was that it was a case of mass psychogenic illness, or 'mass hysteria'. The case would in fact become one of the most famous examples of the phenomenon in recent history.

But if the students were unconsciously copying each other, how had Sandy become ill in the first place? Well, she actually was feeling a little unwell that day: she'd picked up a virus.

Exercise 8
- On the board write: mass hysteria. Ask students what they think it is and to give examples if possible.
- Then on the board write: rehearsal, linger, smelling salts, evacuated, ailments, reckless, rumour, chain reaction, unconsciously copying. Ask students how they think these words might be linked to the text about a school and mass hysteria.
- Ask students to quickly read the text to check if their ideas were correct.
- Then ask students to read the text again and complete the task.

Exam tip
Explain to students that if they find a word in the questions that they don't know, they should stay calm and translate the question into their own language to get an idea of what the word might be.

A smooth road to recovery

I have always played a lot of sport and, until last year, I had always been [1] in excellent health and injury-free. So it was a huge shock when I seriously injured my knee while I was playing football and heard that I needed an operation. The surgeon [2] told me that it would very probably restore the functioning of my knee to normal but said [3] that recovering from the operation would take between six and twelve months. This was rather depressing, but a friend put me in touch with someone who had had the same operation. This man said he [4] had recovered within six months and, although I knew that every case is different, I was encouraged by this. I had the operation and, when the swelling had gone down, I began doing my physiotherapy exercises. I also went swimming as I was keen to keep fit and not to [5] put on a lot of weight. Luckily, all went well, my knee healed nicely, and after six months I was back on the football pitch. It felt fantastic!

My leg 1 _____ badly but the main problem was with my head. I couldn't remember the moment of the accident and I [2](miałem zawroty głowy) _____. I also [3](miałem ból głowy) _____ that didn't go away although I [4](wziąłem środek przeciwbólowy) _____.

My parents [5](zadzwonili po karetkę) _____ and I was taken to [6](izby przyjęć) _____. I wasn't 7 _____ so the doctors asked me many questions about the accident and did all kinds of examinations.

I was diagnosed with a slight concussion. I had to stay in hospital for observation but I have been [8](wypisany do domu) _____ today. Now I am only allowed to do calm activities, such as reading or drawing. I must 9 _____ and [10](wysypiać się) _____. I need to avoid staring at the computer screen, so I'd better finish now.

Take care,

Odpowiedz na pytania.

1 Why is leading a healthy lifestyle so important?
2 How effective are campaigns promoting health? Why?
3 Why do you think so many teenagers start smoking cigarettes?
4 What problems do disabled people have where you live?

Warm up
• Place students in small groups. Tell them they have to talk for two minutes on the topic of the unit. The other students listen and note down any mistakes they hear as well as any interesting phrases that the speaker has used.

Zadanie 1
• As a class, go through each subtopic in the task and ask students what they could say about it.
• Ask students to work in pairs and do the role-play.

Zadanie 2
• Before students do the exercise, give them one minute to look at the picture and answer the questions: Who are the people in the photo? Where are they? What are they doing? What do you think has just happened? What is going to happen next?
• Remind students that they also need to answer the three questions on page 242.

Zadanie 3
• Give students one minute to look at the pictures and read the captions. Remind them that they should refer to the captions while speaking, but they should avoid quoting them directly. Then students do the task in pairs.

How to learn vocabulary

- Ask students to choose ten words or phrases from the wordlist that they have difficulty learning. They write sentences with these words, but with a gap instead of the words.
- They work in pairs and swap sentences with their partner, who has to read them and complete them.
- Students check their answers in pairs.

Brainpower

- Students work in pairs. They choose five items from the wordlist and use them to write a story that will help them remember the words. Have pairs read their story to the class. Have a class vote on the best story.

BRAINPOWER

Użyj nowych wyrazów w absurdalnej historyjce. Im będzie bardziej niedorzeczna i przerysowana, tym lepiej. Na przykład gdy uczysz się słownictwa dotyczącego ludzkiego ciała, opisz pechowy dzień, w którym złamałeś/złamałaś nogę w kostce i zemdlałeś/zemdlałaś podczas zastrzyku przeciwbólowego itp. Powtarzaj historyjkę na głos, wzmacniając efekt zapamiętywania za pomocą ruchów i gestów.

JANE GOODALL is one of the most important scientists in the struggle against climate change. In the 1960s her ground-breaking research in Tanzania proved that chimpanzees used tools. How Can We Encourage Young People to Seek a Career in Science?

1 F

There is currently a problem in education which is that many young people are giving up science at the end of high school. Older students are not going on to study technical subjects. Though the main reason for this is not clear, it does seem that the problem begins early on. Many high schoolers seem to think that maths and physics – subjects that form the basis of all science – are irrelevant to their everyday lives. However, without concentrating on these subjects at school, students cannot then progress to more specialized studies, for example in engineering. Although industry isn't hitting the panic button yet, they are desperate for more skilled scientists to fill the job vacancies available.

2 D

At primary school many children enjoy science, but this appears to stop at secondary school. I refuse to think it has to be this way. First of all, students need to see how science works in real life. For example, the Raspberry Pi computer was invented to teach simple programming with a basic machine. It shows students that when it comes to programming, they don't need to reinvent the wheel. It is something that anyone can do. On the other hand, we need to provide science-based free-time activities that can match the appeal of sports clubs so that students feel science is, or could be, a part of their lives. These could be astronomy clubs or nature groups – anything that creates a connection between the textbook and the world around us.

Warm up
- Ask students why science is an important field and how it helps society.
- Ask if any students would like to be a scientist, giving reasons why or why not.

Exercise 1
- Students work in small groups to complete the exercise, then share ideas with the class.
- Ask students to say which famous scientists they mentioned and what they contributed.

Exercise 2
- Ask students why they think we should fight against climate change and to name any high-profile people they know who are doing so. Ask if they think these people are succeeding.

Exercise 3
- Go through each paragraph and ask students to summarize it as best they can.

Exam tip
Tell students to read the headings and think about what information in the paragraph would match them.

3 C

Encouraging girls to become scientists presents a particular problem as they are greatly underrepresented in the field. Men are in no way better at science, so it's illogical that only about 20% of new doctors in science are female. It's become a sort of vicious circle – girls don't see many female scientists around themselves or in the media, and so they come to believe that scientists are not people like them and tend to think a science career would be impossible for them. Therefore teachers must show girls that women can and do play an important role in science. This can be achieved by studying the careers of major figures like anthropologist Jane Goodall. The number of new female scientists in the future will be the acid test of whether this succeeds or not.

4 B

One other thing that puts people off a science career is the incorrect belief that science is a lonely field. In reality, however, inventors are unlikely to work all alone late at night hoping to have a brainwave. In the science of today, experts must be in constant touch with each other, as sharing information and research is vital in analysing complex phenomena such as climate change. Thus science is very much a career for extroverts as well as introverts and anybody can find their place in a technical field.

A Almost all of it contains lines of calculations with barely any marginal notes, and the ones that do appear were the work of other hands.

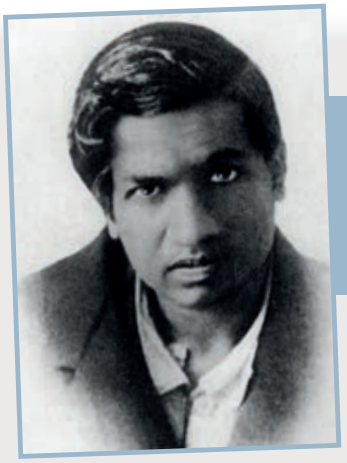

B It was so advanced that very few of his contemporaries could understand the problem, let alone solve it.

C Yet, astonishingly, he came from a poor village where he received little to no formal education at all.

D Having grown up in poverty in a rural part of India, he had suffered from malnutrition in his youth.

E On arrival, the great mathematician noted that its registration number, 1,729, was rather dull.

F With over 6,000 different riddles to confront, Ramanujan set to work solving them all, and then began work on his own theorems.

The Tragic Tale of a Maths Genius

In his home country of India, mathematician Srinivasa Ramanujan (1887–1920) personifies 'maths genius', and his name is spoken alongside those of Einstein and Newton. [1] ___C___ In addition, he never attained an undergraduate degree after failing his university entrance exams because he was so absorbed in mathematical problems. Such hurdles as these effectively delayed his rise to prominence. Nevertheless, his discoveries completely changed our understanding of many major mathematical concepts, and his birthday, 22 December, is now celebrated as National Mathematics Day in India.

It all began when the fifteen-year-old Ramanujan stumbled across a book of calculations by British mathematician G. S. Carr. The book contained many maths problems that had yet to be solved, presented with little to no guidance for the reader. [2] ___F___ From that point onward, his abilities grew exponentially. Despite his lack of university training, his findings often mystified his contemporaries. The academic community in India started taking notice of the boy genius amongst them, and a decision was made. As only the best universities in the world could allow such a talent to flourish, they resolved to find a way to send the young man to England.

But nobody answered the call. Nobody, that was, until a letter and several pages of calculations from Ramanujan arrived on the desk of professor G. H. Hardy. To his astonishment, Hardy realized that the pages contained conclusions that were entirely new, pushing the boundaries of contemporary knowledge. He immediately sent for the young man to accompany him at Cambridge University, where they began a fruitful partnership. Their work together also yields one of the most famous anecdotes in maths history. One day, Ramanujan took a taxi to visit Hardy. [3] ___E___ To which his young student immediately protested that it was actually extremely interesting, clarifying his point with a mental equation of dazzling complexity, now known as the Hardy–Ramanujan number.

Part of the reason why Ramanujan is not as famous as similar geniuses like Einstein is that he died shockingly young. [4] ___D___ Furthermore, throughout his stay in England, Ramanujan had been a strict vegetarian. In those days, this was seen as a peculiar affectation in his host country, and he had struggled to obtain proper nutrition. Once doctors there had diagnosed a vitamin deficiency in the young mathematician, he felt forced to return home to India but soon after arrival, his health worsened. Tragically, Ramanujan passed away on 26 April, 1920, at the age of just 32.

However, the story of this extraordinary genius had one more twist to be revealed. Over his last years, he had continued to scribble his ideas down and his wife had preserved these papers. After his death, they became mistakenly filed away at Cambridge University, forgotten until fifty years later. Then, in 1976, his lost notebook came to light. [5] ___A___ Nevertheless, this final text electrified the mathematical world all over again. So advanced was it that it continues to have an impact decades after his death, enabling researchers to investigate such baffling phenomena as black holes. The poor boy from an Indian village was still light years ahead of his time.

Glossary

baffle to confuse people completely; to be too difficult to explain yield to produce something as a result scribble down to write, e.g. notes, quickly without organization

Exercise 9

- Ask students to say how they think maths and physics are an important part of life and how these subjects contribute to our everyday life.
- Say: We use numbers everywhere – in schedules, page numbers, the time, and so on. Without numbers it would be difficult to plan events or organize things. Ask if students agree.
- Ask students to name famous physicists and mathematicians they know and how they have contributed to society.

Mixed ability

Have less confident students complete the exercise with a partner and point to the parts of the text where they got their answers from.

Ask more confident students to explain why the extra sentence is incorrect.

Exam tip

Explain that students should read through the options and find reference words that will help them complete the gaps.

Warm up
• Explain that you are going to say sentences with the word bleep in them for students to say what word should replace it. Say: I know a woman bleep is a brilliant mathematician. Elicit who. There is a table in the room bleep is not very nice. Elicit which.

Exercise 1
• Before students complete the exercise, ask them to explain when we use who and which and when we can use that in defining clauses.

Exercise 2

Optional activity
Ask students to say where they made mistakes, if any. Check to make sure they understand why they were wrong.

Exercise 3
• Before students complete the exercise, go through the rules of how we use possessive pronouns and possessive adjectives.

Exercise 4

Optional activity
Place students in pairs for them to role-play each dialogue.

HOW OLD IS FAKE NEWS?

Most people imagine that fake news is a relatively new phenomenon. However, [1] _____ facts and information is far older than you might imagine.

Although politicians of the past didn't have the use of the sophisticated [2] _____ spyware that is omnipresent on social media nowadays, they were well able to spread fake news in the form of rumours or newspaper articles that simply weren't true.

In some ways, fake news in the past was harder to defend against. There was no way of blocking a stream of fake information, there were no [3] _____ laws or protection, and people had no other option but to believe everything they read without question.

In many ways, modern fake news is successful because it is so [4] _____ and easy to find. Paradoxically, you can use the Internet to prove that it isn't true, but that's exactly why some people like to believe it.

Exercise 7
1 we could/would develop
2 was asked to analyse
3 who was awarded
4 hasn't been replaced by 5 whose this laptop

Exercise 8

5 has crashed again

Exercise 9
1 manipulating
2 automated
3 privacy
4 accessible

Exercise 6

Optional activity
Place students in pairs and have them make one more sentence to show how else the key words can be used, e.g. We save water if we have shorter showers., I'm sorry – I didn't mean to break your favourite cup!

Exercise 8
• Ask students to try to come up with English equivalents of the phrases in brackets before they read the sentences. Then ask them to complete the sentences and see if their ideas are correct in the given context.

Exercise 9
• Before starting the exercise, ask students to go through the words in the word box and define or translate them.

Optional activity
Ask students to say why fake news can be dangerous. Ask them what steps can be taken to stop it and if they think people who spread fake news should be punished or not.

Na anglojęzycznym forum internetowym natknąłeś się / natknęłaś się na wątek dotyczący najważniejszych wynalazków z XXI wieku. Chcesz wyrazić swoje zdanie. We wpisie na forum:

- wyjaśnij, co skłoniło cię do wzięcia udziału w dyskusji
- napisz, co twoim zdaniem jest najważniejszym wynalazkiem XXI wieku i gdzie on jest wykorzystywany
- zaprezentuj zalety tego wynalazku
- przedstaw jego wady.

Hi guys!

I see that the debate about the most significant inventions of the 21st century is heated. I want to join in because I think it's an [1] interesting topic. Some people say that the 21st century hasn't produced any [2] nice inventions. The opposite is true – there are plenty, e.g. smartphones, VR, 3D printing, e-readers and touchscreens, to name just a few.

But I think that the most [3] interesting invention is artificial intelligence (AI). It is all around us and plays a [4] big role in our everyday lives. Every time we open our Facebook newsfeed, do a Google search, shop or book a trip online, AI is somewhere there in the background.

AI has many good sides. Firstly, this [5] nice technology makes no mistakes and doesn't get tired, so it can work well all the time. Moreover, it can perform boring or dangerous tasks that people don't want to do.

Unfortunately, there are some disadvantages, too. AI replacing human workers is regarded as the number one downside, because many people will lose their jobs. Secondly, building a machine that uses AI is very expensive. However, I still believe that the benefits are more important than the drawbacks. Do you agree?

3 W wypowiedzi z ćwiczenia 2 znajdź pięć przykładów ograniczonego zakresu środków językowych i zastąp je wyrazami i wyrażeniami z ramki.

4 Napisz tekst (100–150 wyrazów, nie licząc słów już podanych), w którym rozwiniesz każdy z czterech podpunktów.

Na forum miłośników fantastyki naukowej pragniesz przedstawić pomysł na wynalazek, który mógłby powstać w przyszłości. We wpisie na forum:

- napisz, do czego miałby służyć ten wynalazek
- opisz jego wygląd
- wyjaśnij, kto byłby zainteresowany takim wynalazkiem, i uzasadnij dlaczego
- zachęć innych do wyrażania opinii i przedstawiania własnych pomysłów na wynalazek.

Hi everyone,
I have come up with a brilliant, but a bit crazy, idea for an invention that should be created in the future.

It would be able to …
You could use it when …
Opis wyglądu
It should be rather tiny / quite short / pretty long.
It should have an oval / a rectangular shape.
It would be made of …
Uzasadnienie
My invention would help people to …
Lots of people would like to have it because …
Wyrażenie zachęty
What is your opinion about … ?
I'm curious what ideas you have.

Differentiation
Less confident students can first complete the exercises they are comfortable with. They then do the others with reference to the wordlist and the grammar reference section. More confident students can help less able classmates complete the exercises by explaining any queries.

Exercise 2
• Before completing the exercise, go through each alternative item and have students translate them or define them.

Optional activity
After students check answers, they can make sentences with the alternative options.

Exercise 4

Optional activity
After students have completed the exercise, ask them to look at each item again and explain why the items they corrected were wrong. For example, in item 1 we cannot use that in non-defining relative clauses; in item 2, advice is uncountable.

How to learn vocabulary

- Place students in small groups. Have them choose five words from the wordlist and ask them to write their English definitions.
- Choose a group member to come to the front of the class. They read out the definitions for the other groups to write the word down.
- When the student has finished reading out the definitions, they give the answers. Continue until all groups have read out their definitions.
- The group with the most correct answers wins.

Brainpower

- Ask students to work in pairs and choose five words to work with as they apply the brainpower strategy. Then ask selected pairs to share their ideas with the class.

Katastrofy ekologiczne

15 Wybierz poprawne uzupełnienia zdań.

In 2010 there was an explosion on a BP oil rig in the Gulf of Mexico. This caused the deaths of eleven people and an enormous oil [1]spill / pollution that killed wildlife and polluted about 2,100 km of the US coast. This is just one example of an ecological [2]waste / disaster and unfortunately there are many others. Large quantities of toxic [3]leaks / chemicals have been released in an uncontrolled manner from factories, destroying animal and plant life and causing the [4]contamination / depletion of the water supply, so it is unsafe for both people and animals.

In addition to [5]environmental / industrial activity, farming can also cause damage to the environment as fertilizers, pesticides and animal waste can get into the soil and water sources. The resulting [6]groundwater pollution / radioactive material can have devastating effects on the ecosystem so it is important that agricultural [7]practices / consequences are improved.

Awareness of our impact on the Earth is growing, thanks to environmental [8]activity / activism that has campaigned for changes to the law and challenged those who cause pollution. Change is possible, but we need to act now.

Exercise 12
• Ask students to give examples of the dangers our planet is facing, e.g. There is too much traffic which causes pollution.

Optional activity
Once students have completed the activity, have a class discussion on how each of these solutions can help the environment and our planet.

Exercise 14
• Students work in pairs. Monitor the conversations and help with vocabulary and grammar where necessary. Take note of the mistakes they make and then have a short feedback session at the end of the exercise – put a few of the most common mistakes on the board and help students correct them.
• Ask selected students to answer some of the questions in class.

Exercise 15
• Students explain why they chose the particular words as answers, and why the other options are incorrect.

What do you know about turtles?

Are these statements true or false?

1. Baby turtles are called hatchlings. True
2. Turtles lay their eggs on beaches. True
3. Female turtles return to the beach where they were born to lay their eggs. True
4. Baby turtles dig a trench (a long shallow hole) to the sea. False

2 Przeczytaj tekst i sprawdź swoje odpowiedzi z ćwiczenia 1.

Amy and I arrive at the beach in Kefalonia, Greece. It's dusk; the moment we've been waiting for. We take off our backpacks and unload the equipment ready to start the night shift. This tourist beach is home to a Greek taverna. It's also home to many loggerhead turtle nests buried beneath the sand, and these are what we're here to protect.

Some nests are maturing, which means the baby turtles – called hatchlings – are about to break out of their shells, find their way to the surface, then walk, for the first time, to the sea. It's a challenging journey and we'd like to let nature take its course, but we need to relocate the hatchlings or they'll walk in the wrong direction, towards the bright lights of the noisy taverna, and not to the sea.

The next hour is spent preparing. We put together a kind of square pen about twenty centimetres long that sits over the centre of each nest that we're monitoring. The top of each nest is approximately twenty centimetres beneath the sand. The hatchlings are unlikely to hatch at the same time, but the square traps those that do and prevents us from losing them. It does little to stop other animals, though.

We find a remote part of the beach, measure ten strides from the water's edge and dig a trench to the sea. This is the distance hatchlings must walk to be physically prepared to swim and so they don't forget the location. The females will return here to lay their own eggs when they have matured. The trench also allows hatchlings to be monitored as they walk. However, the odds are still stacked against them. Only one in a thousand hatchlings will make it to adulthood.

3 Przeczytaj tekst ponownie. Z podanych odpowiedzi wybierz właściwą, zgodną z treścią tekstu: A, B, C albo D.

1 What problem do the hatchlings have when they get out of their shells?
- A They do not have a direct route to the sea.
- B They are disturbed by the noise.
- C They are unlikely to go the right way.
- D They are not used to walking.

2 Why do the volunteers use a square on top of the nest?
- A to protect the nest from wild animals
- B to measure the size of the nest
- C to stop the hatchlings from escaping
- D to encourage the eggs to hatch

3 What is not a reason given by the writer for putting the hatchlings in the trench?
- A The volunteers can observe them.
- B It gets their bodies ready for swimming.
- C It helps them to remember the location.
- D The volunteers can walk alongside them.

4 What does the writer describe as the behaviour of a turtle lover?
- A talking to the hatchlings
- B looking closely at the hatchlings
- C encouraging the hatchlings to run to the sea
- D making the sand smooth for the hatchlings

5 What is the best title for this text?
- A Finding the Ideal Place for Turtle Nests
- B Giving Hatchlings a Better Chance of Survival
- C Discovering How Hatchlings Get to the Sea
- D Changing Tourist Behaviour to Help Hatchlings

Warm up
• Ask students what is being done to save wildlife in general across the world. Ask them if they take part in helping save animals and, if so, what they do. If not, ask if they would like to take part in activities that save wildlife.

Exercise 2
• Ask students which of the facts about turtles they find the most interesting. Can they come up with some surprising facts about other animals?

Exercise 3
• Ask students to point to the parts of the text where they found the answers.

Differentiation
Have students first find key words in the multiple choice items before completing the activity. Ask students to work in pairs to do the exercise, and then check answers with other pairs before answering as a class.

When we've got everything ready, we get into our sleeping bags ready for a night on the beach. We'll take turns to check the nests every hour. If there are more than a few hatchlings, we'll wake the other person as we have to measure the hatchlings before we help them get to the sea.

I hardly sleep because I can't wait to see hatchlings. When my alarm goes off, I jump up to check the nests, but I'm disappointed. There are no signs of action. It isn't until midnight that I wake Amy. I know she's as excited as me and together we watch the first little hatchling climb up through the sand. We gently measure it then take it down to the trench.

Throughout the night, more and more hatchlings appear. We set them off on their walk. I can't help thinking that it's the larger, stronger ones running to the sea that'll survive. Still, we find ourselves lying flat on the sand saying words of encouragement to the weaker ones as only turtle lovers would do.

As the sun comes up, we see a hatchling swept into the sea by a wave. It swims for the first time. A magical moment made better by our hope that the help we've given could make a difference.

bury hatch lays mature odds

The female turtle comes up onto the sand. She digs a hole and [1] lays around seventy to ninety eggs. She then digs sand over the nest to [2] bury the eggs, which helps to protect them from predators. The turtle then leaves and will not see the eggs again.

About forty days later, the eggs begin to [3] hatch. The baby turtles climb up through the sand, then walk to the sea guided by the moon in a natural setting. It is a difficult journey full of obstacles and even when they reach the sea the dangers aren't over. The [4] odds of a hatchling becoming an adult are only about one in a thousand. The females that do [5] mature into adults will return to the beach where they were born to dig holes for their own eggs, and so the cycle continues.

Dobieranie pytań do części tekstu

6 Przeczytaj tekst, który został podzielony na cztery części (A–D), oraz pytania go dotyczące (1–5). Do każdego pytania dopasuj właściwą część tekstu. W jednej części tekstu znajdują się odpowiedzi na dwa pytania.

In which paragraph does the author

1 suggest that some people are unaware of the damage they do to nature? C
2 outline the physical demands that the forest places on people? D
3 explain that some parts of the forest are better preserved than others? D
4 describe what sets the tour of Białowieża apart from other animal experiences? B
5 talk about negative feelings that natural places can inspire? A

The wild woods of Białowieża

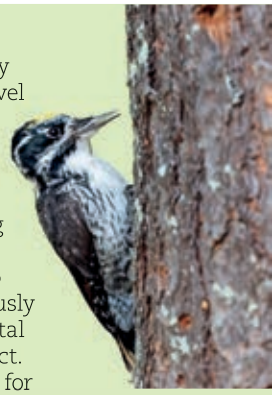

A

When babysitting my friend's children last night, I was struck by the wonder in their eyes as I told them the tale of Red Riding Hood, the girl who treks through the dark woods, pursued by a ravenous wolf. How they shuddered at the thought of the vast forest which has long been part of the European imagination, a place where wolves and bears and other wild creatures roam. Alas, many of the continent's ancient woodlands were uprooted long ago, but one enthralling site still remains for nature lovers: the Białowieża Primeval Forest in Poland's far eastern corner, along the border with Belarus.

B

The Białowieża forest presents a superb example of untamed land for visitors to explore. Such a wide expanse creates a perfect environment for wildlife to flourish. In addition to the obvious attraction of running across apex predators roaming freely, the woods are also home to Europe's largest population of wild bison. For twitchers, numerous feathered residents flutter among the branches, including the increasingly scarce three-toed woodpecker. To enjoy nature in all its glory, away from the sanitized enclosures of safari parks, there is no better spot in Europe.

However, as tourists worldwide try to outdo each other with their travel adventures, sites like the Białowieża Primeval Forest are at risk. Many tourist hotspots are already overflowing with visitors devastating the very thing they long to experience. Even the most repectful visitors, those who befriend local people and consciously strive to reduce their environmental footprint, will still have some effect. More visitors mean more demand for accommodation and water, and more traffic on the roads, all of which can lead to the destruction of the habitat that is the initial draw in the first place.

Fortunately, tourism to the Białowieża Primeval Forest is well managed to prevent it from being swamped by mass tourism. Responsible operators such as the organizers of the local Winter Wildlife Festival run treks allowing visitors to enjoy the best of both worlds. They provide transport and pleasant lodging as well as very limited access to the forest's Strict Protection Area. Here trees and plants are left to their own devices with absolutely no human interference. It is an ancient woodland where few people are allowed to tread. However, prospective visitors will need to avoid oversleeping and missing the dawn departure, and they should also be prepared to sweat a little, too. Much of the trek must be done on foot to minimize potential damage, so participants need to be reasonably fit to undertake it. As long as you don't overdo it, a little discomfort is a small price to pay to walk in a living world of myth and legend.

Exercise 6

- Before they read the text, ask students to read the task and say if they need to find specific information in the texts or sum up each of the parts (they need to find specific information).

Point out that one of the paragraphs matches two items, so they can't disregard a paragraph after they have matched it to one sentence.

Hi everybody,

I'd like to share a few thoughts about adopting a dog from an animal shelter. My very best friend, Maciej, did it a few weeks ago.

First, he visited the shelter a few times to get to know the dog he wanted adopt a bit better. Then he completed a questionnaire and talked with the vet from the shelter about the dog's diet and training. Finally, he was informed about the dog's healthy and then he signed the final adoption agreement.

The dog probably in the past wasn't very happy. It was a stray dog found roaming the streets of Wrocław. It was skiny and had a broken rib. The dog fully recovered before the adoption but was wary and shy.

That's why Maciej has surrounded it with loving care and the dog soon got used to a new home. Now it seems to be happiest dog in the world. It wags it's tail all the time and smiles at everybody.

I think adopting a dog from the shelter is a perfect option if you will want to have a pet. On the one hand, you don't spend a fortune on a pedigree dog. But what's more important, you change a homeless animal's hole world by making it a part of your family.

Odpowiedz na pytania.

1 What animals make the best friends? Why?
2 Some people say that the way we treat animals says a lot about how we treat other people. What do you think?
3 Should all zoos be shut down? Why? / Why not?
4 What can individuals do to save the environment?

Warm up
• Place students in small groups. Tell them they have to talk for two minutes on the unit topic. The other students listen and note down any mistakes they hear, as well as any interesting phrases that the speaker has used.

Zadanie 1
• As a class, make a mind map on the board containing key words they can use for each of the key ideas.
• Ask students to work in pairs and do the role-play.

Zadanie 2
• Before students do the activity, give them one minute to look at the picture and answer these questions: Who is in the picture, where are they and what are they doing?
• Remind students that they also need to answer the three questions on page 242.

Zadanie 3
• Give students one minute to look at the pictures and analyse the captions. Remind them that they should refer to the captions while they are speaking, but they should avoid quoting them directly. Then students do the task in pairs.

How to learn vocabulary

- Ask students to choose ten words or phrases from the wordlist that they find interesting or have difficulty learning. They write sentences with these words, but with a gap instead of the words.
- They work in pairs and swap sentences with their partner, who has to read them and complete them.
- Students check their answers in pairs. Ask several pairs to read some of their sentences in class with a pause instead of the words they want to test. The other students have to say the missing words.

Brainpower

- Students work in pairs. They choose five items from the wordlist that they have a problem remembering and follow the instructions in the Brainpower box: they visualize the items and describe them, adding elements of all the senses (e.g. a bottle bank could be imagined as a building full of colourful bottles accompanied by the sound of glass bottles clinking).

BRAINPOWER

Gdy szukasz polskich lub angielskich skojarzeń ze słowem, którego akurat się uczysz, staraj się zaangażować wszystkie zmysły. Jeżeli wzbogacisz swoje wyobrażenie o elementy koloru, zapachu, dotyku, ruchu lub dźwięku, będzie ono pełnić funkcję tzw. „kotwicy pamięciowej". Na przykład słowo butterfly możesz „zakotwiczyć" w swojej pamięci poprzez zwizualizowanie sobie ogromnej muchy pochłaniającej kostkę masła. Obraz ten powinien być możliwie plastyczny i szczegółowy.

Josh I've just signed the World Youth Alliance charter.

Ellen What's it about? Is it like a petition?

Josh Kind of. It's just to say you agree with the aims of this organization, which tries to help disadvantaged people and minorities around the world.

Ellen So do you have to actually do anything?

Josh Well, they send you newsletters about campaigns run by charities that they support, and you can get involved with them.

Ellen Are you going to support any of them?

Josh I think so. There's a programme that arranges visits to people in hospitals, which I think I might sign up to. Oh, and there's a camp in Amsterdam next summer, run by professional campaigners, so I'm thinking of booking a place on it.

Ellen I might be interested in that. Could you send me the link?

Josh Sure. Here it is: World Youth Alliance

Volunteering changes with the times

The current situation stands in sharp contrast to the trend from a decade ago when older volunteers far outnumbered their younger counterparts.
A spokesperson for Third Sector, a group representing charities, suggested that schools and universities were partly to thank as they are favouring candidates with experience in the voluntary sector.
'It is widely agreed that voluntary activities can help young people secure places on university courses and get scholarships,' they said.

Dear Channel 5,

I watched your documentary about compulsory national service on 13th March with great interest. I particularly enjoyed hearing the stories about young people in the 1950s, the period when youngsters in this country last did compulsory service with the army. However, I felt that the programme failed to mention that compulsory national service still exists in many countries and that many people think it should be brought back here, too. Being half Norwegian, I've become quite familiar with the system there, which is much more competitive. Young people undergo tests and are selected for service based on their scores. Such a selective system has made the system quite popular there and helps attract the brightest minds to public service.

TOBY'S STORY

Toby Abayonu is seven years old and suffers from a rare condition that prevents him from moving his body from the shoulders downwards. There are over 70,000 children in the UK like Toby, who rely on mobility equipment to perform daily tasks and to lead as normal a life as possible. However, Toby couldn't be provided with suitable equipment from government health services and so he had to be carried if he wanted to leave the house. Thanks to the charity Mobility Matters, Toby is now finally being given a wheelchair that will allow him to go out and mix with his friends once again, giving him greater confidence and freedom.

Your donations will help other children like Toby to transform their lives. To give £10 PLEASE CLICK here.

Anna and her friends tumbled out of the bus near their college. As usual they were so busy listening to their favourite tunes through their headphones that they'd totally lost track of their whereabouts. They only noticed the stop was coming up when the bus was already slowing. Anna had barely had time to gather up her yellow puffer jacket, leopard-print scarf and designer tote bag from the seat next to her before the passengers started surging towards the exit.

Once outside, Anna dumped her things on the pavement and took a moment or two to slip her jacket over her shoulders and fling her scarf around her neck, freeing her long hair from beneath it. She then began running to catch up with her friends.

'Ex … Excuse me,' called out a voice from behind the bus shelter. Anna had been dimly aware of the dishevelled-looking homeless guy as she stepped off the bus. Ignoring him was rude and snobbish, she knew that, but she didn't have any cash and could do without being further delayed by an awkward exchange over 'borrowing' loose change.

Soon Anna and her friends were stepping through the college gates and into their usual Wednesday routine. Functional maths to start, budgeting and the like, and then home economics.

It wasn't until the fourth lesson was drawing to a close that Anna realized one of her earbuds was missing. She usually kept them in, as the staff members seldom noticed them hidden away beneath her hair.

A familiar feeling of alarm rose up inside her. They had cost £200, or had cost her mum, to be precise. Top-of-the range. Losing them was NOT an option.

'Excuse me, Ms Hayes,' she said. 'Can I go to the bathroom?'

'Okaaay, Anna,' the teacher replied wearily.

Once out of the door, Anna tore around the corridors retracing her steps as best she could, but it was all to no avail. She spent the rest of the day dejected, running the excuses that she'd give to her parents through her head.

Her mood only darkened as she left the college at 3 p.m., walking back along the street towards the bus stop. Then from the doorway of a betting shop she heard a familiar rasping voice.

'Hey you, lady in the yellow jacket.'

The homeless guy! Again. Why was he shouting at her? Why not pick on her friends? This time she turned, trying hard not to roll her eyes. But the man wasn't looking at her. He was fumbling in his pocket for something. Presently he withdrew his hand and held it out to her. There, between his fingers was a small white object.

'It flew off when you were putting on your scarf earlier,' he explained. 'I kept it for you.'

Her missing earbud! A torrent of emotion flooded through Anna's head. The sweet relief and then … guilt. And now she found herself fumbling in her jacket pocket, a mirror image of the homeless man, but remembered too late she had no change to offer.

But the man was waving her away. 'Don't you worry.'

Suddenly she felt a rush of conflicting emotions at her effort to find cash. Why did she think she needed to pay for his decency? But then neither could she let it go unacknowledged.

'Thank you so, so much,' she managed.

The man smiled faintly, and turned away.

Anna's day started like any other. Her bus reached the college, she collected her things and got off in a rush. After she quickly [1]_____ at the bus stop, she started running towards the college gates. On the way, a homeless man called out to her but she ignored him. Classes began normally but during [2]_____ she realized that she had lost one of her expensive earbuds. After searching desperately around the college, she gave up hope of recovering it. But her luck was about to change.
On the way back to the bus shelter the same homeless man called to her once again. It felt to Anna as if he was [3]_____. But instead of asking for money he held out the lost earbud: apparently, she had dropped it. Anna felt happy but also [4]_____ about trying to pay with money for the decent thing he'd done. Eventually she just thanked him.

Exercise 8
- Give students about ten minutes to read through the text, then ask them to raise anything they didn't understand. Discuss the queries as a class.
- Place students in pairs. Ask them to summarize the main points of the text.
- Have students complete the exercise. Explain that first they can complete the gaps that are easy for them and then look back at the text to complete the other gaps.
- Check answers as a class.

Optional activity
Place students in groups of three or four. Ask them to read the text again and then write a final paragraph for the end of the story. Then they present their work to the class.

Does prison work?

Criminals are prosecuted and given prison [1] _____ every day. However, studies have found that prison is more likely to make a criminal reoffend than change their ways.

There are many reasons for this. Firstly, put together with other criminals, offenders can learn to become even better at breaking the law. They may also start to see [2] _____ and prison sentences as a normal part of their working life and indeed part of the job of being a crimial.

[3] _____, many crimes are committed on impulse or by people who are in an emotional state. They may not stop and think 'I will go to prison if I do this, won't I?'

So, how should criminals be punished? As a society, we have a [4] _____ to stop people from reoffending. This is a much bigger and more difficult question than just putting people behind bars.

Exercise 2
- Go through the words in the box and ask students to say how each linking word is used, e.g. however gives a contrasting idea, because gives a reason, etc.

Exercise 5

Mixed ability
Ask less confident students to complete this exercise in pairs and try to explain their answers. Have a short feedback session as a class to check their answers.
Ask more confident students to try to complete the gaps without looking at the options given. They then check to see if their ideas were correct.

Transformacje (zadanie zamknięte)

6 Wykorzystując wyrazy podane dużymi literami, uzupełnij lukę w każdym zdaniu, tak aby zachować sens zdania wyjściowego (1–5). A brief history of human rights

Before the birth of the modern state, humans only had any rights because of the family or group they [1]_____. In 539 BC the conqueror of Babylon, Cyrus the Great, freed every slave in the city. [2]_____, he gave them the freedom to choose their own religion. It was the first example of someone exercising their human rights in history. However, the idea of individual rights spread to ancient Greece, where freedom of thought, liberty and respect were all valued – [3]_____ a free man and not a slave!

The Magna Carta, signed in England in 1215, meant that the monarch was also subject to the rule of law. In 1776, the United States Declaration of Independence proclaimed everyone's right to life, liberty and happiness. However, it wasn't until 1920 in the USA [4]_____ women were allowed to vote. Modern feminist ideas would not emerge for many years to come.

Exercise 6
• After checking answers as a class, ask students to say what grammar form was used to complete each item. For example, item 5 required students to use the third conditional.

Exercise 7

Differentiation
As a class, discuss what type of word can go into each gap and elicit examples. Do not confirm answers yet. Remind students that the words need to have a different meaning in each gap. Then, give students a few minutes to complete the exercise.

Exercise 9

Differentiation
Ask students to try to complete the gaps without looking at the options first. They then look at the options and check if their ideas were correct.

Optional activity
Students can make sentences with the multiple choice items to check understanding.

Wpis na forum

Jeśli twoja wypowiedź jest za długa, nie wykreślaj całych zdań, ponieważ to może wpłynąć na jej spójność i logikę. Zamiast tego przeformułuj myśli. Upewnij się, że przekazałeś/przekazałaś wszystkie wymagane informacje i że w twoim tekście nie ma błędów językowych ani ortograficznych.

1 Przeczytaj zadanie i przykładową wypowiedź. Przeanalizuj ją zgodnie z wytycznymi (1–4).

Mieszkańcy twojego osiedla zainstalowali monitoring. Na forum internetowym:

- wyjaśnij, dlaczego zdecydowaliście się go zainstalować
- przedstaw obawy, jakie początkowo miałeś/miałaś w związku z tą decyzją
- poinformuj, jakie korzyści przyniosła instalacja monitoringu
- wyraź swoją opinię na ten temat.

Upewnij się, że:

1 każdy z podpunktów polecenia jest rozwinięty poprzez minimum trzy komunikatywne odniesienia.
2 zdania są poprawnie połączone odpowiednimi spójnikami.
3 w wypowiedzi nie ma powtórzeń oraz wyrazów nadużywanych.
4 w twoim tekście nie ma błędów gramatycznych, leksykalnych ani ortograficznych.

Hi everybody,

Local residents decided to install security cameras in my neighbourhood, so I thought I might share my thoughts on monitoring with you.

The decision was made because of frequent acts of vandalism.

Although I found out that security cameras were to be installed, I was against it at first. I thought the cameras would interfere too much with our privacy. I expected that vandals would destroy the expensive equipment and that nothing would change for the better.

After a few weeks, I realized I was wrong. Since setting up the cameras, nothing has been damaged. Benches have been repaired and the new lawn has been planted. The neighbourhood looks nice and we all feel safer.

I think that monitoring has more advantages than disadvantages. It may not be able to completely prevent crime, but when it happens, it's easier to catch the offender. The most important thing is that we feel safe, knowing that we are protected.

2 Uzupełnij akapit, w którym brakuje wystarczającej liczby odniesień. Wykorzystaj odpowiednie formy wyrazów podanych poniżej lub swoje własne pomysły.

damage park benches destroy the lawn pull down road signs

3 Popraw pozostałe akapity zgodnie z wytycznymi z ćwiczenia 1.

4 Napisz tekst (100–150 wyrazów, nie licząc słów już podanych), w którym rozwiniesz każdy z czterech podpunktów.

Gdy robiłeś/robiłaś zakupy, sprzed sklepu ukradziono ci rower, mimo że był zabezpieczony kłódką. Na forum mieszkańców miasta:

- zrelacjonuj okoliczności kradzieży
- opisz, jakie emocje wywołało w tobie to zdarzenie
- wyjaśnij, jak kradzież roweru wpłynie na twoje życie
- zaproponuj zainstalowanie monitoringu i wskaż odpowiednie miejsce.

Hi everybody,
Yesterday I had my bike stolen even though it was padlocked to a lamp post. Here's what happened.

Exercise 1
1 The first point is not properly developed – there is just one reference to it in the text.
2 Incorrect use of linkers: Although I found out that security cameras were to be installed, I was against it at first.
3 Simple vocabulary: The neighbourhood looks nice.
4 There are no grammar, lexical or spelling mistakes in the text.

Exercise 3
Suggested answers:
When I found out that security cameras were to be installed, I was against it at first.
The neighbourhood looks welcoming.

Warm up
• Ask students if they have visited an online forum recently and, if so, what it was about. Ask if they contributed to it and what they wrote.

Exercise 2
• Explain the meaning of the phrases in the box (translate them if necessary) before students complete the exercise.

Exercise 4
• Ask students to work in pairs to brainstorm ideas and vocabulary they can use to complete the task.
• Remind them to use the phrases from the Writing box in their writing.
• Set the writing task as homework.
• Ask students to check each other's work at draft stage and gently correct grammar and vocabulary where necessary.

Exercise 5
• Ask students to work in groups to write an outline for their answer.
• Groups share their outlines with the class and correct if necessary.
• Students then complete the exercise for homework.

How to learn vocabulary

- Place students in small groups. Ask them to study the first column of the wordlist. Give them about three minutes.
- Ask students to close their books. Explain that you will give them three minutes to write as many words as they can remember from the column.
- Students then work in pairs, testing each other on the vocabulary from the other columns in the same way.

Brainpower

- Ask students what gadgets they have that they can switch to using in English. Encourage them to do so.
- Take out your phone and make sure its prompts are in Polish. Call out different Polish prompts and have students say their English equivalents.

Sprawdź się!

Optional activity
Students can say other sentences with the key words to further understanding.

Does	he she it		Yes, he/she/it does. No, he/she/it doesn't.

Czas present simple stosujemy wtedy, gdy:

- mówimy o czynnościach rutynowych, powtarzających się, np.
  I usually start school at 8 a.m.
- mówimy o stałych, niezmiennych sytuacjach, np.
  My teacher lives in the suburbs.
- przytaczamy znane prawdy lub fakty, np.
  The Earth goes around the Sun.
- mówimy o ustalonych terminach, rozkładach, np.
  History starts at 10 a.m. tomorrow.
- wyrażamy uczucia (love, like, hate), stany umysłu (know, hope, seem, believe, remember, want) i doznania zmysłowe (feel, hear, see), np.
  I hope our timetable isn't as bad as last year.

Z czasem present simple używamy następujących określeń czasu: always, every day, often, regularly, usually, sometimes, hardly ever, never.

Present continuous

Twierdzenia i przeczenia

I	'm (=am) 'm not (=am not)	watching TV.
He/She/It	's (=is) isn't (=is not)
We You They	're (=are) aren't (=are not)

Pytania i krótkie odpowiedzi

Przedimki a/an, the i brak przedimka

a/an

Przedimka nieokreślonego a/an używamy:

- gdy mówimy o czymś po raz pierwszy, np.
  We went to a museum last Tuesday. (jakiegoś, jednego z wielu)
- gdy mówimy, czym jest jakaś rzecz lub kim jest jakaś osoba, np.
  My uncle is a scientist. (to jest jego zawód)
- w niektórych wyrażeniach związanych z szybkością, częstotliwością itp., np.
  I go to the gym twice a week.
  You're driving at 90 miles an hour.

the

Przedimka określonego the używamy:

- gdy mówimy o czymś ponownie, np.
  We went to a museum on Friday. The museum was very crowded.
- kiedy osoba lub rzecz, o której mówimy, jest nam znana, np.
  The actor who lives in my street was on TV last night. (ten, o którym ci mówiłam)
- gdy mówimy o rzeczach lub osobach jedynych w swoim rodzaju, np.
  the Moon, the Sun, the Earth
- przed liczebnikami porządkowymi i formami stopnia najwyższego przymiotników, np.
  the first female inventor, the most interesting film
- w wyrażeniach określających stulecia, np.
  the nineteenth century

  the Hudson River, the North Sea, the Pacific Ocean, the Shetland Islands
- przed nazwami niektórych państw, regionów oraz pasm górskich, np.
  the USA, the UK, the Middle East, the Rocky Mountains

Brak przedimka

Przedimków nie używamy:

- przed rzeczownikami w liczbie mnogiej zastosowanymi w znaczeniu ogólnym, np.
  Cows eat grass.
- przed rzeczownikami niepoliczalnymi i abstrakcyjnymi o charakterze stwierdzeń ogólnych, np.
  Money makes the world go round.
  I think eduation is very important.
- przed imionami, nazwami ulic, miast, szczytów górskich, pojedynczych wysp, państw, języków i kontynentów, np.
  Oxford Street, Caracas, Everest, Hong Kong Island, Africa
- gdy mówimy ogólnie o instytucjach, np. szpitalach, szkołach, więzieniach itp., i nie mamy na myśli konkretnego miejsca; w przeciwnym wypadku użyjemy przedimka, np.
  My uncle is in hospital. (Mój wujek jest w szpitalu.)
  Are you going to the hospital to visit him?
  Does your little sister go to school yet? (Czy twoja siostra chodzi już do szkoły?)
  My brother goes to the school down the road.

I haven't spoken to you for ages! How's life? Are you enjoying the school? Have you done anything interesting recently? Things are pretty much the same here. I'm working hard because I've got the important exam next month. I don't have much free time, but I went out with some friends last weekend. We did some shopping in Covent Garden. I bought the new bag and a T-shirt. A T-shirt is a bit boring, but it was all I could find. Later we went to the cinema and after that for the pizza. It was a best day I'd had for ages, but now I have to study again.

Present perfect

Twierdzenia i przeczenia
I We You They	've (=have) haven't (=have not)		seen this film.
He/She/It	's (=has) hasn't (=has not)
Pytania i krótkie odpowiedzi
Have	I we you they	seen this film?	Yes, I/we/you/they have. No, I/we/you/they haven't.
Has	he/she/it		Yes, he/she/it has. No, he/she/it hasn't.

Present perfect stosujemy wtedy, gdy:

- mówimy o zdarzeniach mających związek z teraźniejszością, np.
  I've lost some weight (jestem teraz szczuplejszy).
  I haven't drunk any coffee today (dlatego ciągle ziewam).
- mówimy o swoich lub czyichś doświadczeniach, ale nie określamy dokładnie, kiedy miały one miejsce, np.
  I've met a lot of famous people in my life.
  She's sailed across the Atlantic.
- mówimy, od jak dawna ma miejsce jakaś sytuacja, np.
  I have been ill for a week.
  Peter has had a headache since yesterday.

Określenia czasu

Czasu present perfect używamy z określeniami:

- ever (kiedykolwiek) i never (nigdy), kiedy mówimy o doświadczeniach, np.
  Have you ever seen a horror film?
  I've never been to Budapest.
- just (właśnie, dopiero co) i already (już) w zdaniach twierdzących, np.
  They've just gone out.
  We've already had lunch.
- yet (już, jeszcze) w przeczeniach i pytaniach, np.
  I haven't had breakfast yet.
  Have you done your homework yet?
- for (od, przez) i since (od). For używamy, kiedy chcemy powiedzieć, jak długo trwa jakaś czynność lub jakiś stan, a since, gdy mówimy, kiedy coś się zaczęło, np.
  I've known him for three years/five minutes/a long time.
  We've lived here since 1999/March/we were children.

Present perfect continuous

Twierdzenia i przeczenia
I We You They	've (=have) been haven't (=have not) been		watching TV.

Pytania i krótkie odpowiedzi
Have	I we you they	been watching TV?	Yes, I/we/you/they have. No, I/we/you/they haven't.
Has	he/she/it		Yes, he/she/it has. No, he/she/it hasn't.

Czas present perfect continuous stosujemy wtedy, gdy:

- mówimy o sytuacji lub czynności rozpoczętej w przeszłości i w dalszym ciągu trwającej; podkreślamy w ten sposób samą czynność i fakt, że trwa ona nieprzerwanie przez jakiś czas, np.
  I have been coughing for a week. (kaszlę od tygodnia).
  I've been reading this novel since last weekend.
- opisujemy czynność, która odbywa się od jakiegoś czasu aż do chwili obecnej i której skutki są nadal widoczne lub odczuwalne, np.
  I have been sleeping very badly. I feel tired.
  It has been raining for hours. The roads are very wet.

Present perfect i present perfect continuous

- Czasy present perfect i present perfect continuous mają bardzo podobne znaczenia, zwłaszcza gdy używamy ich z czasownikami opisującymi czynności ciągłe, np. wait, live, work, przy jednoczesnym zastosowaniu określeń czasu for lub since.
  He's waited a long time for this moment.
  He's been waiting a long time for this moment.
- Należy jednak pamiętać, że czasu present perfect używamy najczęściej, kiedy mówimy o jednorazowej czynności, która właśnie się zakończyła. Z kolei czasu present perfect continuous używamy, gdy chcemy podkreślić samą czynność i ciągłość jej trwania, np.
  I've done my homework. (właśnie skończyłem odrabiać pracę domową).
  I've been doing my homework for an hour (tak spędzam czas od godziny aż do teraz).
- Czasu present perfect continuous nie można używać z czasownikami wyrażającymi stany, takimi jak: be, like, believe, have, np.
  I've been a teacher since 2008.

Czasy przeszłe; konstrukcja used to

Past simple

Twierdzenia i przeczenia
I You He/She/It We They	lived didn't (=did not) live	here.

Pytania i krótkie odpowiedzi
Did	I you he/she/it we they	live here?	Yes, I/you/he/she/it/we/they did. No, I/you/he/she/it/we/they didn't.

- Czas past simple stosujemy, gdy mówimy o czynności zakończonej w określonym czasie w przeszłości. Dotyczy to także wydarzeń następujących jedno po drugim lub wydarzeń powtarzających się w przeszłości, np.
  When Sara came home, her mother made dinner.
  (Gdy Sara przyszła do domu, jej mama ugotowała obiad.)
  When we were in Warsaw, we went to the cinema every evening. (Gdy byliśmy w Warszawie, codziennie chodziliśmy do kina.)
- W zdaniach w czasie past simple często używamy określeń czasu, takich jak: yesterday, (two days) ago, when I was a child, in April/2008, last night/week/month/year itp.

Past continuous

Twierdzenia i przeczenia
I He/She/It	was wasn't (=was not)	travelling very fast.
We You They	were weren't (=were not)

Pytania i krótkie odpowiedzi
Was	I he/she/it	travelling very fast?	Yes, I/he/she/it was. No, I/he/she/it wasn't.
Were	we you they		Yes, we/you/they were. No, we/you/they weren't.

- Czas past continuous stosujemy, gdy opisujemy czynność trwającą w jakimś czasie w przeszłości (często będącą tłem dla innego wydarzenia), np.
  When Sara came home, her mother was making dinner.
  (Gdy Sara przyszła do domu, jej mama właśnie gotowała obiad.)
- Past simple i past continuous często używamy w tym samym zdaniu, opisując sytuację, w której dłuższa czynność została przerwana przez inną, krótszą czynność, np.
  It was raining when we left the house.
- Zdanie w czasie past continuous rozpoczynamy od while. While nie jest stosowane w czasie past simple.
- Czasu past continous nie używamy z czasownikami opisującymi stany, np. believe, need, understand itp. Używamy go z czasownikami, które wyrażają dłuższą czynność, np. wait, live, work, rain itp.

Past perfect

Twierdzenia i przeczenia
I You He/She/It We They	had hadn't (=had not)	passed the test.

Pytania i krótkie odpowiedzi
Had	I you he/she/it we they	passed the test?	Yes, I/you/he/she/it/we/they had. No, I/you/he/she/it/we/they hadn't.

- Czas past perfect stosujemy, gdy mówimy o czynności lub zdarzeniu z przeszłości, które poprzedziło inną czynność w przeszłości, np.
  When Sara came home, her mother had already made dinner.
  (Gdy Sara przyszła do domu, jej mama już ugotowała obiad.)

Used to

- Konstrukcji used to + forma podstawowa czasownika używamy, kiedy mówimy o przeszłych sytuacjach lub przyzwyczajeniach, które uległy już zmianie.
  My sister used to have long hair, but now it's short.
  I didn't use to like football, but now I love it.
  Did you use to watch a lot of TV when you were younger?

Różnice w użyciu czasów present perfect, present perfect continuous i past simple

Present perfect, present perfect continuous, past simple

- Gdy informujemy o niedawnych wydarzeniach, stosujemy czas present perfect. Gdy następnie opowiadamy o szczegółach tych wydarzeń, mówimy o nich w czasie past simple, np.
  Ann has left her job at the bank. She didn't like her boss.
- Pozostałe różnice w użyciu tych czasów przedstawia poniższa tabela.

Czasy perfect	Past simple
Czasu present perfect używamy wtedy, gdy mówimy o doświadczeniach i czynnościach bez określania, kiedy miały miejsce. Często wykorzystujemy w zdaniach w tym czasie przysłówki ever, never, just, yet i already, once/twice, np. Have you ever been to Spain? I've never been to Spain. Carrie has stayed at the hotel twice.	Czasu past simple używamy wtedy, gdy mówimy o czynnościach, które odbyły się w określonym momencie w przeszłości. W zdaniach w tym czasie często używamy ago, last week/year, in 2009, yesterday, when I was eight, np. John Lennon died in 1980. The plane landed at five o'clock. W pytaniach z when również używamy past simple, np. When did Lee go to Spain? Lee went to Spain last year.
Czasów present perfect i present perfect continuous używamy wtedy, gdy mówimy o zakończonych lub niezakończonych czynnościach lub sytuacjach, których skutek jest widoczny w chwili obecnej. Często używamy tych czasów z określeniami since i for oraz how long, np. He's been waiting for us for two hours (wciąż czeka). I've written to John, so he knows everything. How long have you been studying English?	Czasu past simple używamy wtedy, gdy mówimy o czynnościach lub sytuacjach, które zostały zakończone w przeszłości. I lived in Germany from 2002 to 2006 (już tam nie mieszkam). I had a cat two years ago (już nie mam kota).

Rzeczowniki policzalne i niepoliczalne; wyrażenia określające ilość

Rzeczowniki policzalne i niepoliczalne

- Rzeczowniki policzalne występują zarówno w liczbie pojedynczej, jak i mnogiej, np.
  a bag – two bags
- Rzeczowniki niepoliczalne występują tylko w liczbie pojedynczej i używamy ich bez rodzajnika a/an, np.
  You can only pay in cash in this shop.
  Can I have some water, please?
- Niektóre rzeczowniki mogą być zarówno policzalne, jak i niepoliczalne, ale ich znaczenie ulega wtedy zmianie, np.
  I'll have a tea, please (jedną filiżankę herbaty).
  I don't like tea (herbaty jako napoju).
  We need some paper to write on (papieru).
  Please get me the morning paper (gazetę).
- Niektóre rzeczowniki są zawsze niepoliczalne i występują tylko w liczbie pojedynczej, np.
  furniture, news, advice, information, luggage, money
  The furniture in my room is blue. (Meble w moim pokoju są niebieskie).
  I've stopped reading the papers. The news is always bad. (Przestałam czytać gazety. Wiadomości są zawsze złe).
  Money doesn't bring happiness. (Pieniądze nie dają szczęścia).
- Some i any używamy z rzeczownikami policzalnymi w liczbie mnogiej i z rzeczownikami niepoliczalnymi.
- Some (jakiś, trochę) używamy w zdaniach twierdzących.
- Any (żaden, jakiś) używamy w zdaniach przeczących i w pytaniach.
- A i an używamy z rzeczownikami policzalnymi w liczbie pojedynczej.

Wyrażenia określające liczbę/ilość

- Do określenia liczby przed rzeczownikami policzalnymi wykorzystujemy następujące wyrażenia: many, a lot of (wiele, dużo), a few (kilka, parę) lub few (niewiele, mało), np.
  There aren't many people in the shop today.
  A lot of people only buy sale items.
  There were only a few banks open until 6 p.m.
  Few people I know can speak Russian.
- Przed rzeczownikami niepoliczalnymi stawiamy: a lot of, much (dużo, wiele), a little (trochę) lub little (mało), np.
  How much money did you spend?
  She spent a lot of time trying on clothes.
  They only need a little water.
  We have little time.
- Wyrażenie a lot of stosujemy zwykle w zdaniach twierdzących, a określenia many i much – w pytaniach i przeczeniach, np.
  Susan has bought a lot of winter clothes.
  You can't buy many good books here.

Whole, all

- Wyraz whole (cały/cała) stosujemy przed rzeczownikiem w liczbie pojedynczej, a all (wszyscy, wszystkie) – przed rzeczownikami w liczbie mnogiej i rzeczownikami niepoliczalnymi, np.
  I drank a whole bottle of juice.
  Susan spends all her money on clothes.
  All the shops are closed today.

Konstrukcje czasownikowe

Czasownika z końcówką -ing (tzw. gerund) używamy zwykle:

- po przyimkach (in, on, at, to itd.) i spójnikach (after, before itd.), np.
  I'm thinking of going to the gym.
  How about watching football on TV?
- jako podmiotu w zdaniu, np.
  Swimming is good for you.
- po niektórych czasownikach, takich jak: admit, avoid, can't help, consider, deny, dislike, don't mind, enjoy, fancy, feel like, finish, give up, hate, imagine, involve, keep, like, love, miss, practise, prefer, risk, spend time, suggest, np.
  I love skiing in the Tatras.
  I prefer jogging to cycling.
- po niektórych zwrotach, takich jak: it's no good, it's not worth, np.
  It's not worth worrying about it now.

Bezokolicznika (infinitive) używamy zwykle:

- po przymiotnikach, np.
  I find it difficult to get up early.
- gdy określamy cel, np.
  She goes to aerobic classes to lose weight (żeby schudnąć).
- po niektórych czasownikach, takich jak: agree, arrange, decide, expect, fail, help, hope, learn, manage, mean, need, offer, plan, prepare, pretend, promise, refuse, seem, want, wish, would like, would prefer, np.
  I want to try a new sport.
- w konstrukcjach typu czasownik + dopełnienie + to + bezokolicznik, np.
  My teacher advised me to do more grammar exercises.

Konstrukcje z imiesłowem i bezokolicznikiem

- Niektóre czasowniki zmieniają znaczenie w zależności od tego, czy czasownik, który po nich występuje, jest w bezokoliczniku czy ma końcówkę -ing, np.
  forget to do sth – zapomnieć, żeby coś zrobić forget doing sth – zapomnieć, że się coś robiło remember to do sth – pamiętać, aby coś zrobić remember doing sth – pamiętać, że się coś robiło stop to do sth – zatrzymać się, żeby coś zrobić stop doing sth – przestać coś robić try to do sth – próbować, starać się coś zrobić try doing sth – wypróbować (różne możliwości)

Uwaga!

- Po czasownikach modalnych (can, may, must, should itp.) oraz czasownikach make i let stosujemy bezokolicznik bez to, np.
  You shouldn't watch so much TV.
  Please don't make me do it again.

1 W każdym zdaniu wskaż właściwą formę czasownika.

1 I'm good at to play / playing sports such as football and basketball.
2 My sister's looking forward to start / starting her new dance class.

Strona bierna; konstrukcja have something done

Strony biernej używamy, kiedy:

- bardziej interesuje nas sama czynność niż jej wykonawca;
- nie wiemy, kto wykonuje czynność lub jej wykonawca jest jasno określony przez kontekst. Stronę bierną tworzymy za pomocą formy czasownika be w różnych czasach i imiesłowu biernego (past participle).

present simple	→	The engine is built.
present continuous	→	The engine is being built.
present perfect	→	The engine has been built.
past simple	→	The engine was built.
past continuous	→	The engine was being built.
past perfect	→	The engine had been built.
future simple	→	The engine will be built.
konstrukcja going to	→	The engine is going to be built.
czasowniki modalne	→	The engine must be built.

- Wykonawca czynności jest najczęściej pomijany, szczególnie wtedy, gdy jest wyrażony zaimkiem, np. I, he, she, somebody, they.
- Jeśli chcemy powiedzieć, kto wykonał czynność, używamy słowa by, np.
  The radio was invented by Marconi.
- Jeśli czasownik ma dwa dopełnienia (np. ask, give, offer, send), możliwe są dwa warianty tworzenia strony biernej, np.
  She sent me a present for Christmas.
  a I was sent a present for Christmas.
  b A present was sent to me for Christmas.
- Strony biernej używamy także w języku oficjalnym w konstrukcjach bezosobowych typu: It is said/believed/thought that … (Sądzi się, wierzy się, myśli się, że…), np.
  It is believed that children are better at using computers than adults.
  Children are believed to be better at using computers than adults.

Zdania warunkowe (zerowy, pierwszy i drugi tryb warunkowy)

Zerowy tryb warunkowy

- Zerowego trybu warunkowego używamy, kiedy mówimy o faktach i o tym, co jest ogólnie uznane za prawdziwe.

WARUNEK	REZULTAT
If + czas present simple	czas present simple
If you heat up water, (Kiedy podgrzewasz wodę, …)	it boils. (…ona się gotuje.)

- Część zdania opisująca rezultat może znajdować się przed częścią opisującą warunek. Nie stosujemy wtedy przecinka, np. Plants die if you don't water them.
- Zamiast if możemy użyć when, np. When I go on holiday, I'll only sleep, eat and watch TV.

Pierwszy tryb warunkowy

- Gdy mówimy o tym, co najprawdopodobniej wydarzy się w przyszłości, stosujemy pierwszy tryb warunkowy.

WARUNEK	REZULTAT
If + czas present simple	will + bezokolicznik
If I learn to cook, (Jeśli nauczę się gotować, …)	I will make sushi. (…zrobię sushi.)

- W pierwszym trybie warunkowym można również używać spójników as soon as, when, until, before, after zamiast if. Są to tzw. time clauses, czyli zdania podrzędne czasowe. Należy pamiętać o użyciu czasu teraźniejszego (NIE: przyszłego) po tych spójnikach, np. When you have something to eat, you will feel much better. (Gdy to zjesz, poczujesz się lepiej.) NIE: When you ~~will have~~ …

Drugi tryb warunkowy

- Gdy mówimy o tym, co jest mało prawdopodobne i pewnie się nie wydarzy, stosujemy drugi tryb warunkowy.

WARUNEK	REZULTAT
If + czas past simple	would + bezokolicznik
If I had time, (Gdybym miał czas, …)	I would learn to cook. (…nauczyłbym się gotować.)

1 Uzupełnij dialog właściwymi formami czasowników z nawiasów. Zastosuj pierwszy tryb warunkowy.

Either i neither; every i each; both; another i other

Both, either i neither

Zaimków both, either i neither używamy, kiedy mówimy o dwóch osobach lub rzeczach.

- Zaimka both (oba, obydwa, obydwoje) używamy przed rzeczownikami w liczbie mnogiej, np.
  I've got two sisters. Both of them are teachers.
- Zaimka either (którykolwiek z dwóch) i neither (żaden z dwóch) używamy przed rzeczownikami w liczbie pojedynczej. Gdy używamy ich przed rzeczownikami w liczbie mnogiej, dodajemy of, np.
  'There are two cakes left. Which one would you like?'
  'I'll have either of them, thanks.'
  Neither film was very good.
  Neither of the twins was well behaved.

Every i each

- Gdy mówimy o każdym z osobna, używamy określnika each. Gdy mówimy o każdym z grupy (czyli o wszystkich), używamy określnika every, np.
  Each child who appeared in the film became famous (każde dziecko z osobna).
  I really like Ben Elton. I have read every one of his novels (każdą, którą napisał = wszystkie).
- Jeśli mówimy o dwóch rzeczach, używamy określnika each, np.
  The artist has a brush in each hand.
- Each może być zaimkiem, np.
  I bought three books. Each one was a paperback.

Another i other

- Zaimek another oznacza 'jakiś inny' lub 'jeszcze jeden', np.
  Have another sandwich.
- Wyrażenie the other oznacza 'ten drugi', np.
  Can I take the other book?
- Zaimek other oznacza 'jakieś inne', np.
  Can you show me some other earrings?
- Wyrażenie the others oznacza 'te inne', 'ci inni', np.
  Where are the others?

Stopniowanie przymiotników i przysłówków; konstrukcje z przymiotnikiem i przysłówkiem

Stopniowanie przymiotników

Przymiotniki, w zależności od ich długości, stopniuje się na dwa sposoby:

- poprzez dodanie końcówek -er i -est, np.
  cheap cheaper the cheapest (jednosylabowe) thin thinner the thinnest (jednosylabowe zakończone jedną samogłoską + jedną spółgłoską) easy easier the easiest (dwusylabowe z końcówką -y)
- poprzez dodanie more i the most przed przymiotnikiem (wielosylabowe), np.
  dangerous more dangerous the most dangerous
- Formy nieregularne:

good	better	the best
bad	worse	the worst
many/much	more	the most
little	less	the least
far	farther	the farthest

Stopniowanie przysłówków

Również przysłówki, w zależności od ich długości, stopniuje się na dwa sposoby:

- przez dodanie more i most (z końcówką -ly), np.
  elegantly more elegantly most elegantly
- przez dodanie końcówek -er i -est, (jednosylabowe, które mają taką samą formę jak przymiotniki), np.
  close closer the closest
- Formy nieregularne:

well	better	the best
badly	worse	the worst
little	less	the least

Konstrukcje z przymiotnikiem i przysłówkiem

Aby porównać dwie osoby, rzeczy, dwa zjawiska itp., stosujemy:

- formę stopnia wyższego przymiotników lub przysłówków + than, np.
  Trains are slower than planes, but they are more comfortable.
  Planes can fly higher than birds.
- (not) as + przymiotnik lub przysłówek + as, np.
  Trains aren't as fast as planes.
  Business class doesn't sell as well as economy class.

Inne konstrukcje, w których używa się stopnia wyższego, to:

- the + stopień wyższy przymiotnika, the + stopień wyższy przysłówka, np.
  The faster you drive, the more dangerous it is (im szybciej …, tym bardziej …).

Aby powiedzieć, że coś lub ktoś jest naj, stosujemy konstrukcję:

- the + stopień najwyższy przymiotnika lub przysłówka. Możemy to podkreślić przez dodanie wyrażenia of all (ze wszystkich), np.
  This hotel is the best in town.
  John started his journey the earliest.
  Jerzy Janowicz is the most popular Polish tennis player of all.

Too i enough

Too (za, zbyt) wstawiamy przed przymiotnikiem, a enough (dość, wystarczająco) – po przymiotniku, np.
The film was too long.
It wasn't warm enough to go to the beach.

How i what

Zaimka pytajnego how (jak) używamy przed przymiotnikiem, a what (jaki) przed przymiotnikiem i następującym po nim rzeczownikiem. Wyrazy te często stoją na początku zdania, np.
How lovely you look today!
What a fantastic party!

Mowa zależna

- Mowy zależnej używamy, kiedy chcemy przekazać, co powiedziała inna osoba.
- Jeżeli zdania w mowie zależnej są przytaczane przez innego mówiącego i w innym czasie, niż zostały użyte w mowie niezależnej, to trzeba zmienić czasy gramatyczne i zaimki. Poniżej przedstawiono, jak zmieniają się czasy gramatyczne po przekształceniu mowy niezależnej na mowę zależną.

Mowa niezależna		Mowa zależna
Present simple She said, 'Ian snores very loudly.'	→	Past simple She said that Ian snored very loudly.
Present continuous 'John's listening to music,' I said.	→	Past continuous I said that John was listening to music.
Present perfect 'I've made my decision,' she said.	→	Past perfect She said that she had made her decision.
Past simple 'I waited a long time,' Pete said.	→	Past perfect Pete said that he had waited a long time.
Past continuous 'Chris and I were talking all evening,' said Helen.	→	Past perfect continuous Helen said that she and Chris had been talking all evening.
Past perfect 'I'd already seen the film,' said Sam.	→	Past perfect Sam said that she'd already seen the film.
can 'You can try again,' he said.	→	could He said that I could try again.
will They said, 'We'll think about it.'	→	would They said that they would think about it.
must Richard said, 'I must go.'	→	had to Richard said that he had to go.

- Zwykle konieczne jest także zmienienie zaimków oraz przymiotników dzierżawczych, np.
'My dog isn't very well,' Harry said. → Harry said that his dog wasn't very well.
'I'm buying a present for my dad,' she said. → She said that she was buying a present for her dad.
- Zmieniamy również określenia czasu i miejsca:
now → then/at that moment
today → that day
this week → that week
last week → the week before yesterday → the day before tomorrow → the next/following day a minute ago → a minute earlier/before next week → the following week here → there

Say i tell

- Aby zrelacjonować to, co ktoś powiedział, używamy czasowników say i tell.
- Po tell zawsze wstawiamy dopełnienie (zaimek lub czyjeś imię), np.
  Harry told me he was hungry.
  Harry told Sally he was hungry.
  NIE: ~~Harry told he was hungry.~~
- Nigdy nie wstawiamy dopełnienia bezpośrednio po say, np.
  Mary said that she wanted a sandwich.
  Dominic said to Tom that he had eaten some pasta.
  NIE: ~~Mary said me that she wanted a sandwich.~~

Pytania w mowie zależnej

- Gdy relacjonujemy pytania, zmianie ulega także szyk wyrazów – z pytającego na twierdzący, np.
  'What does your new girlfriend look like?'
  She asked me what my new girlfriend looked like.
  'Were you at home yesterday?'
  He wanted to know if/whether I had been/was at home the day before.

Polecenia i prośby w mowie zależnej

- Gdy relacjonujemy prośby i polecenia w mowie zależnej, stosujemy czasowniki tell i ask + bezokolicznik, np.
  'Be honest with me and don't lie, please.'
  He asked me to be honest with him and not to lie.
  'Stand up, John.'
  The teacher told John to stand up.

A Modern Date (in the gym)

Mark Do you come here often?
Jenny Every day.
Mark I come here every day, too. But I don't think I have seen you here before.
Jenny Really? That's probably because it's my first week.
Mark Oh, actually, I think I saw you two days ago. You were running on the treadmill. You looked so beautiful!
Jenny Thanks. But I hate the treadmill.
Mark So let's go running in the park!
Jenny The park? But it's raining!
Mark OK, well, why don't we go shopping? We can walk around the shopping centre – it never rains in there.
Jenny You are … ! I … .

One day Mark was working out in the gym. He saw a pretty girl and asked her if … .

Zaimki zwrotne

Zaimki zwrotne

- Gdy podmiot i dopełnienie odnoszą się do tej samej osoby lub rzeczy, używamy zaimków zwrotnych: myself/yourself/themselves itp. (sobie, się, samego siebie itd.), np.

Zdania przydawkowe definiujące i niedefiniujące

Zdania przydawkowe definiujące

- Zdania przydawkowe definiujące (odpowiadające na pytania: jaki?, który?) stosujemy wtedy, gdy podajemy niezbędną informację o osobie lub rzeczy wymienionej w zdaniu głównym.
- W zdaniach tych używamy następujących zaimków względnych:
  - who lub that w odniesieniu do osób, np.
    It's the boy who/that lives next door.
  - that lub which w odniesieniu do rzeczy, np.
    It's something that covers the window.
    It's a box made of wood which you keep clothes in.
  - whose, aby wyrazić przynależność (odpowiada na pytanie: którego?), np.
    This is the house whose owner is dead now.
  - where w odniesieniu do miejsca, np.
    This is the place where a great pop star lived.

Uwaga!

- Zaimki względne who, which i that można pominąć, jeśli pełnią w zdaniu funkcję dopełnienia, np.
  The fans (who/that) we saw in front of the hotel finally met the film star.

Zdania przydawkowe niedefiniujące

- Zdania przydawkowe niedefiniujące stosujemy wtedy, gdy udzielamy dodatkowych informacji na temat osoby lub rzeczy w zdaniu głównym, np.
  Vogue, which is published monthly, is a magazine about fashion and lifestyle.
- Gdy używamy ich w środku lub na końcu zdania głównego, zawsze oddzielamy je przecinkami, np.
  Wisława Szymborska was born in Kórnik, which is a small town in western Poland.

Uwaga!

- W tym rodzaju zdań przydawkowych nie możemy pominąć zaimków względnych who, which, where, whose.
  The fans, who were waiting in front of the hotel, finally saw the film star.
  NIE: ~~The fans, were waiting in front of the hotel, finally saw the film star.~~
- W zdaniach przydawkowych niedefiniujących nie używamy zaimka that.
  The Knödel festival is held in Radstadt, which (NIE: ~~that~~) is a small town in Austria.

1 W każdym zdaniu wskaż właściwy wyraz.

Formy dzierżawcze

Zaimki i przymiotniki dzierżawcze

Zaimki i przymiotniki dzierżawcze mają takie samo znaczenie. Różnią się jednak miejscem w zdaniu.

- Przymiotniki dzierżawcze występują zawsze przed rzeczownikiem, np.
  This is my bag.
- Zaimki dzierżawcze występują samodzielnie, bez rzeczownika, np.
  This bag is mine.

Zaimki osobowe	Przymiotniki dzierżawcze	Zaimki dzierżawcze
I	my	mine
you	your	yours
he	his	his
she	her	hers
it	its	its
we	our	ours
you	your	yours
they	their	theirs

Forma dzierżawcza rzeczowników

- Formy dzierżawczej rzeczownika używa się, by zaznaczyć, że dany przedmiot, dane zwierzę lub dana osoba przynależą do innej rzeczy, innego zwierzęcia, innej osoby.
  That's Sam's ball.
- Formę dzierżawczą rzeczownika (tzw. Saxon genitive) w liczbie pojedynczej tworzymy przez dodanie apostrofu (') i s ('s) po rzeczowniku określającym przedmiot, zwierzę, osobę itp., do którego/której coś lub ktoś przynależy, np.
  Whose are these books? Doris's.
- Formę dzierżawczą rzeczownika w liczbie mnogiej tworzymy przez dodanie apostrofu (') po liczbie mnogiej rzeczownika (-s'), np.
  Here is the girls' dog.
- Jeśli liczba mnoga jest tworzona w sposób nieregularny, wówczas do rzeczownika w liczbie mnogiej dodaje się apostrof (') i s ('s), np.
  Those are the men's jackets.
  These are the children's toys.
- Jeśli mówimy o przynależności do dwóch osób lub zwierząt, 's dodajemy tylko do drugiego rzeczownika, np.
  Johnny and Mary's house.

Forma z of Formy z of używamy częściej w wypowiedziach oficjalnych i języku pisanym. Form z 's i of możemy używać wymiennie, gdy mówimy o przynależności do:

- grupy ludzi, np.
  the band's new album/the new album of the band,
- miejsca, np.
  Kraków's churches/the churches of Kraków.

Ponadto formy z of używamy:

- gdy mówimy o przynależności do rzeczy, np.
  the winner of the race,
- po wyrazach, takich jak: end, top, front, middle, np.
  in the middle of the film.

Wow, you look so good with your hair like that. I'm so jealous. I'm planning on shaving my head, too. I think I'd look great when I'm bald. The only problem is that my mum is very upset about the idea and she won't let me do it during term time. My school has very strict rules about appearance, you see, and that would get me in trouble. Anyway, the first day of the summer holidays, I'm going to do it. You'll see.

The expectation is that when you go on holiday, you should come back with a tan. The message about the dangers of tanning, like skin cancers, has still not reached enough people in our society. It's particularly true for people like me, who have very pale skin, blond hair and blue eyes. People should do what I do. Forget the tan, put on sun block and look after yourself. Pale skin is just as attractive as a tan.

This was taken the last time I saw her. It's difficult to meet up when you live so far apart. She's a lot of fun and I think you'd get on very well. She's always telling jokes and funny stories. When she talks about her wrinkles, she always says "they're my laughter lines!" She's definitely my favourite member of the family.

Like a lot of kids I used to be rather plump but nowadays I'd say I'm very thin. It wasn't because of doing exercise or having a special diet or anything like that. It's simply the case that when I was about fifteen, all that weight just disappeared. You wouldn't recognize me if you saw a photo of me then!

I have a lot of freckles and growing up, they made me feel very insecure. At primary school, some of the kids in my class used to laugh at me and call me names. It was terrible. Now I'm a bit older, I've realized that actually freckles are nice and lots of people like them. In fact, I've recently discovered that there is even a special pen to put freckles on your face if you don't have natural ones. Apparently, plenty of famous models use it. Suddenly, everyone is keen on them, which is great in my book.

Boy I want to completely change my look.

Hairdresser OK. What exactly do you have in mind?

Boy I've heard that there's a new trend going round – loads of teenagers are dying their hair grey.

Hairdresser Yes, it's barely believable that young people want to look old, but going grey is very common at the moment. I can do that. No problem at all. And actually this style's very reasonably priced. How grey do you want it?

Boy Well, I don't want to look middle-aged or anything. I just want a cool look to go to the end-of-year party.

Hairdresser I think it's highly unlikely that you'll look middle-aged – you're only 16! OK. Let me show you some photos … Would you like to look like this? Or this? Or maybe this one?

Boy I like the second one best. Grey all over and a bit messy and curly on top.

Hairdresser I get the idea. Well, it's fairly straightforward, but you'll have to be patient because first we have to dye your hair white and then add the grey.

Boy Fine. Let's do it! This is going to look so cool!

People have been giving me strange looks recently and I can understand why. It's not common to see people in their twenties with a moustache, but I have been growing mine for a good cause. I've decided to take part in November. The word November comes from 'moustache' and 'November'. Mo-vember. See?

In November every year, thousands of men grow a moustache for charity. The idea is that you grow a moustache for thirty days to raise awareness and money for medical research into men's health. I stumbled upon the idea when I was reading the news online. Then I got my best friend interested, too. Even my dad and uncle have got actively involved and I am very envious of their moustaches, I can tell you! I was wildly optimistic that I would have a really cool 'tache, but the look doesn't suit me at all.

So where did the Movember campaign come from? It all began in Australia in 2003. At the time, moustaches were unfashionable, but two friends, Travis Garone and Luke Slattery, were joking about growing one. In the end, they convinced 30 guys to grow a moustache, too. At that time, their friend's mother was raising money for a women's cancer charity and she gave them an idea. The men wouldn't just grow their moustaches for fun. They would pay to grow the moustaches, and the money would go to men's cancer charities. The challenge was enthusiastically received by people across Australia and, since then, it has spread to Britain, America and many other countries.

So far, Movember has raised over $800 million. It's also becoming popular here in Poland, mainly because Poles in the UK have spread the message about it. Indeed, the start of November is eagerly anticipated by my friends and family who all want to give it a go. The aim of Movember is to inform people about cancer and it encourages them to do regular check-ups, so I'm sure it will do a lot of good here. Our message is deadly serious. Movember isn't just for fun.

Now, the interesting thing about it is that Movember shows how a global movement can start from a simple idea among a group of friends. As charity volunteers, we can all learn from that. The founders of Movember were blissfully unaware of how the success of their original proposal would grow, but they are now major figures in the charity world. If you can find something that people particularly like doing and that is easy to do in your spare time, the public will get involved. A fun activity can give a huge boost to a charity's public image and solve its money problems at the same time. The only problem with Movember is that it's only for guys, so when thinking of similar activities, think of ones that girls can get involved in, too.

A So, how did you meet your new friend?

B I met her in class. The teacher divided us into groups, so that we could get to know each other a bit more. Hana was in the same group as me.

A What was she like?

B Well, at first she seemed a bit shy, but then she opened up. I liked the way she talked about her family and listened to other students. She focused on what they said and offered great advice.

A And what is she into?

B Actually, we have so many things in common. Hana is mad about music and books. We even like the same bands.

A It's a pity the course was over in a few days.

B Yes, it is, but I've already invited Hana to visit me in Poland. I can't wait to introduce her to my friends. We could all go to a gig together.

In the picture I can see a young woman posing for a photo. She is wearing sunglasses and a smart black dress. With her glamorous outfit, she looks like a model or a film star. She appears to be confident and happy. There are also three photographers who are taking pictures of her. They are trying to take good shots. They seem focused on their work.

Agent Good morning. This is the estate agent's.

Max Hello. I'm looking for an unfurnished flat. I'd like to furnish it on my own.

Agent That's fine. How many bedrooms would you like?

Max Well, I have two flatmates so we'd like three bedrooms, please.

Agent Would you prefer a ground-floor flat?

Max We don't mind what floor it is on.

Agent Well, I have a nice flat in a quiet location close to the park. It's on the first floor. It has a fitted kitchen and central heating, so it's nice and warm in winter.

Max How much is the rent?

Agent It's eight hundred pounds per month. There are tenants in the flat at the moment, but they're leaving at the end of next month.

Max That sounds good.

Agent Right, well, I'll phone the landlord and we'll discuss when you can go and have a look at it.

Max Thank you very much.

You can now register for next term's school exchange between our students and our partner school in Ireland. For many pupils this will be their first experience of living away from home, so let me first explain the accommodation options. Our partner school in Ireland has halls of residence where students live together in double rooms – I'm sure you're familiar with them from various films and TV shows. Another option is finding homestay accommodation through an agency – homestay means that you will be living with an Irish family while you're there. It's a great way of getting …

Next on the show we bring you news of a drama series by director Luca Guadagnino, which follows the lives of a group of teens who live on a military camp in Italy. One of them, Mia, has lived in ten different houses and moved between schools eleven times. The documentary-style drama takes an honest look at the difficulties and benefits of always being on the move and constantly having to adapt to new situations. We Are Who We Are is a fascinating series, offering a unique perspective on teenage life. It is available to stream from tomorrow …

Hey guys, we've just arrived at a new place we found online. Here I am in the dining room. Now, see this full-length mirror? Well, it's not a mirror! It turns out that if you put your fingers around the frame and pull, look … it's the door to a hidden cupboard. I saw something similar in a TV show the other day. I only found it because I was trying to straighten the mirror on the wall. There are some unusual possessions inside, though. Most are antique toys, like these little toy soldiers, but there's also a box of old letters. Maybe a former resident forgot them when they left?

Here, at Professional House Sitters, we match homeowners who need to spend time away with people who are happy to live in their property for a time and look after it. We aim to bring peace of mind to homeowners: our sitters will take care of valuable possessions, and even pets. Meanwhile, potential guests can live there without paying rent and have a base from which they can explore a new area. We use the Internet to match house sitters with homeowners, so it's a great option for those who don't have time to visit regular agencies.

Finally, there has been a sharp rise in the number of people who are buying houses online, without seeing the property in person. It's a result of the fact that, thanks to technology, people can now take virtual tours around the homes for sale, which saves a lot of time and money. You can now just go online, browse the offers and buy a second home in another country. People in the industry are also hoping that the technology will help organize insurance and maintenance work quickly and easily.

Whether you've just moved into an unfamiliar apartment or are experiencing tensions within the household, it's always good to bring a more positive vibe to your home. Today we're discussing some solutions, inspired by nature, that have helped many people over the centuries.

Many animals are associated with positivity and fortune, of which fish are certainly the easiest to keep. According to the Chinese art of feng shui, these popular aquatic animals are believed to absorb negative energy and are symbols of health, happiness, prosperity and wealth. Eight or nine are supposed to bring the most luck, but even one can introduce calm and well-being into the home.

Plants may also offer effective solutions for calming your environment. Burning white sage is supposed to restore balance after arguments. Studies suggest that the smell reacts with certain parts of your brain to increase positivity. Researchers also believe it can clear the air in another way: by removing harmful bacteria. However, don't forget to ventilate the room when you're lighting it. To avoid smoke, you can also use live plants, such as Aloe vera, to remove impurities and stress from the environment.

Certain minerals, like rose quartz, are often said to bring positivity, too. For example, one fabulous way of improving mood is lighting a Himalayan salt lamp. Scientific proof of their health benefits is yet to be found, but the gentle, therapeutic glow is certainly restful. Its soft, cool light is great at preparing you for a mood-enhancing sleep, in contrast to harsh lights that stop the production of a hormone called melatonin.

Finally, your choice of colour may also help adjust your environment to your needs. While orange and yellow can bring a sense of warmth and positivity, natural colours like blue or green, often called spa colours, help people keep their tempers.

So, why not experiment and see what works for you?

I think they are happy about their new house, because they are smiling and looking at some plans. It looks like they are thinking about the layout and interior design of the rooms. They probably can't wait to move in and start a new life at their new place.

The place I like the most is definitely my balcony. It is small but cosy, with a lot of flowers and a nice view of the neighbourhood. I love sitting there on my comfy floor pillows, reading a book or just chilling out. It's a perfect place to rest.

It happened in the morning on Christmas Eve. My dad was preparing his signature lemon cake when the food processor stopped working. At first we thought it was a power cut. But the appliance wouldn't start. So I spent the last hours before Christmas Eve running around household appliance shops. Luckily, I found a new one and, eventually, we could enjoy our favourite cake.

All the options seem interesting but if I were to choose one I would go for option number 3. The hammock is the most comfortable solution. It is perfect for a nap. The swinging will calm you down and help you fall asleep. Moreover, it is economical, too. You don't want to pay a lot of money for something you'll only be using for two months. Besides, you can take the hammock back to Poland with you. It's light and easy to pack.

Unlike the hammock, the chairs in photo number 1 do not appear practical. I can't imagine sitting on the plastic bottles for a long time. Moreover, the bottles can bend out of shape after just a few days of use.

I wouldn't opt for the chair in photo 2 either. It's made of wood and so it's not weather resistant. And garden furniture is supposed to be able to face different weather conditions.

All in all, I think that the hammock is the best solution, because it is inexpensive, practical and visually attractive.

In Britain, very young children go to nursery school. Then, when they are four or five years old, they go to primary school. At the age of eleven, they go on to secondary school. A comprehensive school is a school for children aged eleven to eighteen that you don't have to pay for and you don't have to pass an exam to get in to. A grammar school is a selective school. This means you have to pass an exam to go there. Parents have to pay fees for their children to go to private schools. Some schools are single-sex, so they are for boys or for girls only, but most schools are mixed. When they are sixteen, pupils take their GCSE examinations. When they are eighteen, they do A-level examinations. At sixteen, they can leave school and go to work, or they can go to a college of further education. Here they can do traditional subjects as well as vocational training.

On our Social Studies course we made a poster of famous people from our local area, Lincolnshire. First of all, we brainstormed a list of the most important people. Obviously the most famous was the British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who was born in Lincolnshire. We added her, although she was very controversial. Then we looked at people from different career backgrounds, for example, inventors, and we chose Isaac Newton, the famous physicist. I wanted to add the poet Lord Tennyson, too, because I thought we needed a famous writer, but the other members of my group had never heard of him, so in the end we left him off.

We did a fascinating project in History. We had to research a family member and talk about them in morning assembly. Well, I spoke to my parents and they suggested my great-grandfather. We'd always had a photo of him in his uniform up in the hall, but I'd never really tried to learn more about him before. Well, it turned out that he was a Polish pilot for the British Royal Air Force during World War Two. Lots of Polish pilots were fighting the Nazis in the British army at the time. We even found a photo of his plane while we were doing the project. I spent a lot of time on it and, in the end, I came top of the class for the first time ever!

We are inviting all students to take part in this year's Information Technology competition. You can work in teams of up to three classmates. If you want to enter, please send an email to Mr Wilson, with the subject line 'School IT competition', including your team name. Sketch a picture of what your game will look like, and attach it to the email. You can use any computer language you like. To get an idea of the standard we expect, there will be a demonstration of the best entries from last year's competition in the computer room after school on Thursday. These include a basketball simulator, and a crossword maker. There will also be a short presentation by the winners, Melissa Schneider and Hayley Oswald, who will be explaining how they designed a game to teach people to play the guitar. The competition is for everyone so please get involved.

Colin What do you think we should study in our literature classes, Heather? Should we study modern literature or the classics?

Heather Now you're asking, Colin! Well, I think it's important to do the classics. Shakespeare and things like that.

Colin Really? The last book we read was like 500 pages and written in the 19th century. Even though it had interesting bits, most of my classmates didn't have the motivation to finish it. And as for Shakespeare, whenever I read him, I always need to look up words in a dictionary. It's so frustrating! It's just not the language we speak any more.

Heather Sure, but that's exactly why we should read the classics at school. To broaden our minds. It has to be a challenge. When we started on Shakespeare, I didn't understand anything, either. It was so disappointing because I had been looking forward to it. Then our teacher showed us a film version of the play and suddenly, I got it. I could see the characters and, in the mouths of the actors, the language made sense. Suddenly I found the text interesting and motivating. In my opinion, a literature class should teach people about the great writing in their language, like that.

Colin Well, I'm not sure. I really believe that the syllabus should focus on contemporary fiction. First of all, the classics are all written by the same sort of people: old, dead men. Literature should be more diverse. We should read books by authors from many different backgrounds. It also needs to be about issues today – our politics, the environment – not the arguments of the past. But most importantly, the purpose of a literature course is to encourage people to read in general. And people will only read in their spare time if they enjoy the books they are reading in class.

Heather I see your point, but I still feel that reading the classics is most important because it's timeless. For example, a lot of Shakespeare's writing is very relevant to what is happening today. If you take …

I have a very memorable lesson … for all the wrong reasons! To demonstrate the reaction that sodium had with water, our chemistry teacher decided to carry out an apparently simple experiment. Sodium is an unstable metal and it reacts when you put it in water. So he took some sodium from a bottle, where it was covered in oil, and then dropped it into a bowl of water. Unfortunately, he had made a mistake. He had used a piece that was too big and the whole plastic bowl blew up. Luckily nobody was hurt but we all went silent. I was at the front of the class and my friends said my face went white! On the one hand, it was a bit of a disaster but on the other hand, we've never forgotten what happens when you add sodium to water! It took ages to clean up all the bits of plastic from the classroom!

I had a very memorable lesson on a language course that I used to take in the evenings. I remember that day that our French teacher would not start anything until she was sure that everyone was present. She was acting suspiciously so it was clear that she was up to something. Then, all of a sudden, the classroom door opened and another member of staff rushed into the classroom. She took my teacher's bag and then ran into the corridor and disappeared. One of the boys even screamed. We then had to work in groups to remember exactly what the 'thief' had been wearing. It was hard because you only saw her for an instant. I think I only just remembered a hat and a scarf. At the end, our English teacher came into the classroom and owned up to being the 'thief'. It was such a great class.

In geography, we used to learn about other cultures a lot. One year, we did a project on another country. Our teacher came with the country names written on pieces of paper and he put them in a bag. Then we all picked one and I got Finland. The task was to read up on the country online and then give a presentation to the class. We had to read maps and learn about the weather and the wildlife. The motivation was the presentation at the end because you don't want to look bad in front of your classmates. Funnily enough, a year after I left school, an opportunity came up to do a study month in Finland. So the project was also useful for real life.

We were in a drama class and it really wasn't going well. We were doing Macbeth and the teacher said when we read the play, it sounded boring – like we were reading a shopping list. So she set us a challenge. She lined up a mini-show in the school canteen. Each group had to learn a scene by heart and then perform it at lunchtime in the canteen. Suddenly everyone started concentrating because we were motivated. We even made costumes at home. It solved the problem. In fact, when I was brushing up on my Shakespeare again for an exam recently, I could still remember the opening scene. It starts with, "When shall we three meet again, in thunder, lightning or in rain?'

Student 1 I really don't think you need formal education to achieve success.

Student 2 Well, I disagree. To achieve success you need to learn as much as you can about a subject you would like to specialize in, and there's no better place to learn than university. Besides, a degree may open many doors and opportunities.

Student 1 In my opinion, school uniforms limit students' freedom of expression. Everyone looks the same and there is no place for individuality.

Student 2 True, but, on the other hand, uniforms can help prevent bullying and give a sense of community. Besides, they also make students focus on learning instead of on fashion.

Student 1 Like it or not, exams are the most effective way to check students' knowledge.

Student 2 I see what you mean, but education is not just about exams and tests. Look at all the students memorizing textbooks and notes instead of gaining real knowledge. I don't think focusing on the score rather than on learning is such a good idea.

Student 1 I do believe homework is necessary to help students learn better.

Student 2 I agree with you up to a point. I think homework makes sense as long as it is interesting and well-suited to students' needs. Also, teachers need to remember that we have assignments from several subjects, so homework shouldn't be very time-consuming.

Student 2 I partially agree. While it's true that grades may cause a lot of stress, they also give you some useful information about your progress. And when you get a good grade, it boosts your confidence and motivates you to work harder.

My choice would be picture number 3, because it is the most convincing and realistic. It shows the specific problems students face. It also makes you think about some practical ways to improve your study habits. Another reason for my choice is the fact that the picture is the most informative. Thanks to the captions, you can get to know what kind of solutions I'm going to present.

I wouldn't choose option number 1, because it is not clear enough. The play on words and the image might be interesting but the picture doesn't include any more details. And modern education is not only about books so it is too simplistic.

The problem with option number 2 is that there is no information about who the blog is aimed at. And it may scare off some students who prefer practical advice to scientific theories.

How to Find a Job

Step 1: Complete your Curriculum Vitae. This is the document that includes all your personal information, qualifications (e.g. diplomas, degrees, etc.) and previous work experience. It should also include the contact details of two people that know you well at work or personally. These are your referees.

Step 2: Look at job adverts on the Internet and find a job that you are interested in. Download the application form, if there is one. Then send it off with a covering letter which will explain briefly who you are, where you saw the advert and why you want to apply for the job.

Step 3: Wait to hear from the company to find out if they want you to come for an interview. Then start preparing for it.

Step 4: When you are offered a job, decide carefully if you want to accept it. Then sign the contract.

Hello and welcome to Careers' Day. I'm Gemma Jones, the school careers' advisor. We have a full programme to get through today. So, what's on the agenda? Well, we're going to start at ten o'clock in the main hall with a talk about the job application process. We'll look at the things you should put on your CV, such as your qualifications, work experience and references. We'll then look at some job adverts. We'll concentrate on part-time summer jobs as those are the ones that you're likely to apply for. I'll give you some tips on how to write the perfect covering letter for these. This is to give you the idea of what skills you need for a successful job application.

We'll have a 30-minute break at noon, after which Tom Marks will talk to you in room 101 about finding part-time work. Tom is self-employed and he tried many different jobs when he was a student so he could get some work experience and find out what types of jobs suited him best. Many young people volunteer to help their community, and Tom did volunteer work in an animal rescue centre. He'll tell you about that and about summer jobs like picking fruit and babysitting. All of these things are great to put on your CV because they demonstrate that you're reliable and trustworthy. His talk starts at twelve thirty and will last for an hour. Right after that we'll break for lunch.

Our final speaker at 2 p.m. is Melissa Mason. Her talk is called 'Start Small, Think Big'. Melissa is a successful businesswoman who owns and runs her own online business. She's going to talk about opportunities to do apprenticeships for local companies. One of the benefits of this is that you work and earn money while studying for a diploma or degree. There has been a change of venue for Melissa's talk and it will now take place in the computer lab and not in the library as was originally planned. It will last until quarter to four and after that you'll receive a goody bag with free gifts and additional information. Right, let's get started …

Hello, and welcome to my job search podcast. I'm Delilah and every week I try a different job to see how difficult it is to learn and whether I get any job satisfaction from it. I was inspired by an old TV programme that my mum showed me.

Well, I've surely had some interesting experiences along the way. People often ask me about my worst job experience. That has to be when I was just starting out on this project and worked as a hairdresser. In the beginning I just washed people's hair. Then, when I gave my first haircut, I was suffering from a lack of confidence and I cut one side shorter than the other. Another trainee told me making mistakes was part of the job, but it looked terrible. Luckily, she came to my rescue before my boss found out. I was really grateful for that.

One job that I unexpectedly enjoyed was being a delivery driver. There's something satisfying about turning up at someone's door with a parcel that they're eagerly waiting for. It was especially good in the case of older people, like pensioners, or people who lived alone. They were always so appreciative, which made the job feel much more worthwhile.

Everyone can learn the ropes pretty quickly if they're a shop assistant or receptionist, but there are other jobs that you can't learn in a short space of time, such as being a surgeon or a social worker, so I avoid anything like that. I've definitely learned many new skills as a result of doing my podcast. For example, working on an assembly line manufacturing toys helped me increase my productivity. I couldn't slow down as it would've had an impact on my colleagues further down the line. I also improved at teamwork thanks to many different jobs. One thing that unexpectedly helped with that was when I worked in a library. I thought that was a solitary job, but I received a lot of support from my colleagues. They made me feel really welcome.

So, has this podcast advanced my career? Well, taking on a new role every week or so means that I haven't been focused on any specific job. I've found that I've really enjoyed learning about different jobs, though, and I'm thinking of training to become a life coach. That way I can help people who are out of work to find a post that's right for them. It'll also be another thing that I can add to my own CV.

Examiner So, do you already have any vision for your future?

Student The problem is that I feel like I am at a crossroads now. I come from a medical background. My parents are both surgeons and they would like me to follow in their footsteps. I think I would make a good doctor, but, to be honest, I've also been thinking of doing something completely different, like working as an architect or a graphic designer.

Examiner Well, it is absolutely natural to feel confused about your career choices at your age. From what you have told me, you might be interested in a job involving creativity. What about your artistic skills then?

Student I am really good at drawing, painting and computer graphics. I can spend hours in front of the screen working on my projects. I'm not a typical nerd, though. I love socializing and I am a people person. I am responsible and well-organized, and I think I'd be able to learn the ropes very quickly in any creative job. I can imagine myself as being in charge of a big team in the future. To sum up, I'd like to have a creative job with interesting people and challenging projects.

A Actually, I think it happened quite recently, during the last holidays. My father had a lot of work, so I decided to give him a hand. Nothing really difficult, some paperwork and answering phone calls, but he was really grateful. He said I had helped him a lot. It felt nice to be appreciated.

B Frankly speaking, I'm not sure. There are many different reasons why people decide to get one. She seems to like the flowery pattern, so, maybe, she just treats it as, how shall I put it … a decorative element. But it could be something more personal, too. For example, she might want to celebrate an important event or keep a memory alive.

C Well, let me think for a while. In fact, I am quite an artistic person. But I know that there are not many well-paid career options for artists. Being a painter or an actor won't pay the bills. What I mean is that I'd prefer to have a more secure job with some creative potential.

Hi! I'm Ella. I'm a university student in Copenhagen, Denmark. My lectures usually start about nine o'clock, so I try to be at the uni by at least a quarter to nine. I meet my friends there, and go to our classes. They usually end about 11 a.m., and we start our lunch at half past eleven. Then I have some more lectures and study in the library. I leave at about 3:45 p.m., because I usually catch the 4 p.m. bus home. Then, I have dinner with my family and call my boyfriend – usually around 7 p.m. He lives in another town, so we only see each other at weekends. We usually talk for half an hour, and then I usually read books and watch films online.

Hi there, my name's Charlie. I work as a software developer. I like to have a bit of a lie-in in the morning so I never get up early, I have a shower, breakfast and I get to work about half past 9. I work for 8 hours, and I have a 30-minute lunch, so I leave work at 6 p.m. Three times a week I go straight to my fitness classes, which start at a quarter to 7. If I don't have the fitness class, I usually go running for up to 45 minutes – usually around 7:45, so I can get back in time for my favourite TV show at 9 p.m.

New Year's Eve is a time when people traditionally stay up past midnight to welcome in the new year. It seems that residents of some countries stay up later and prolong the celebrations more than others. Technology company Jawbone discovered that Russians typically stay up the latest, until 3.43 on average, partly because most of them can enjoy a long holiday at the start of the year. Polish people make it until 2.55 a.m. Quite surprisingly, the Americans go to bed pretty early. Nearly a third of them are asleep before midnight.

It's day three of astronomy camp and we've walked to the top of the hill near our dormitories. We've already had an amazing evening. We had a barbecue at around 8 p.m. and watched the sunset. Now it's 11:13 p.m., completely dark, and in about two minutes we're expecting to see the International Space Station through our telescopes. It's so exciting. The space station will be visible for around two minutes. It will appear in the east near Venus, which we can see clearly now, and move west past the Moon. We should be able to see its shape really clearly, like a grey 'z' that slowly turns in the sky. We'll then remain here for another hour because a satellite is going to pass overhead!

According to scientists, 73% of teenagers aren't getting enough sleep, an increase of 8% from ten years ago. A range of reasons have been proposed, including the blue light from screens, which keeps the mind awake. More recently, scientists have suggested that we are postponing going to bed because we can't stop using our electronic devices. This is partly due to the rise in online streaming. As you know, with most streaming services, a new programme or video starts immediately after the previous one finishes, which keeps people watching episode after episode. Apparently, people who can't resist an extra episode are the same people who are tempted by things like sweets and snacks. Interestingly, researchers believe that people who spend most of the day studying or working are also affected because they feel they haven't had enough time for relaxation during the day and are owed the extra programme.

Interviewer With the World Cup just around the corner, many of us will be trying to stay awake to watch our teams compete across the other side of the world. We are going to ask an expert for advice on how we can stay up late. We are joined by Mike, a student from the USA who has been living across the street from me for the last two years. Hi, Mike!

Mike Hi!

Interviewer So, the USA is in a different time zone, right?

Mike Yes, six hours behind.

Interviewer So, tell us why you have gotten into the habit of staying up. Is it to talk to your family back home?

Mike Not really! It's all about NFL. National Football League. The matches don't usually start until 12.30 a.m. European time, so if I want to watch my team play in the USA I have to be awake then.

Interviewer You must be pretty tired in the mornings.

Mike Well not really, I have a kind of system – it's called divided sleep. I go to bed at nine and have nearly four hour's sleep and then I sleep again after the game.

Interviewer Interesting. But, do you do anything to stay awake after the first bit of sleep? Take a cold shower or something?

Mike Not a shower, but I sometimes do a workout before the game. It's pretty hard to sleep after exercise so it usually works pretty well. I also try to divide sleep regularly so my body's used to it.

Today we're going to conclude our anthropology lectures on seasonal cycles by looking at the winter solstice, the time of the year with the longest night and shortest day, usually on December the 21st in our calendar. The imminent return of longer and warmer days had great significance in ancient, mainly agricultural, societies, who depended on the sun for warmth, light, and food. The solstice night was associated with a struggle against the evil forces of darkness, which many cultures represented as a figure who could bring life or death to households.

We can see such preoccupations are exemplified by the feast of Yalda, which dates back to the 10th century. It is celebrated in modern-day Iran but back then was spread under the Persian Empire as far afield as Northern India. During the celebrations families and friends gather together, traditionally in the house of the eldest family members, and try to stay awake all night, reading poetry, feasting on forty types of food, and keeping candles alight to protect themselves from Ahriman, the embodiment of evil. They eat red fruits in particular, like passion fruit or watermelon. The colour red symbolizes the returning light of dawn, with its bright flame-like colour intended to scare away the forces of darkness, rather like flames might scare away animals. In ancient Persia they would preserve the fruits until Yalda by burying it under branches and leaves. Superstitious beliefs were linked to food consumption, such as that watermelon would protect against ill-health in the summer months. To help the forces of good triumph over the forces of evil, ancient societies also believed it was a time to be kind to one another and repair relationships. It was believed that this night set the course for the whole year ahead so model behaviour was often encouraged.

My choice would be photo number 2, because it has a clear message. A friend is a person who spends quality time with you and someone you can rely on. Also, the photo appeals to my emotions with nice scenery, which is kind of symbolic, too. Friends can give you a hand when climbing the mountains, but also when coping with some difficult life situations.

The problem with photo number 1 is that it is not clear enough. Actually, it looks more like an advert of some digital device. It makes me think of brain engineering rather than feelings and relationships.

I wouldn't choose photo number 3, because it shows a simplistic picture of friendship, that is, making friends via social networking. And I think that is only a small piece of the whole idea of friendship. Real-life relationships are usually much deeper and intense!

Today we're looking at our favourite curry, chicken tikka masala. It's a delicious mix of chicken with a creamy, spicy sauce. Many curries are named after a type of oven or a particular ingredient, like biryani which may mean 'rice'. But the word 'tikka' refers to 'small pieces'. 'Masala' just means a 'mix of spices'. People have made chicken tikka dishes for about five thousand years.

However, although many people think it was born in Asia, chicken tikka masala is actually a Scottish dish. How did that happen?

Many years ago, a customer was eating chicken tikka in a Glasgow restaurant, but he wasn't happy. Usually when people complain it's because their curry is too spicy or contains some ingredient that they don't like. In this case, the customer sent the dish back for being too dry. Rather than replace it, the enterprising Bangladeshi chef simply decided to liven it up. He could have used coconut milk or cinnamon, but in fact he reached for a tin of ordinary British tomato soup. In that moment, chicken tikka masala was born!

That's the classic origin story but there are others, too. Anyway, whoever came up with it first, the creation of chicken tikka masala is a significant moment in food history. It's the birth of fusion cooking, which means mixing ingredients and cooking styles from completely different countries. Fusion cooking really took off in the 1990s, but it began with chicken tikka masala in the 1970s. Now, you can't imagine a restaurant menu in the 2020s without it.

My cooking story is a Christmas one. Both my parents are doctors. Last year, they both got called in to work on the morning shift in the hospital. My twin brother and I said, 'Look. We're 17, we can cook Christmas lunch ourselves'. So my parents left us with the instructions and went to bed. They started working at 5 a.m., you see. The next day, we were in the kitchen all morning working like mad to get everything ready. Then, just when we were about to put the turkey in the oven, we realized to our horror that we hadn't taken it out of the freezer. It had completely slipped our minds. You have to defrost it beforehand, and ours was frozen solid! It took forever to get it ready but thankfully my parents didn't mind eating their Christmas lunch at eleven o'clock at night!

Before my family moved to the UK, I grew up in Kampinos, in Poland. It's kind of a legendary spot to go wild-mushroom picking. In fact, people there are a little bit obsessed with it. So when I moved to Wales, I suggested going to hunt wild mushrooms with my British mates. My jaw hit the floor when they told me that they had never done it before. No one here does it! The woods here are overflowing with them and people just leave them there to rot. For some reason unclear to me they are taught at school that wild mushrooms are dangerous and so they should avoid eating them! As a result, I had to show them how to find the mushrooms, point out the edible ones, and even how to cook them. I kept it simple. I fried them with butter and served them on a slice of toast with some scrambled eggs – simply mouth-watering!

The first time I had to cook for other people, it was for forty kids! I used to struggle to make a bacon sandwich, so imagine how I felt. What happened was that a friend and I had agreed to be monitors at a two-day summer camp. When we arrived, we found out that the monitors were expected to prepare the evening meals, too! We really thought we were going to burn everything to a crisp and have 40 angry kids on our hands. Thankfully, the organizers had stocked up on the ingredients, so all we had to do was throw a huge pot of pasta together. Lots and lots of macaroni and tomato sauce. When the moment of truth came, we were both a bit on edge because we thought it all tasted so bland. The funny thing was the kids really loved it. So we made it the next day, too!

My dad is originally from Hong Kong and for his fiftieth birthday, we wanted to surprise him with a traditional Chinese meal. We dug out my grandma's ancient cookbook and chose this dish that looked absolutely mouth-watering. However, it later turned out that we'd gone for the wrong one, as it was completely beyond us. Basically, we live in a small English town and it was impossible to get hold of the ingredients. I remember driving round and round to different shops with my mum looking for a tin of water chestnuts, which seemed crucial for the dish but which we never found. Obviously, we should have got going much earlier to make sure we got everything together in time. In the end, we did what we could and Dad said he enjoyed it, even if it wasn't all that authentic!

Student 1 I know you pay a lot of attention to what you eat. I'd like to change my diet a bit, but I don't know where to start. Could you give me some practical advice?

Student 2 Sure. For me, the most important thing is the quality of the food you buy. You ought to check the ingredients. If fat or sugar are near the top of the list, it's not a good choice.

Student 1 OK, I know reading food labels is important so I'll need to get used to it. At the moment, I usually just choose the first product I see on the shelf.

Student 2 Right, that's not a good idea. Next, you'd better cut down on fried food.

Student 1 But I love fried food …

Student 2 I know. But why don't you try steaming your food instead? It's the best way to cook a healthy and delicious meal.

Student 1 Yeah, sure, steamed beetroot and spinach …

Student 2 Why not? You'd be surprised about how tasty healthy food can be. There are plenty of great recipes online. Or, what about going to a cooking workshop? You know, learning about vegeterian cuisine, organic cooking, things like that.

Student 1 Actually, I'd rather not spend too much money on my little food revolution. I think I will just browse some cooking websites and focus on the basics.

Student 2 Remember that it's really important to change your way of thinking about food. It's not just about diets or cooking techniques – you need to make healthy food part of your lifestyle.

052 Mówienie, Page 83, Ex 4

Both options seem interesting, but if I were to choose one, I would go for option number 2.

First of all, the sooner that food education starts, the better. What kids learn at an early age shapes their habits for life. Children watch their parents and imitate their behaviour. If they take to fruit and vegetables in the first years of their lives, they are more likely to follow a healthy diet in the future. What I also like about the picture is the fact that it shows food as an important element of family life. The kid and his dad seem to be enjoying themselves a lot. Playing with food, eating and cooking together may help to build strong family ties.

I wouldn't choose option number 1, because it doesn't really show the fun of cooking and eating together. The girls are focused only on the technical aspects of preparing the dish. Also, the photo doesn't refer to healthy eating habits. Food education should be not only about how to cook but rather about what to cook and eat, and why.

My old slippers have completely worn out and I need a new pair. My feet get cold without any slippers and my socks get a bit dirty. So I'm looking for a bright, warm pair!

I have one suit that I bought six months ago. I've worn it a few times and I think it looks good. It fits me almost perfectly which I'm very happy about.

I bought some pyjamas the other day. They're pink and blue checked, and they're made of very soft cotton that's almost like silk. I'm very pleased with them because they're very comfortable.

I'm looking for a jacket that I can wear on formal occasions in the winter. I like this black one. It's made of wool, and it's quite smart.

I tried on five tops and in the end I chose a green and white dotted one. The small size was too small but the medium size was fine.

I bought some gloves for my dad's birthday present. I got the large size, which I hope is right. They're made of wool and they're black and red striped.

I just can't resist a bargain. What's the point of paying full price for something when you can wait a few months and get a good discount in the sale? From expensive trainers to leather jackets, everything gets reduced at certain times of the year. I learned this as a student when I had hardly any money to buy clothes, but it's a good habit for everyone to learn.

I don't think it matters where you buy your clothes. The important thing is how you wear them. You need to be able to decide which bag goes with your new dress, that kind of thing. You can wear anything if you've got the confidence to wear it. I have a friend who wore the latest trainers with her wedding dress and she looked amazing. And don't dismiss charity shops, either. You can find unique things there that you won't ever find anywhere else! All in all, it's how you put things together that counts.

I love the thrill of shopping. I'll buy anything, from bargains to full-price designer clothes, just to feel it. When I see the assistant put the clothes in a bag, I feel really happy. It's when I get home that I realize I've spent too much. Then, over the next few days, I take most of the stuff back. I tend to do it more during the sales. I know it's not normal and so I'm avoiding the shops right now because I just don't trust myself.

Kids are always talking about how they get great trainers for a bargain price at certain sports shops. Mine are not cheap. Sometimes I have to save up for six months to get them, and when they come into stock there's often a queue outside the shop to buy them as you can't get them online for the same price. It's all worth it, though – when I put them on, people tell me I look similar to my favourite footballer, so I can't imagine wearing anything else. I just wish I could also afford the sports kit to go with them!

I'm at university and I don't have a lot of money to spare each month, but it doesn't put me off shopping for designer clothes. I believe it's actually more reasonable to save up a bit and then splash out on well-made items that I'll use for a long time than waste money on fast fashion. I look for interesting items online, visit local designers and go to charity shops. Recently, I've bought a beautiful silk top and a linen skirt that feel just great when you touch them. Even if the size is not quite right but I like the material, I'll buy it anyway and then change it or make something else with it.

I won't tell you where I work, but I will say that I'm really popular, especially when I'm reducing stock. We often have a lot of stuff to get rid of due to the nature of our products. Many things don't keep for long so when they reach their sell-by-date, we often offer big discounts, especially if we have an abundance of them. However, we try to vary the time when we reduce things so it's not too predictable. We still get the same people coming in all the time, though. Interestingly, they don't look like they're struggling for money. Some of them even bring their kids in to help them look for bargains. I know some shops give everything away to charities at the end of the day, which may be a better way of doing things.

Host When you're buying things from an online retailer, it's important to know your statutory rights. Marvin Reed runs a money advice website and he's here to talk about shopping online. Hi, Marvin!

Marvin Hello!

Host So, Marvin, what sort of things should we watch out for when we're shopping online?

Marvin Well, for one thing, the goods that you are sent need to resemble the photos on the website. They also need to match the description and the information in the adverts. If anything is misleading, you're entitled to your money back.

Host Isn't everything you buy online covered by a money back guarantee anyway, even if you simply change your mind about it?

Marvin That's right, as long as you return it within a certain period. You should check with the particular company that you're buying from, but the minimum term is fourteen days. If you send things back within this time, you're entitled to a full refund.

Host One of our listeners has asked for advice on buying large electrical items, like home appliances, and whether you should pay for insurance for them?

Marvin Well, all appliances come with a twelve-month guarantee anyway. Many companies will call you to see if you want to buy additional insurance. This means you pay an annual fee, and if anything goes wrong with the appliance, they will repair or replace it.

Host The insurance is often quite expensive, though, isn't it?

Marvin That's right, and in many cases, you won't need it, so be cautious about buying it. Assess the likelihood of whether the appliance will break down after the one-year guarantee expires. So if you buy a new oven, think about whether you've had any problems with your previous one. In many cases, you won't make a claim on this type of insurance and it's just another way of companies getting more cash out of the consumer.

Host It's fair enough talking about consumer rights and the fact that you're entitled to your money back, but what can you do if the retailer refuses to refund you?

Marvin That's a good question. One way of guarding against a dispute such as this is to use your credit card to buy things. When you purchase an item that costs over £100 this way, the credit card company is jointly liable for this amount. If the retailer fails to refund you or if it stops trading, the credit card company must refund you instead. So, that's another layer of security and it's completely free – as long as you have a credit card, that is.

Host That's really interesting. Thanks, Marvin!

I definitely prefer online shopping to going to physical shops. There is no pleasure in standing in a queue in a shopping centre. Online purchases, on the other hand, are fast and easy. Besides, you can save a lot of money, comparing prices in many different shops.

Of course I love them, but only when they are not fake. Sometimes the 'discounted' price is really the regular price. And I definitely prefer online sales. I would never go shopping on Black Friday – I can't stand the crowds.

It depends on the situation. I usually pay by card, because it's faster, more convenient and hygienic. Still, when I go on a shopping spree, I prefer to use cash rather than a card, because it helps me stick to my budget and control how much money I've spent, and how much I have left.

I really enjoy going to bookshops. Of course, I often buy e-books and order books online, but nothing compares to visiting an actual book shop where you can hold a book in your hand and examine the cover. I love browsing the shelves looking for new authors, or asking the shop assistants for reading advice.

062 Mówienie, Page 97, Ex 5

Both options seem interesting, but if I were to choose one, I would go for option number one. The photo gives clear information about the goal of the campaign. It makes people think about how they spend their money. 'To buy or not to buy?' is the question we should always have in mind when making shopping decisions. As they say, 'less is more' and it's better to save money to buy something really useful rather than waste it on trifles. So, I think the photo shows the importance of being a price-conscious buyer.

I wouldn't choose option number two, because the idea of the 'Buy Nothing Day' doesn't solve the problem. It might be a good starting point, but for me, making responsible shopping choices is not about one-day actions. It is about changing our habits and lifestyle altogether. We should buy less and make better choices on a daily basis.

Although Cabo San Lucas is right at the very end of the Baja California peninsula, our hotel is really easy to get to. If you're coming from another country, there are direct international flights to Cabo San Lucas itself. Meanwhile, those who are travelling from the Mexican mainland have a range of options. Land travel is slow as there is no trainline available. You need to have your own car or go by bus. Either way, many tourists still opt to go overland down the length of the Baja California peninsula to experience the wild landscape.

On the 760-mile trip you can enjoy spectacular coastal scenery on one side with rocky bays and white sandy beaches. In the other direction you can see vineyards and cactus forests, below a rugged mountain range. The trip down south from Tijuana, which is on the American border, will take around 19 hours. That's why most people break their journey and take two or three days to get here. The bus fare will cost from £75 per person.

Another adventurous option is to head to the town of Mazatlán and make the crossing over the Gulf of California to the nearby town of La Paz. The ferries depart daily 3.00 p.m. in both directions, and the journey takes about 13 hours depending on the wind direction. And to that you need to add the two-hour bus transfer from La Paz to Cabo itself, so it will all add up to 15 hours. Ferry tickets are around £60 but budget an extra £20 for the bus. On the voyage you might encounter dolphins and whales so it's a great option for nature-lovers. If you're in a hurry, though, you can also take a plane direct from Culiacán airport, which only takes you 55 minutes, plus, obviously, a couple of hours at the airports at either end. At £100 with taxes included it's barely more expensive than the other options, though excess luggage fees can be a little expensive. So, there is …

Thank you for inviting me to give this safety talk. I'm sure many of you will be thinking about learning to ride mopeds or scooters which, as you know, can be ridden before obtaining a full driving license in most European countries. However, moped riders are extremely vulnerable on the road as they don't have the protection offered by cars.

Let's deal with road safety first. First, you must make sure the other drivers can see you. Remember there is a blind spot behind and to the side of most cars so avoid tailgating the car in front or riding close to the curb. Also, always check over your shoulder before making any manoeuvre.

You should also take extra care at junctions and roundabouts, especially in bad weather when visibility is limited.

Now, as far as safety equipment goes, the most important thing is to protect your head. Never use a second-hand helmet – get a brand new one and make sure it fits securely. High visibility colour options are a great idea. You'd be best off with a full face helmet with a chin bar.

If possible you should also invest in some protective clothing. The risks of injury are the same as those that motorcyclists face, so there's no reason to be less protected. Thick leather is the best material to prevent you from damaging your skin in the event of an accident. A good pair of motorcycle gloves is essential, too. Also, remember that there are laws against riding in pedestrian areas like pathways and pavements – you don't want to get a fine or get your moped confiscated. Maintenance is also important and is a legal requirement in most countries. You need to ensure your vehicle is not only safe but also legal and roadworthy. You need to be able to rely on your tyres when cornering, so inflate them to the correct pressure and check them regularly for wear and damage.

It was an amazing experience! It was wonderful to see my favourite bands playing live. They sang all my favourite songs and all the audience sang along with them. It was a fantastic atmosphere! It was a bit cold sleeping in a tent for three days, but it was worth it. Everybody was so friendly and I had so much fun.

I went to see Swan Lake last night and I really loved it. Although I've seen it before, I felt as if I was seeing it for the first time because the dance was so fresh and full of emotion. It was wonderful. The dancers gave a really outstanding performance.

The best thing I've seen this year was a production of Hamlet that was set in the 21st century. I hadn't seen this particular theatre company before. I was very impressed by them. It's a challenging and powerful work, and they performed it very confidently. The whole thing felt full of tension and drama. It was brilliant.

I was thrilled to be able to go and see a performance of Beethoven's Symphony No. 3 recently. I love this piece because it's so exciting and the performance was breathtaking! The orchestra played with such sensitivity and warmth. At times I literally couldn't breathe I was so moved.

For the last three months, I have been absolutely hooked on a TV series called This Is Us. It's a drama from the USA based on a family who have triplets. We see their life in the past, present and sometimes in the future. You get the picture. I must say that it's not always great. The characters became a bit unsympathetic in series two, and I was about to just give up and stop watching. However, I carried on and I'm pleased I did because it gets better and better. Funnily enough, although I love this series, I wouldn't necessarily watch another family saga. I'm more of a sci-fi fan, you see. But I've been telling everyone I know that they should check it out. I'm usually hopeless at small talk but This Is Us is now the first thing I talk about when I meet new people. Everyone likes to hear about a good series to watch, don't they?

Well, it's obviously not to become rich! Umm … well, some kinds of writing are escapist, like science fiction or fantasy – things that take you away from your everyday life. Me, on the contrary – I like to capture real life, to talk about the here and now. I get these powerful emotions and somehow I just have to get them out and put them down on paper. Although a lot of poets play with fancy words and elaborate language, my poems are simple and direct because they are all about the moment now. Oh, and one other thing. Poetry may be one of the oldest art forms but it actually fits perfectly with the state-of-the-art technology of today. It is short and sweet and can fit on tiny little screens.

My ambition is to be a book illustrator. Ever since I was little, all I wanted to do was draw. I have plenty of clever ideas and nobody draws like me. My problem is that I'm a perfectionist. Professionals have to complete images to deadlines, but it takes me ages to finish anything and that's what holds me back. In my art classes, for example, I've been working on the same oil painting for over a year. It's a self-portrait of me with a bunch of sunflowers. Everyone agrees I have the talent, but I'm now in my teacher's bad books because she can't understand why it's taking me so long. She says that before I do the background and sign my name, I should finish the face and then start painting the sunflowers. However, the face is never quite right and I keep correcting it. As for the sunflowers, it's winter now and I can't get any real ones. So I'll have to take artistic licence there!

Dad You look stressed, Holly.
Holly I am stressed, Dad. I'm stressed about the school play.
Dad What? I thought you were looking forward to it.
Holly I was, but things have changed. Let me put you in the picture and you'll understand.
Dad Go on.
Holly Originally, I auditioned for the role of a servant girl. I thought about the queen, too. However, that's a big part and I didn't want to learn so many lines. Anyway, I got the part of the servant and I was happy until a few weeks ago. The girl who plays the villain got sick and now she can't do it, so I have to take that part over from her. It's much bigger, hundreds of lines. I can't remember them all!
Dad Ouch!
Holly Honestly, I lie in bed at night thinking about it. I have terrible insomnia. I'm not the only one panicking about the play, either. One boy says he starts sweating every time he thinks about it, and Louisa – you know Louisa?
Dad Yes, she plays the violin in the school orchestra with you.
Holly That's right. Well, she says she's starting to get headaches thinking about the play. Also, I'm pretty sure I'll get stage fright on the day of the premiere. I know I'll be scared to get up in front of all those people. Every kid in the school will be there! It's next week so I must do it. I can't back out now.
Dad Look, calm down. I've been in lots of plays so don't worry. There is always someone who forgets their lines. The first thing is, how much of the play are you learning?
Holly What do you mean?
Dad If you're in a scene, do you learn everyone's words or just your words?
Holly I learn everything and it's impossible because …
Dad There's your problem. You shouldn't do that. Professional actors don't learn every word. They just learn the words before their lines, the cue.
Holly Really?
Dad Yeah. It's the oldest trick in the book. At home, just learn your lines and the cue words so you know when to say your parts. You don't have to learn the rest of the text at all. Then, you'll feel much more relaxed when you rehearse with the other actors, and when you perform on stage on the day itself.
Holly Oh thanks, Dad! I wish someone had told me this before!

My favourite film is the musical La La Land. It's the ultimate feel-good movie right from the opening moments. It's so much fun! It kicks off with people boogieing away on their car roofs during a traffic jam. It had me on the edge of my seat as it was all done like it was a single shot, without any cuts as the camera weaves in and out of the performers. That's so complicated to do!
I discovered this film when my dance teacher asked us to copy one of the routines. Although I do ballet, I feel a bit self-conscious about modern dance. My partner is really gifted, though, and she picked it up just like that. We did the famous scene with the stars on a bench dancing under the moonlight. There's a kind of magic there because the stars have such great chemistry together – and it's the nicest song on the soundtrack, too.

I am a big fan of Knives Out. It's one of those movies that spreads by word of mouth because people tell you that they loved it so much. I'm a fan of the whole whodunit genre in general and this one is a modern classic. Although there are lots of big names in the cast, Ana de Armas is the star with her magnetic personality. Like the very finest detective novels, there are clues dotted around the film, some hidden and others put there just to wrong foot you. The scenario is that a famous author is murdered at home and a detective has to solve the crime. What makes it particularly complicated is the very large cast and the number of suspects. Basically, you never know if someone is trustworthy or not. In the cinema, people were gasping at the end when the solution was revealed.

Just recently I saw a movie that I think will become a classic. It's called Cold War and it's in Polish, so I had to watch it with subtitles on, but I was astonished. It's a very thoughtful study of a couple's life from the 1940s to the 1960s. Obviously, it's a romance, but like all the best examples of the genre, it has a couple caught in impossible circumstances. The script is great and the whole mood of the film is stirring. There's something so atmospheric about movies when they're in black and white like this. It was nominated for three Oscars including best director for Pawel Pawlikowski. I was devastated when it didn't win. It clearly didn't appeal to US tastes in the same way as European ones. I mean, it got an eighteen-minute standing ovation at the Cannes Film Festival!

I think my favourite movie has to be Guardians of the Galaxy. It's because it's a mash up of lots of different types of films. It's a science-fiction adventure which, at times, moves into comedy with this talking racoon that is so sarcastic. All in all, I guess it is a superhero film, albeit a very unconventional one. Even though the public think superhero films are mostly about mindless musclemen flying around and beating each other up, really succesful ones also have a heart, and there are some unexpectedly emotional moments in this picture. The soundtrack is partly responsible for that. It's full of beautiful songs. It shows that it's not just the special effects that are important, and that it pays to be open-minded about films. Whenever I feel a bit low, I stick it on and watch it all the way through, often immediately following it with the sequel!

School Exchange Coordinator I'm really curious about your cinema project. Could you tell me a bit more about that, please?
Student Yes, of course. First of all, I think that cinema appeals to everyone, no matter where they come from. It is like a universal language across cultures. And Polish culture is not really popular with British teenagers, so they might learn something new.

School Exchange Coordinator This all sounds really good, but have you thought of the venue for the project yet?

Student Actually, I have, but I need your approval on a few things. Would it be all right if I organized the meeting in the common room in the school dormitory? There is a lot of space and excellent Internet connection, which is important, because we are going to need access to some streaming platforms.

School Exchange Coordinator Please, feel free to do as you suggest. But I need information on the timelines and the number of participants.

Student Of course. And I know it's a bit short notice, but do you mind if the project takes the form of an all-night film marathon from Friday to Saturday this week?

School Exchange Coordinator No, I don't, as long as you can prepare everything on time. So, how would you like to present the films exactly?

Student Generally, I was thinking of showing films from some Polish Oscar winners and films whose plot is set in Poland or based on Polish literature. We could watch two whole films and then focus on some example scenes from the other ones. It is also worth having a short discussion after each of the films or scenes. By the way, may I bring a guest from outside the school? My friend has a degree in cinematography and she could say a word or two on the topic?

School Exchange Coordinator Sure, no problem, just give me her contact details, please. So, good luck with your project. I hope everything will go as planned.

Narrator Student 1. One. Is graffiti art or vandalism? Why do you think so?

Student 1 Well, it is a very controversial issue. On the one hand, graffiti can cause damage to private or public property. Not every resident wants to have their neighbourhood 'decorated' by an anonymous graffiti artist. Moreover, spray images are often vulgar and offensive. It is really expensive to clean them up and the money would be better spent on other causes, like education or health care. On the other hand, people are becoming more open-minded to street art. It can add character to dull and ugly urban spaces. Sometimes graffiti makes cities more colourful. Another advantage is that individuals have another medium with which to express their opinions. So, graffiti may be a piece of art or an act of vandalism, depending on its contents and our attitude towards it.

Narrator Two. Is it worth going to the theatre? Why or why not?

Student 1 I do believe it is. First of all, watching a live performance is a very authentic experience. You won't feel the same atmosphere and emotions when watching a film on screen. In addition, no two theatre performances are ever the same, even if the play is put on every night. With films, you can stop them at any moment you want and then watch them again and again. It's still the same film every time you watch it. A theatre play, however, is always unique, which makes it more intense. Finally, theatre brings people together. It gives you a sense of connection with the actors and other audience members.

So, I hope theatre will survive as a popular form of entertainment.

Narrator Student 2. One. Does a piece of art need to be beautiful? Why or why not?

Student 2 I don't really think so. Firstly, there is no single definition of beauty. The criteria differ depending on culture and time. Think about Mona Lisa. Is she beautiful? I am not so sure. But she is definitely mysterious and intriguing. Secondly, the main goal of art is to reflect emotions and ideas, not to look good in your living room. It is a means of expression. In fact, some of the most famous pieces of art are not visually appealing. But they inspire people to think. Lastly, art is about freedom and breaking rules. It is the artist who decides what art means to him or her. So, art doesn't need to be beautiful. It is supposed to be meaningful.

Narrator Two. What are the advantages and disadvantages of being an artist?

Student 2 There are both pros and cons of being an artist. On the one hand, a career in art can give you a lot of freedom. You can follow your passion and live the life you want to live. If you are lucky and talented enough, you can make money from doing something you love. Moreover, you can give other people a new perspective. Artists have always influenced the way we think. So, your work can really make a difference. Not all people feel like that about their job.

So, there are many advantages of being an artist.

Jack So, what sports do you play, Rosie?

Rosie Well, I do karate and I sometimes go cycling. What about you?

Jack I play football.

Rosie Are you in a team?

Jack Yes. We played last night, but we lost the match 3–0.

Rosie Oh dear. What happened?

Jack Well, the referee gave out about ten yellow cards.

Rosie Really? It sounds like he broke a record!

Jack It really looks like he supported the other team. I've had enough, you know. I think I might take up another sport.

Rosie Come on! I bet you're simply tired of being on a team that loses so often. Maybe you'll win the next match?

Jack I hope so.

If you take part in serious competitive sports, you need to make sure you have a healthy lifestyle. This is especially true if you want to turn professional one day and make your living from sport. But even amateur sportsmen and women who take sport less seriously, but who want to achieve good results, need to follow some basic rules.

Firstly, make sure you train every day, not only in your chosen sport, but by going to the gym, running, etc. Secondly, your body uses up a lot of energy, so you also need to go on a special diet to make sure you get all the nutrients you need. Thirdly, you need to have the right psychological approach if you want to beat your opponent. Stay positive, even when you are under pressure, as then you are more likely to fulfil your dreams.

Are electric bikes the best way to travel or are they as bad for the nation as the car is? There have been many discussions on this topic recently. Some experts believe that the majority of people using this type of bike has little intention of doing much exercise and that they'd be better off trading it in for a conventional bike. However, research suggests something quite different: that the technology is enabling people who wouldn't normally use a bike to do so for the first time. Rather than putting people off cycling, it is encouraging more people to take up the sport and to increase their activity on a daily basis.

If someone had told me a year ago that I'd be using an e-scooter, I'd have laughed. I've always been into cars and I love driving, but e-scooters can nip through the traffic in a way that no car can. You can go up on the pavement and through parks. People told me that they're not safe, but I'm pretty careful. I don't go too fast, I wear a helmet and I avoid travelling over uneven surfaces. Using one has got me out of the house and I'm doing a bit more exercise as a result, which I consider especially advantageous. I wouldn't be without it now.

I got this fitness tracker for my birthday. You've probably seen other people wearing them. They monitor your heart rate, remind you to exercise on a regular basis, count your steps, that sort of thing. The technology is great if exercise and health is your main goal. Some people thrive on it. I've got loads of work to do for college at the moment, though, and an alarm telling me to walk 250 steps is not what I need right now. It's just adding to my stress. My sister told me she'd buy it off me, but I've hidden it away for now – I know this time will pass, and I'll get time to focus on me again.

When my dad gave me this exercise bike, I was thinking of selling it online. That was before I met Annabel, though. Now, I'm face-to-face with her every day. We do a warm-up together and she tells me how my hard work is paying off. As my routes become more difficult, I barely notice that I'm improving. I trust that Annabel will know just how hard to push me so I focus on her encouraging words. I used to be addicted to the gym, but I'd never dream of changing the way I exercise now. If I did, how would Annabel know that I've got what it takes?

I do online yoga, but I'm not convinced it's as good as the real thing. For a start, there's no way that a teacher can check that we're all in the correct position. I worry that if I get it wrong, I could injure myself, so I probably don't push myself as much as I normally would. The other thing is that yoga connects you to the earth and nature and it feels wrong to be doing it via a computer screen.

A On the show today, we have Harper Davies, who has competed in an extreme endurance race called Big Dog's Backyard Ultra. This race takes place every year in Tennessee, USA, and it's different to other races in that it has no end. So, Harper, I'm not sure I completely understand how a race can have no end.

B Ah, it's quite simple. The way it's set up is that there's a four-mile lap that you need to complete in an hour. You need to be back at the start line every hour for the start of the next lap. This continues until there is one man or one woman left. That person is then declared the winner of the race. The most successful person in the world at this race is a Belgian runner who ran for 312 miles, which is 78 laps, in 2020.

A But I'm not sure how it's physically possible to run for that long. What about basic human needs such as going to the toilet, eating, drinking and, dare I say, sleeping?

B Well, this is where speed can and can't give you an advantage. Some of the fastest runners can complete a lap in forty minutes. That gives you twenty minutes before the start of the next lap. That's ample time to do many things, including having a meal, which is how most of the runners tend to use this time, but some of the fastest competitors even get a chance for a power nap. For me, though, a longer break from the actual running makes it more difficult to get back to the start line. It's like your body gets a feel for resting and can't face the next lap.

A And the race organizers don't make it easy for you, do they? I heard something about a strange kind of cheerleading at the starting line.

B Right, these are people called jeerleaders and they're fans of the race who jeer at you, singing songs about how likely you are to quit. Actually, I just saw that as a bit of black humour and it didn't have the desired effect of demotivating me. In fact, every time I heard it, it just made me more determined to win.

A The race has also been described as a level playing field, meaning that men and women can easily compete side by side. Would you agree with that?

B Definitely. The way the race is set up it kind of takes speed out of the equation. There's more of a focus on endurance and whether you have the mental stamina to stay the course.

A And how did your family feel about you competing in this race?

B Well, as it's a bit of a crazy race, my wife was concerned about me. She was back home in England so I'd try to catch up with her while I was doing a lap. But your body's working so hard to just keep going that trying to talk at the same time just adds another level of complexity that your brain can't really cope with. I can't remember what I said to her, but I sensed that talking to her was only making her more anxious. In the end, I just made something up about the reception not being very good. I said I'd contact her when the race was over and that seemed to put her mind at rest.

A I'm sure I'd have been really worried, but luckily, you survived.

B That's right. I actually did 32 laps, which works out as 128 miles. It was nowhere near the leader, but still I'm really proud.

A So you should be. That's amazing. Well done!

Examiner Describe the picture, please.

Student 1 The picture shows two men and two women at a sports stadium. They're probably professional athletes because they look extremely fit. They might be a team and I think they really enjoy training together.

Student 2 In the picture I can see a group of athletes who are standing on a running track. I guess they have just won an important competition, because they are wearing gold medals around their necks. They seem very happy. They are posing for the photo, smiling proudly.

Examiner What sports discipline do you think the athletes specialize in? Why do you think so?

Student 1 I am not sure, really. They might be sprinters or long distance runners.

Student 2 As I have already said, the people are standing on the track so I guess they are runners. Considering their posture, they might be sprinters rather than long-distance runners as they are very well-built and muscular. They look like a team, so it's also possible that they specialize in relay runs.

Examiner Which do you prefer: individual sports or team sports? Why?

Student 1 Actually, I like both. On the one hand, I love running, which is largely an individual sport. It's great fun and it helps me relax. On the other hand, playing in a team teaches you cooperation. The players rely on each other and have a common goal. But if I were to choose one sport, I would probably go for running.

Student 2 I must say I'm not into sport, whether it is team sports or individual ones. I just can't see any point in breaking into a sweat in the gym while there are so many other interesting things to do, like reading or watching TV series.

Examiner Tell me about a sports competition you took part in or watched.

Student 1 It's difficult to choose one particular competition. I am a running freak and I take part in half-marathons and city runs a few times a year. It takes a lot of effort. I run at least 40 kilometres a week plus I work out at the gym and do strengthening exercises on a daily basis. I am going to run my first marathon next year.

Student 2 It happened last month. My brother had persuaded me to take part in a charity run. I am not a good runner but I agreed because it was for a good cause. While I was running, hundreds of spectators were lining the streets, cheering loudly and shouting positive comments. When I reached the finish line I was exhausted but happy. I had just covered 10 kilometres! I did it! My time was not great but that wasn't important.

Examiner Why do people do extreme sports?

Student Extreme sports have a lot of benefits. First of all, people who take up extreme sports challenges are often more optimistic. That's due to higher levels of endorphins in their brains. Also, you may overcome your fears. For example, what could ever get you down or scare you if you have just managed to climb Mount Everest? From this perspective, all everyday challenges seem easy to face. Moreover, extreme sports require a great deal of training. You burn calories and gain muscle. As a result, your body gets stronger, which has a positive impact on your physical health. Finally, it often takes years to prepare for extreme sports challenges. This means that you can learn self-discipline and gain a sense of purpose. So, although extreme sports and safety don't exactly go hand in hand, I do understand why so many people love them.

We've just received the results of the research from the University of Glasgow that looked at the medical risks of heading the ball while playing football. It found that more professional players developed diseases of the brain than other people did and linked it to them hitting the ball with their head during the matches. In light of this, the Football Association has issued new rules that forbid children of primary school age to head the ball when training. Secondary school pupils can still play with their heads, but coaches are advised to reduce air pressure in the balls to make them softer. However, heading of the ball will still be permitted in all regular matches for now.

Mia Hey, Alex, do you want to meet up and play computer games later?

Alex Sorry Mia, but I can't. I think I need a break. My fingers hurt, especially my thumb. I think it's because of that competition I did yesterday. I was playing for eight hours straight. Do you think I need to get some kind of treatment for it?

Mia Let's have a look. Yeah, it looks a bit swollen. I injured my thumb, too, although that's from repetitive strain – too much texting and swiping on my smartphone.

Alex What do you think I should do?

Mia I actually received some simple therapies I could try to speed up recovery. They recommended I rest my thumb completely every two hours and stretch the muscles gently. That seemed to work.

Alex Every two hours? What if I'm in the middle of a competition?

Mia Well, maybe you could try a different controller?

Alex Yeah, indeed, I'm going to get a bigger one. Smaller controllers strain the hand.

Mia Sounds like a good plan. Hey, later we can play with our virtual reality headsets instead if you like?

Alex I don't think so. I'll probably end up falling over and breaking something!

Doctor Morning! How's that wrist – still hurting?

Rachel It's nearly better, but I can't wait to get back on the water and sail again.

Doctor I bet. So, what can I do for you?

Rachel Well, I have a question: I wanted to take part in a three-day competition, sailing around the Mediterranean single-handed. Is it too risky, especially for someone of my age?

Doctor Oh, that sounds like a challenge! Well, there certainly are risks in doing strenuous activity at the age of 16. First of all, growing arms and legs are more vulnerable to strain and can be broken or receive an injury more easily. Also, younger bodies don't deal with heat so well because you have a smaller surface area of skin. There's also your career to consider – focusing on one activity early also results in a shorter sports career.

Rachel Right.

Doctor But then your wrist is healing nicely. As long as you're aware of the risks, I wouldn't discourage it.

Rachel OK, but my parents also worry that I'm not old enough. My dad says, "If you're too young to drive, you're too young to sail around an ocean." And, Mum thinks I should be spending more time with friends.

Doctor Oh dear. They didn't react well then! You do have to think about your psychological welfare, for sure. Parts of the brain that control behaviour haven't developed fully in teens so some might attempt things that are just too difficult for them. And social development is a priority, although I guess you've got social media. I think emotional stress can be particularly dangerous in young people, especially the sense of failure and frustration when things don't go according to plan. That said, you've come to ask me for advice, haven't you? I think that shows a level of maturity.

Rachel Thanks. That's been really helpful. I have a lot of thinking to do.

Doctor OK, good luck!

Host This week we're interviewing Kylie Jones, who's a model and a wheelchair user. Kylie, did you always want to become a model?

Kylie No! I never thought it would be possible to be both disabled and a model, but then I started seeing an increasing number of people with disabilities in the biggest fashion titles, right there on the covers. Since then, I've seen disabled models in all sorts of ads for mainstream high-street brands, too, on TV and on the Internet.

Host Any role models in particular?

Kylie Mm. Well, I guess Aimee Mullins. She was one of the first disabled models. She appeared in Alexander McQueen's thirteenth show in 1999 which featured several disabled models on the runway. Nobody realized that the pair of boots McQueen had her wear for the show, which she wore under a lovely raffia dress, were actually prosthetic legs. Many asked where they could get them. It caused a sensation. She kind of led the way.

Host Are disability models entering the mainstream, too?

Kylie Yeah, for sure. As regards female models, a lady with Down's syndrome actually won Model of the Year in 2016. And a disabled male model and personal trainer, Jack Eyres, who's a friend of mine actually, was crowned Mr England 2017.

Host Mr England?

Kylie Yes, it's the male version of the Miss England pageant. It's been going since 1996 I think. You need to have an interesting personality, and be keen on doing charity work as well as representing England at international events. Anyway, Jack was the first amputee to win it. Winners then compete in the Mr World competition.

Host What kind of problems do you need to cope with if you're a disabled model?

Kylie Beyond the obvious issues related to the fact that you are a disabled person, there are certain movements and poses that are uncomfortable or impossible for me to do. Also, a lot of the clothes we are asked to model in aren't always comfortable for wheelchair users. Moreover, many shoot locations are inaccessible and not particularly wheelchair-friendly. But that's basic stuff. The biggest worry I have is that companies will only hire me because of my disability. Big fashion labels are always concerned with publicity. Having models from diverse backgrounds helps you receive the right kind of publicity. So, while I am grateful for any opportunity that comes my way, I'd prefer to be chosen for my modelling skills and not because I'm bound to a wheelchair, you know?

Host Of course, that's totally understandable. Now, could you please answer some of the questions our listeners have sent in?

Doctor So, what's the matter with your leg?

Student Well, as you know, I'm taking part in a youth basketball tournament. Yesterday, while I was jumping to catch the ball, I landed badly on my left foot. Now it hurts a lot.

Doctor What kind of pain is it? Could you describe it, please?

Student It is a really strong pain, especially when I'm trying to stand on the affected foot. I can't walk and I can't sleep. And it's actually getting worse.

Doctor Frankly speaking, it doesn't look good. We'll have to run a few tests to make sure it isn't broken. For the time being, please rest your leg as much as possible and apply ice packs every few hours.

Student And what about some medicine to stop the pain?

Doctor Of course, you will need some painkillers, too.

Student Do I have to go to the chemist's or can I just buy them in a supermarket? I mean, do I need any written order from you?

Doctor No, you don't need any prescription. Still, don't expect the medicine to relieve the pain entirely. But you should feel a bit better.

Student I see. And when can I get back to sport?

Doctor It all depends on your X-ray results. But not earlier than in a few weeks or even months.

Student Oh no! That's too bad! What about some exercises to make my leg stronger? I know a good specialist who could plan a trainining programme for me. It might help me recover a bit faster.

Doctor Consulting a physiotherapist is a great idea, but first we need to get you back on your feet. Then you can think about rehabilitation.

There are many threats to teens' health nowadays.

First of all, young people have to deal with a lot of stress at school and home, and in relationships with peers. The constant pressure may lead to eating disorders and depression.

Secondly, teens spend a lot of time in front of computer screens. They don't have time to do sports and eat well. As a result, they often suffer from obesity, diabetes and other serious diseases.

Finally, some teens struggle with addictions, such as smoking or drinking, which can damage their health for life.

In conclusion, there are many health risks facing young people, but most of them are related to stress, a sedentary lifestyle, bad eating habits and addictions.

It was the beginning of September. I decided to soak up the last days of warm weather and go on a trip to the mountains. My goal was the highest peak of the Beskid Mountains. I was walking at a steady pace listening to the sounds of nature and admiring the views. Suddenly, my foot slipped and I fell. I felt a burning pain in my knee. I tried to stand up, but it was all in vain – it hurt too much. There was not another soul in sight. I reached out for my phone but there was no signal. I spent another 15 minutes sitting on the ground, not knowing what to do. To make matters worse, I had eaten all my sandwiches and I was getting really hungry. Step by step, I started limping downhill. My backpack felt like it weighed a ton and my muscles were trembling. Somehow I managed to get to the valley. The route, which would normally have lasted only one hour, stretched to over two. But at least I was able to call an ambulance. My leg was put in plaster for six whole weeks. What was supposed to be a nice farewell to autumn turned out to be a rocky road.

Paul Can I use your computer to log onto my email account, please?
Jessica Yes, of course. Hold on. I'll just type in my password for you.
Paul Thanks! That's great. What do I do now?
Jessica Just click on this link and that should take you there.

Chris How often do you surf the Internet?
Mark Every day. I do research and look things up for college. I'm also on a couple of social networking sites. What about you?
Chris I usually go online when I want to chat to friends or buy some music or something.

Dom How do I install this anti-virus software?
Tash You need to go to the website and download the program first.
Dom OK, that sounds easy.
Tash Don't forget to back up any important files before you make any changes to your computer. Then just click on the icon and follow the instructions.

I've recently become interested in animation. A friend told me about an app that lets you animate your drawings, and I downloaded the free version. Many apps like this have let me down in the past so I didn't expect much. However, it took my sketches and turned them into a fun little video. It's not that I was delighted with the final product, but I've now paid for the professional version anyway. I didn't expect it to be so useful.

I had always wanted an app that would identify bird song. I can never tell one bird's noises from another. So, with great expectation, I downloaded an app that said it could identify any bird. When I took it to my local woods to try it out, it was completely useless. It failed to spot even one. When I read the instructions, I found out that the app had been developed in the USA and was great at American birds but not the ones we have here in Poland. Such a shame!

I go running a lot, but I live in a small town and I see the same things every day. It's a bit boring, so I bought this zombie run app. You install the app, put on your headphones and listen while you run. When I did it, I got chased by zombies and I had to find a car to escape them. I almost got killed once when I ran into a hundred of them at the same time. In other games, I also met other characters who helped me, including one person who was actually a zombie! It wasn't life-changing but it was a lot of fun. It certainly helped me keep up my fitness, running away from all those monsters!

Summer came around again and I needed money. Luckily, I found this app for dog-walking. What a discovery! It connects dog walkers to dog owners. In the beginning, all I was interested in was the cash, to buy myself a motorbike, but then I found I was getting really fit by walking all these dogs all day. If that wasn't enough, I also met some new friends because we were always in the park at the same time. So this app worked out for me in surprising ways!

I've always suffered with a stutter as long as I can remember. When I changed schools last year, the kids started bullying me about it, calling me G-G-G-Gordon and so on. Fortunately, the school uses an anti-bullying app. You can use it to secretly take videos and audio recordings, and then report the bullying anonymously. Most of these apps were invented for younger kids, but this one was designed for high schoolers whose problems may be much worse. Funnily enough, one week after using the app, the bullies left me alone. What do you think – a coincidence?

I'm the only musician in my village and I make my own recordings, where I play every instrument as well as sing. So, I have an app that works like a recording studio. It can take lots of separate recordings and mix them into a final track. Starting is easy, you just install the free version on your phone and set up an account. It gets a bit tricky later, though. The first time I used it, I thought it was faulty because it made a funny noise, but then I realized that I had been using it all wrong. I'd basically just turned it on without reading the instructions. Luckily, I then searched for tips online and now I've finally got the hang of it.

Robert You're right, I'm sorry, my mistake. I really put my foot in it there. I just thought it would be a fun way to celebrate your eighteenth, Justine.

Liam So, Clare, I have a dilemma. This is my smartphone, right?
Clare Yes, nice, but not exactly cutting edge.
Liam So here's the thing. I'm thinking of getting a tablet but I don't know whether it's worth forking out for yet another device. More things to recharge, more things to download, more cables to remember when I go on holiday. Maybe I should just stick with what I've got and get a more modern smartphone.
Clare To be honest, I think you're fine as you are. What else would a tablet enable you to do? I mean, yeah, it has a bigger screen so it's easier to read, but you don't even wear glasses or contact lenses so that doesn't apply to you. You just basically use the same few apps all the time, take photos and reply to messages, don't you?
Liam Yeah, I know, but Josh has a tablet and it looks really cool. It's really good for games. He has this amazing one where you do ski jumps and …
Clare That's Josh, but he is such a gamer. Obviously he wants the best tablet for that. You go to his house, he has a special gaming chair, special headphones, state-of-the-art joystick, the works. Do you have any of that?
Liam Well, no. I'm not into it all that much. You have a point. I'm not Josh, so I think I'll stay as I am.
Clare I'm pleased I could help!

Sports stars across the spectrum have announced a four-day blackout on social media to combat the growing problem of online abuse. The blackout means that the teams and their stars will not post, respond or use social media during that time. Using the hashtag #stoponlineabuse, teams, organizations and individual players are protesting against a growing tide of sexist and racist online abuse.

Sports stars are in a particularly difficult position when it comes to online abuse. By deciding to answer an Internet troll, they run the risk of giving their abuser a larger audience, and the abuse can continue for a long time until someone is finally blocked. On the other hand, sometimes silence is also not an option because abusers target the spouse and children of players, too, with upsetting and hurtful lies. If they don't defend their loved ones, who will? Of course, the problem is that a celebrity can and will be criticized for what they write online, whereas a troll can simply disappear back into obscurity. One angry response can do real harm to someone's career.

In the old days, people would say 'sticks and stones may break my bones, but words can never hurt me'. Nowadays, with greater understanding of psychology and the long-term effects of bullying, we know that that is not the case. When the sports stars set out to tackle online abuse, it is not just some minor row to them. They're not getting involved as some sort of hobby or sideline to their work. The effects of racist and sexist comments can persevere, finally affecting what happens on the pitch as players lose confidence in themselves and their abilities. Ignoring the abuse and trying to pretend it isn't happening is often not a realistic option.

One particular motivation for the blackout is the feeling that social media companies are not doing enough to combat the abuse. The Professional Footballers' Association recently released a report that looked at over 50 abusive messages written during a single calendar month. All were reported to the platform, but today 30 of them are still online. No action was taken in those cases. We can only assume that the companies don't have enough staff or time to remove the posts. It cannot be an isolated case as this situation almost certainly affects the other leading platforms, too. Perhaps they are overwhelmed with the sheer amount of online bullying, which may be even greater in other fields, such as the arts.

For now, sports fans will be starved of news and gossip for the rest of the week, and the trolls will have to look elsewhere for something to feed their appetite.

Secretary Yes, of course. How can I help you?

Student I'm afraid I have broken the school laptop you lent me. I didn't mean to do that. I was working on the project and the laptop slid off my lap and fell onto the floor. I do apologize for that. I know I should have been more careful.

Secretary I see. Could you please tell me how badly damaged the laptop is?

Student Well, it's making a funny noise every time I try to turn it on. And the screen is cracked in a few places. I wonder how I can make up for it? Could you tell me where I can get it repaired, please? Is there any specific service centre I should contact?

Secretary Don't worry about it. Our school IT team will take care of it. Still, there aren't any more school laptops available at the moment. Would you mind telling me where you are in your project?

Student Oh, that's not a problem to me. I only have to put some finishing touches, so I can use one of the computers in the IT lab. Thank you so much for your understanding. I do appreciate that.

Secretary Don't mention it.

My name's Saskia and I'm worried about the state of the planet. I'm afraid plastic is to blame for a lot of enviromental problems we have. It has been around since the 1950s but, more recently, there's been a move towards single-use plastic. This is probably why the planet can't really cope with the amount of waste anymore. The fact that it ends up in the sea and on beaches is really concerning.

When I saw an article about the plastic-free challenge, it got me thinking. You were supposed to go for one day without using plastic items. To be precise, the rules stated that you need to avoid touching anything made of plastic for a period of 24 hours! I decided to rise to the challenge, though I didn't think it could be that hard. Problems started as soon as I woke up with my decision about what to wear. I know that a lot of my clothes are made of polyester, which is a manmade fabric, so I avoided those and went for things that I knew were made of cotton and wool. I ended up in a pair of jeans and a woolly jumper. A lot of my shoes are also made of plastic. I don't eat meat, and I avoid buying leather clothes and shoes whenever possible. Luckily I had a pair of trainers with rubber soles so that was my only option.

On this day I was off to college. I was going to take my bike and I wanted to buy lunch so that I didn't have to think about containers for my sandwiches, but here was my next stumbling block. How was I going to pay for things? I couldn't take my credit card because that was covered in plastic and so were the notes that I had in my wallet. I couldn't find any coins hanging around, but I did have an app on my phone that I could pay for things with and that was something I could count on. From what I could see, the phone was made of metal and glass, so I don't think that I broke any rules by using it. Or did I? As you can see, there were so many things to take into consideration even before I actually left home. My day carried on like this, with me carefully analysing every step I made and everything I was about to use. It really made me think!

Despite the fact that there have been great advancements in alternative energy, wood-burning stoves have recently become popular in many affluent areas of the UK. For many, this form of heating seems like a step backwards. Burning wood pollutes the atmosphere and can cause breathing difficulties in vulnerable people. This issue has sparked a debate between the advocates, who have installed this type of heating, and opponents, who feel that their neighbours may have double standards in the way that they say they wish to save the planet while warming their hands by the fire.

Allotments can be found in many parts of the world. Not only do they allow people to grow their own vegetables, they also enable people to eat food that is locally sourced, and there's the added bonus of financial savings to be made. A knock-on effect of having an allotment is that it also educates people about the vegetables that can be grown at certain times of the year. This awareness of what is in season means people are less likely to want vegetables that have been transported for thousands of miles at great cost to the planet, due to the CO_2 emissions.

I've recently seen an advert for a big international corporation which opened their branch in my area. Among other things, it showed some footage of a couple of researchers in protective suits taking water samples from a river. Presumably, they wanted to create an image of being a socially responsible company that has the welfare of the local community at heart. But it's all smoke and mirrors, you know. I don't believe a word they say. I'm sure it was just a marketing stunt – a ploy to silence the critics highlighting the growing concern of global warming and the company's contribution to it. I think it's high time we started a public debate about this issue.

Solar-powered cars are fast becoming a reality due to the fact that many homeowners are installing solar panels on their roofs and buying electric cars that they can plug into their own sustainably created power supply. Although the costs of the technology may be prohibitive to many at the moment, experts believe that this will become more affordable as governments offer subsidies as part of their aim to reduce CO_2 emissions and become more green.

119 Mówienie, Page 181, Ex 1

Examiner Could you describe the picture, please?

Student In the picture I can see a group of young people carrying plant pots in a park. I think they are volunteers taking part in an ecological project. It looks like they are going to plant some new trees. The two people in the foreground, the boy and the girl, seem to feel really comfortable in each other's company. They may be close friends or a couple. They look really enthusiastic about the work they are doing.

Examiner Why do you think the people have decided to plant trees in the park?

Student I think they want to do something useful for other people and the environment. As I have already said, they seem very enthusiastic about the project. They are all wearing the same clothes, so it's probably part of an organized activity. I think they want to create more greenery in their city or town. Or, they just want to raise people's awareness of ecological issues.

Examiner How important is it to you to protect nature? Why?

Student In my view, nature is essential in our lives. The Earth is our home, so we should respect it. That's why I'm really concerned about problems like air pollution and global warming. And I think it is a positive trend that more and more people are paying attention to the ecological issues.

Examiner Tell me about a situation when you or someone you know did something eco-friendly.

Student Last year, my friends and I organized a beach cleanup activity. We spent the whole day picking up plastic and other litter from the beach. The weather was excellent and the views were breathtaking, and it felt really good to be doing something that mattered. We managed to collect over 80 bags of rubbish. At the end of the day we had a delicious meal at the local tavern. We were exhausted but proud of ourselves.

Examiner Do young people care about the environment?

Student It depends. On the one hand, young people are more open to change than their parents and grandparents. They know that unless something is done to protect the environment, their own future might be endangered. Most young people I know would agree that it is important to recycle, save water or try not to waste food. However, some people remain passive. Despite the fact that they are aware of the problem, they don't take any initiative. I think that sometimes we just choose the easy way. For example, it's more comfortable to be driven to school by car than ride a bicycle. While some solutions are ecological, they are not always the most convenient. So, being eco-friendly doesn't always depend on age.

Girl Well, it's been going around on social media for a couple of weeks. Apparently, some holidaymakers started doing it in Mallorca last month and it's gone viral.

Boy It looks rather complicated?

Girl But it isn't, anyone can do it. In fact, my dad has even got the moves. We learned them together last week.

Boy So, how do you do it?

Boy Oh, OK, this seems fairly easy, let me try … . We should definitely do this together at school!

Hey, everyone. So today I'm going to do a presentation about a hobby I've been doing for three years now. Basically, I've joined a group called So Flash and we meet up and perform in public spaces. So, let me tell you about the group. I'm sure you've heard of flash mobs, right? They started in 2003 and they were so cool. Large groups of people would gather in the middle of public places like train stations. They didn't look like a dance troop or anything. Just random strangers. But then they'd all just start singing or dancing, and for three minutes there'd just be total chaos and confusion. Here you can see a photo of my favourite one from Liverpool Street station back in 2009. There have been lots of different styles of flash mob since then, including silent discos where people meet up in the middle of the city with headphones on and just dance. So Flash was inspired by these movements. We're all musicians, or love music anyway, and we perform songs in public. We do numbers from musicals especially, like Chicago or The Lion King, and we sometimes act out famous scenes from them. So, here's one of us doing a scene from Cats in a pedestrian precinct in the high street. It's just for fun really – we're not buskers looking for money. It's thrilling to be part of and great to see bystanders' reactions. But we take bookings and surprise people on their birthdays, too, and that's how we make some extra cash every now and then. Here's a photo of when we …

Local councils have suggested that a new social media craze that's recently arrived in our country constitutes anti-social behaviour. The 'wrap it up' challenge involves wrapping large objects in toilet paper. Victims have seen their cars, sheds and even houses wrapped in loo roll. Other targets have included park benches and street lamps. Environmental campaigners have claimed the behaviour is irresponsible and causes waste and pollution that's difficult to clear away, especially when the paper becomes wet. Meanwhile, authorities have expressed concern that what might be seen as fun by some could make other members of society, especially the elderly, feel afraid to go in the streets. They have urged pranksters to think of others before engaging in such stunts. The challenge follows several dangerous social media pranks this year that have led some community leaders to call for a ban on certain social media sites including the following …

Elena Hi, Zach. Thanks for agreeing to help us design the flyer for the protest next month.

Zach No worries, Elena. I'm so glad I can help out. There are many issues I deeply care about, like climate emergency or street violence, but the call for free school meals stands out for me. A good meal really brings out the best in kids.

Elena Absolutely. We want 50,000 more pupils to get them.

Zach Great, it's crucial to have a clear aim.

Elena So, we need to figure out what to put on the flyer. Can I give you some details so you can get started on the design?

Zach Of course. Fire away.

Elena OK, so we're going with an 'empty plates' theme for the protest to show how kids are going without food. We want all the protesters to bring along empty paper plates with slogans or some clever design on them and we're going to hold them up in the air and protest.

Zach Let's try to design one as an example. What could we put on it?

Elena Something that highlights the issue. Maybe 'A good meal is a big deal'? Or maybe we can point out some statistics about how many kids live in food-insecure households? It's two million right now, I think. It used to be about half a million less, just a year and a half ago, can you believe that? Anyway, just please include instructions to bring empty paper plates.

Zach OK, got it. I'll make sure all that really stands out. So, where are you doing this?

Elena Victoria Park, where a local newspaper has an office. We're hoping they'll interview us, and maybe the local TV crew will come out as well if we hold the protest there. It's next Wednesday from 4 p.m.

Zach Is there anything else we could add to attract people?

Elena Yes, we've got a professional footballer coming, Harvey Evans. He plays in goal for the town club and is going to say a few words through the loudhailer.

Zach Anything else?

Elena Yes, we'll need to add something about our sponsors, the Junk Food Café. They're paying us to print the flyers and leaflets to hand out.

Zach Oh, is that the café that takes food that supermarkets are getting rid of because it's nearing the sell-by date?

Elena That's the one. They use what they can get to make cheap meals for people in need. I'll send you their logo.

Zach Great!

Student Guess what? I've just come back from the police station.

Flatmate Police station? Are you all right?

Student Yes, I am. Calm down. The police wanted me to give a statement on an incident I had witnessed.

Flatmate What incident?

Student A bus stop was destroyed by vandals. And I happened to be there at that time.

Flatmate No way! Tell me more about it.

Student Well, it was about 9 p.m. It was already getting dark. I was waiting for a bus when I saw four youths coming from across the street. I knew right away something was up. They were shouting loudly. Then, the tallest boy lit a lighter and threw it into the waste bin. It immediately went up in flames. The others were just laughing as if it was funny.

Flatmate Oh no! And what did you do?

Student Frankly, I was scared stiff. They looked really aggressive. So, I started running until I thought I was at a safe distance from them. Then I called the police. Before they came, the vandals managed to break the glass wall of the bus shelter and damage one of the cars nearby. Fortunately, no one was injured but the bus shelter needs to be replaced. And I think the car owners won't be happy, either.

Flatmate What a night! It's good to see you safe and sound.

128 Mówienie, Page 195, Ex 7

Student All the options seem interesting, but if I were to choose one, I would go for option number one. There are plenty of reasons why we should help seniors. First of all, they frequently struggle with physical disabilities, like the man in the photo. When they were younger, they took care of their children and grandchildren. Now, it's our turn to give them the support they deserve. What's more, by helping seniors, I would really feel that I am making a difference. Most of them feel lonely and isolated. What they need is to be noticed and appreciated by other people. A simple chat or eating a meal together may make them feel that they are not 'invisible'.

The problem with option number two is that it doesn't involve direct contact with the people in need. Unlike option number two, it is more about helping others financially. Of course, collecting clothes and other articles is extremely important. Still, I think that helping the elderly would make me feel more emotionally engaged. I wouldn't opt for option number three, either. On the one hand, I think it's a great idea and I do admire volunteers working in soup kitchens. On the other hand, as an introvert, I'm not sure I would be good at dealing with so many people at the same time, and I'd rather connect with them on a more personal level. To sum up, all the forms of volunteering are valuable but I would feel most needed helping elderly and disabled people.

Examiner How do elderly people contribute to society?

Student Elderly people contribute to society in a number of ways. First of all, they play an important role in their children's and grandchildren's lives. While parents are often seen as those who make rules, grandparents give their grandkids unconditional love. They are often more patient and have more time to help the other family members. Moreover, senior citizens have lived through many challenges and can share their valuable life experience. Spending more time with them can give us a different perspective on life. For example, we can learn what really matters and how to appreciate little things, and not to give up in the face of difficulty. Finally, we often forget that seniors contribute to society economically. Like younger people, they make purchases, use services and pay taxes. Not to mention the fact that they spent most of their lives working hard and now they have the right to retire.

So, the importance of seniors in society cannot be overlooked.

Examiner What are the benefits of volunteering?

Student There are many benefits of volunteering. First of all, you gain a sense of purpose. You feel that you are doing something meaningful and that you can really change other people's lives for the better. Moreover, it reduces stress. When you focus on others, you stop thinking about your own problems and it puts things into perspective for you. Finally, it can improve your career prospects. You gain life experience, discover your hidden talents and learn new skills, such as teamwork, problem-solving or time management. So, the more you give, the more you get in return. Volunteering may be beneficial for the community as well as for yourself.
